RED ACTIVITIES OF UNION HEADS IN PLANT BARED

Army and Legion Make Inquiries.

BY ORVILLE DWYER AND GEORGE HARTMANN.

Details of the Communist affiliations, records, and activities of at least four officers of the CIO United Automobile Workers union, local 998, charged by loyal workers with slowing down production at the big southwest side Studebaker war plant, were obtained by THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

Other developments growing out of disclosures of slow downs, loafing, restriction of output, and open gambling in the Studebaker plant, were:

1. The Americanism committee of the American Legion's Cook county council, headed by Atty. Elliodor M. Libonati, has conducted an investigation of the output control and other sabotage at the Studebaker plant independent of THE TRIBUNE's inquiry. Libonati said this has been accomplished thru Legionnaires employed in the big war factory. He added the Americanism committee will meet Tuesday evening in his office to consider the situation.

Army Begins Inquiry.

2. The army military intelligence has opened an inquiry into the situation at the plant. Earlier it had been disclosed that over a period of months the appeals of the management to the army, the federal bureau of investigation, the state, and other governmental agencies had brought no relief.

3. Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, announced he is looking into the evidence that Anton J. Kirincic, captain of the guards at the Studebaker plant, was on the city pay roll for at least a year during his service there at a salary of $2,376 yearly. It has been shown that Kirincic, thru the influence of a southwest side Kelly-Nash Democratic ward committeeman, was put in charge of the guards sometime in 1941 and that until Sept. 10, 1942, he was on the city civil service records as a "field assessor" in the water tax division. What action will be taken will depend on his inquiry, Hewitt said.

Communist Links Prohibited.

Evidence of the Communist party affiliations of the four local No. 998 officers, their Red records and activities, were obtained from a high source. That they are holding their posts despite an international UAW-CIO rule against it, was shown by a statement issued from the Chicago regional headquarters of the organization, attributed to R. J. Thomas, the international president. This statement in part read:

"The statement that the leaders of the local are Communists is something that will have to be proved. Our international constitution guarantees affiliated local unions complete autonomy and further safeguards the membership by prohibiting any member of a Communist, Fascist or Nazi organization from holding either an elective or appointive office in the union.

"An investigation will be made and if there are found to be Communists holding office in local 998, the proper action will be taken by the international union."

In this connection it was pointed out that each worker employed in a war plant is subjected to thoro investigation. His or her record is inquired into by the local police, the FBI, the army and business and industrial committees. The facts are readily obtainable.

Records of Four Officers.

Carl Swanson, chairman of the bargaining committee and "boss" of the local, recorded in many files as a member of the Communist party. He was born in Harvey in 1914. Definitely listed as "one of the Communist leaders at the Studebaker plant."

Gertrude Selig, alias Giles, born in New York City Nov. 8, 1911, recording secretary of the local. In 1939 she was executive director of the International Workers' order; in 1941 and 1942 she was active in the Young Communists' league; in July, 1941, she was a delegate at Philadelphia to the American Youth congress, which, it is charged, is Com-

House Finance Group Rebels at Huge Taxes

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—The powerful house ways and means committe, in bipartisan union, declared today that the public can stand no more taxes. It told the administration to cut down spending if it wants to block inflation.

The committee said its second war time revenue measure, which calls for 2 billion 140 million dollars in new taxes, is all that "can reasonably be borne by the taxpayers at this time." The total was only about one-fifth of the 10 billion 500 million dollars the administration asked.

Altho firm in its opposition to further taxes, the full committee report did not go as far as a separate statement by Republicans on the committee, who told the administration it must stop its tax demands.

Charge Too Much Taxing.

"For too long the overburdened taxpayer has been the 'forgotten man,'" the Republicans declared. "For too long the watchword has been 'spend and spend, tax and tax.'"

"The time has come," they continued, "when henceforth the administration, instead of insisting upon squeezing more and more taxes out of the public, should at long last be giving some concern to the elimination of unnecessary and wasteful expenditures."

They said they would listen to no more treasury pleas for additional taxes until the government cuts its own spending.

Slight Income Tax Change.

The new tax bill, bearing small resemblance to the measures that Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr. placed before the committee two months ago, will come into the house for consideration next week. It makes only slight changes in present individual income taxes, absorbs the victory tax into surtax levies, and draws most of its revenues from higher taxes on luxuries and excess profits of corporations.

The full committee, which sent out the bill, said the need for new revenue thru taxes "has apparently been exaggerated." It said strict government economy is a stronger weapon against inflation than trying to siphon off all excess purchasing power thru taxation.

The bill raises the liquor tax from $6 to $9 a gallon, but the committee said the public need have no fear that this will bring back bootlegging. "The war time shortages of such materials as sugar and copper will prevent a substantial increase in illegal distillation," it concluded.

DEMAND ECONOMY

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—A congressional war economy drive gained momentum today as senate and house leaders set their sights on reducing war spending in the current fiscal year by 25 billion dollars—more than the 21 billion 850 million dollar cost of the World war.

Sen. Richard B. Russell [D., Ga.], member of the senate appropriations committee, and Rep. John Taber [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, expressed the conviction that careful scrutiny of war expenditures will save 25 billion dollars or more.

Both leaders emphasized that proper management of military forces and industry and the prevention of overproduction of war materials will save billions for taxpayers.

ILLINOIS TOWN GETS THE WORKS, BUT NOT WATER OUT OF THEM

Port Byron, Ill., Nov. 20 [Special].—This village of 1,200 inhabitants, 15 miles north of Moline, has a brand new sewer and water system, built at a cost of $145,250 in government money, complete except for faucets for the water to run out of, and sinks, tubs, and other plumbing fixtures for it to run into.

"We've got our water system, but it doesn't do us any good," Mayor Eugene Mueller said mournfully today. "The district office of the war production board at Davenport has refused to approve any purchases of plumbing fixtures by our residents."

Hubert A. Dailey, chairman of the water and sewer committee of the village board, said the cost of the project had been met by an outright federal grant of $82,250 and by revenue bonds of $63,000 issued by the village and purchased by the federal works administration to be retired out of water revenue. Unless the residents get water, he added, there won't be any revenue to take care of the bonds.

TWO HEAR TALK AT GETTYSBURG A SECOND TIME

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—A handful of residents of this war-busy community gathered today near the spot where, 80 years ago yesterday, Abraham Lincoln spoke the words known to history as the Gettysburg address.

Two of those attending, William C. Storrick, 87 years old, and Edward Trostle, 84, were in the crowd that heard Lincoln speak.

His words were repeated today by P. J. Kammerer of Newville, Pa., a Lincoln impersonator.

Dr. Harvey D. Hoover of the Lutheran Theological seminary at Gettysburg, praised the Civil war President for "lifelong devotion to the things that do not perish."

Skipper Leaps from Blimp to Rescue Sailor

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—The skipper of a navy blimp today noticed an enlisted man at the Charleston naval air station had become fouled in the mooring lines and was being dragged behind as the ship took off. He headed out over the near-by Cooper river, dumped the struggling man into the water, and then dived from the gondola window into the water and rescued him.

Fireman 3d Class Harold Mras, 19, of 2461 N. 44th street, Milwaukee, Wis., the rescued man, is in the Charleston naval hospital for treatment of friction burns. His condition was described as serious.

Caught by One Leg.

"We were heading down the runway and the signal had been given to the ground crew to release lines," said the skipper, Lt. L. J. Mack, 25, of St. Paul, Minn.

"We noticed a drag and then I saw this kid being dragged along by a line that had fouled around one of his legs. We were moving too rapidly for the ground crew to check our speed. I maneuvered the ship to where I might stop her, but that didn't work, for the power had been cut and we had little rudder control."

Hoped To Free Seaman.

Lt. Mack gave the order to take her down and over the river, in the hope that that would slack the line and free the man, and "Thanks to some splendid rudder work on the part of Ensign Victor N. Stein of Minneapolis, we got where we aimed for."

Over the river the skipper turned the ship over to his co-pilot and dived out the window. Carrying an extra life belt for Mras, Mack swam 50 feet to reach him, towed him 100 feet to a buoy, hauled him up on the float, and held him there until a lifeboat from shore arrived.

COUPLE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH; SUICIDE HINTED

Tappahannock, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—A plane plunged from high altitude into the Rappahannock river today, killing a young couple. Sheriff Sidney Newbill said a note found on the man suggested a suicide pact. Harmon C. Balderson, 28 years old, and Mabel Connley, 20, who lived near here, died in the crash and Sheriff Newbill said he found a letter on Balderson saying they intended taking their lives and requesting they be buried together.

Woman Reports a Thief Took Her 60 Elephants

Trinidad, Colo., Nov. 20 (AP).—Mrs. John P. Shew reported the theft of 60 elephants—miniature ones in her collection which stood atop the piano. She was promised a prompt investigation. The chief of police is her husband.

BOY TELLS HOW HE HID BODY OF DEAD PLAYMATE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20 [Special].—Jack Wall, 11 years old, told police tonight that he witnessed the fatal shooting of 13 year old Barry Rothstein in the kitchen of the Wall home yesterday afternoon and then dragged the body to a yard where it was found by neighbors.

Barry Rothstein.

Jack said he and his playmate were examining a revolver owned by his father, Elbert Wall, a war worker, and that the gun, which has a weak trigger spring, exploded while lying on a table about three feet from where the boys were standing. He said he dragged the body outside and then wiped bloodstains from the kitchen floor.

Prosecutor Francis W. Kamman released Jack in the custody of his parents and said he does not contemplate an arrest.

The locale of the shooting was traced to the Wall home by a trail of blood leading from the body and traces of blood were found in the kitchen. For several hours the boy insisted he knew nothing of the shooting, but he broke down when left with his father in the prosecutor's office.

Tempest at Cordova, Alaska, Wrecks Buildings

CORDOVA, Alaska, Nov. 20 (AP).—A tempest of near hurricane force struck Cordova today and almost tore the town apart. It was the worst windstorm since 1934. The gale blew down two warehouses, the Mitamura building and the 12 room O'Neill house. Windows were broken all over town and there was great damage to small craft in the harbor.

CHURCHILL CAN RE-ELECT F.D.R., SAYS BRITISHER

'Colossal Figure to Americans.'

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—If President Roosevelt gets a fourth term Prime Minister Churchill will win it for him, in the opinion of a British editor who returned here after a 10,000 mile trip thru the United States.

Cecil Brooks, head of the news service which bears his name, gave an interview to World's Press News, a newspaper trade journal, in which he said Churchill's stature in America far outstrides that of Roosevelt himself.

Churchill could bring about the defeat of the Republican candidate, whom Brooks assumes is going to be Willkie, "by visiting Washington at a suitable time near the election period. His mere presence in America and the message he would be able to convey in relation to national needs would so dominate American outlook as to secure the President's return—and that without any direct participation by Churchill in American politics."

He's Simply Colossal.

Unlike many American editors who come to Britain at the invitation of the British ministry of information, which pays their round trip air passage, Brooks traveled about America as "an ordinary Englishman, not as a journalist." He said he ignored both the ministry of information branch in America and the office of war information.

"The United States is still a hundred per cent suspicious of a man who wears the label of the British ministry of information or any official government," he explained. "People in Britain should not believe the bunk that is written on both sides of the Atlantic about the perfection of Anglo-American relations," he added. "Vast numbers of people, not only in the middle west but in such cosmopolitan cities as New York and Chicago, are still anti-British politically. But they are a hundred per cent pro-British personally and socially."

"America Politically Mad."

America, Brooks asserted, is "politically mad. Everybody thinks, drinks, and talks politics."

"The majority of the folks in America fear that Britain may become politically big business in her desire to have political alliances with the United States. There is a great distrust thruout the United States of pacts, political trusts, and political understandings."

He found the great problems about which the American people are talking and thinking are not concerned so much about the war as they are with the question of Russian influence on Britain and America.

"Hundreds of thousands of people are worried stiff that the end of the war will see some political unit which will enable Russia to override the capitalistic principles of Britain and America," he said.

"British Propaganda Fails."

Asserting that British propaganda was failing to explain Britain to the Americans, Brooks tells of entering a store to buy plain British made socks. The clerk, he said, complained he could not understand why he should be asked to contribute to Bundles for Britain, have his income tax raised to pay for lend-lease goods sent to Britain, and still have to sell British goods in competition with those made in the United States.

"The clerk pointed out the American press never explained why British goods were on sale there, nor had the British propaganda machine taken the trouble to explain matters to wholesalers or retailers."

Brooks did not explain it, either.

American business men, according to the London editor, are "crying out for more British made goods to sell." He sees America for the next 25 years as one of Britain's best markets, "but we have to keep our hands and noses out of South America. United States business men regard South America as their virgin territory, and if we attempt any cutthroat competition with their manufacturers there is going to be hell to pay."

U. S. Planes Lick U-Boat in 10 Hours

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21 (AP).—Battling for 10 hours, a navy plane combination blasted a Nazi submarine in the Caribbean, but not until after the heavily armed raider had shot down one plane and severely damaged two others.

A navy blimp also joined in the battle—fought some time ago, the navy said—and was lost at sea when it made a forced landing after fuel supplies were exhausted.

Lt. Anthony R. Matuski of Setauket, N. Y., pilot of a navy plane, first sighted the submarine. He attacked and depth charges forced the submarine stern down, and reduced its speed to a crawl.

Sends Message and Vanishes.

"No damage to plane or personnel," Matuski reported. Then, only minutes later, he reported, "Damaged! Damaged! Fire!"

That, the navy said, was the last message from Matuski. He and nine members of his plane crew are listed as missing in action.

Immediately after the initial action report, another big plane piloted by Lt. Lewis D. Crockett of Nashville, Tenn., was ordered to the scene.

Crockett spotted the damaged sub, and dived to attack. The U-boat's anti-aircraft guns went into action. Despite the fire, Crockett continued the dive and his bombs landed just at the side of the sub.

Bombs Find Their Mark.

In a second attack a shell from the submarine's guns tore thru a gasoline line in the plane and flames enveloped the right wing. But Crockett continued the dive while a crew member, Anthony Creider of San Diego, Cal., attempted to smother the flames.

Altho the plane threatened to explode momentarily, the bombs were sent home. The sub settled farther into the water.

Crockett's call reporting his plane afire brought the blimp, piloted by Ensign Wallace A. Wydeen of Minneapolis, Minn., to search for survivors of Matuski's plane and of Crockett's if he too had crashed. Other planes, meantime, sped to the scene.

All participated in the battle which finally ended with the sinking of the submarine during the night and discovery of 40 Germans floating in the waters the following morning. All are prisoners of war. They reported the initial attack by Matuski had damaged their U-boat so severely it could not submerge. Subsequent bombings opened various leaks.

THEATER OF AIR MAY ARRANGE FOR MORE MEDINAH PROGRAMS

A promise that if arrangements could be made the W-G-N-Mutual Theater of the Air would come back to spacious Medinah temple "as often as you want us to" was made to an audience of 4,800 at last night's broadcast by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE and weekly speaker on the Theater of the Air program. The original plan was to have but six broadcasts from Medinah. The program was moved from the W-G-N studio to Medinah on Nov. 6 because of the demand for tickets. Despite these much larger quarters, hundreds had to be turned away last night.

The broadcast was a Jack La Frandre condensation and production of Friml's "Rose Marie," whose sprightly melodies were effectively presented by Marion Claire, Hugh Thompson, Bruce Foote, and the W-G-N Ensemble and Symphony orchestra, with Henry Weber conducting. The corresponding dramatic parts were taken by Laurette Fillbrandt, Olan Soule, and Ed Prentiss.

The program was dedicated to the women's reserve of the United States coast guard, which will be one year old next Tuesday. Nearly 1,000 SPARS and prospective SPARS were in the audience.

HALT MASSED TANK ATTACK NEAR ZHITOMIR

LONDON, Nov. 21 [Sunday]—(AP).—Red army troops crumpled a massed German tank and infantry attack in bitter fighting east of Zhitomir yesterday, killing 1,000 Nazis, overran German defense positions to widen their newly won bridgehead at Cherkasi, and gained in their drive toward the manganese center of Nikopol, Moscow announced early today.

The Russian midnight bulletin also said soviet troops beat back German counter-attacks at two other main points and gained ground in the lower Pripet river area and to the north in the region of almost encircled Gomel. In this area 1,200 Germans were reported killed as the Russians went over to the attack after blasting nine consecutive Nazi counter-attacks.

60 Tanks in Assault.

Hoping to capitalize to the fullest on the German capture Friday of the strategic rail and highway junction of Zhitomir, Marshal Fritz von Mannstein launched an assault 15 miles to the east.

Soviet forces, fighting near the scene of the greatest Russian setback of the 1943 campaign, met a thrust of 6,000 German infantrymen and 60 tanks in one sector, the war bulletin, recorded here by the soviet monitor, said. In the "fierce engagement" that followed the Russians burned out 32 enemy tanks.

In the drive toward Nikopol, on the south side of the Dnieper bend, a Red army guard unit carried off a night attack and threw the Germans from a strategic height southwest of Dnepropetrovsk, the war bulletin said. The Russians last were reported within 22 miles of Nikopol.

Kill 300 at Cherkasi.

Three hundred Germans were killed in the fighting at Cherkasi, German middle Dnieper tank division headquarters which has been transformed into "a heavily fortified strong point."

The Germans were said to have used fresh forces in their nine futile counterattacks in the Gomel area, and the war bulletin added that the Russians, in their counterblow, captured two villages. Twenty-four German tanks and two armored cars were disabled or destroyed in this fighting.

Russian troops captured a district center in their advance in the lower Pripet river area and wiped out a battalion of enemy infantry.

Zhitomir Taken by Storm.

Berlin, reporting rather late but more fully on the recapture of Zhitomir, dropped no hint of the Nazi command's intention but said that the town was re-won after terrific fighting. The German high command said Zhitomir was "encircled and taken by storm."

In contrast to Moscow's announcement that Zhitomir was evacuated, one Berlin broadcast said that "every house was like a fortress, and particularly every one had to be taken by storm."

A late German radio summary said that the Red army was launching "strong attacks" near Cherkasi, and said that northwest of Gomel, where attacks might break thru the last escape corridor from that crumbling German bastion, Russian attacks were being supported by "colossal tank, artillery, and air formations."

One roundabout report from the continent said that Rumanian divisions of the Nazis' Crimea garrison had begun an evacuation of the besieged peninsula. The Bucharest correspondent of the Lausanne, Switzerland, Gazette, said that the Rumanians hoped to evacuate at least half of their seven divisions on the Crimea, presumably by sea.

OPA Changes Effective in Area Tomorrow.

Points for Fat?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—Under bombardment from housewives, the office of price administration is about to give meat ration points for waste kitchen fats, it was reported today. Under the plan the OPA may authorize the exchange of two points good for meat or cheese for household fats, a critical item in the munitions program. While the present payment of 3 cents a pound for kitchen fats has provided millions of pounds, fat collections have declined the last three months.

Ceiling prices on 91 food items, including cereals and canned fruits and vegetables, will be increased 1 to 4 cents a can or package in the Chicago area tomorrow, with reductions in 60 items, including butter, by approximately the same amounts.

The new prices, effective in all stores, result largely from new pricing formulas used for the 1943 pack of foods, according to Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago area director of the office of price administration.

List of Price Revisions.

The changes average 1⅛ cents an item and the larger revisions apply to prices in the larger independent and chain stores. Included are:

BUTTER: All grades reduced ½ cent a pound, except 89 and 90 score [lower grades] tub and bulk, which are down 1 cent.

COFFEE: Cuts of 1 to 3 cents a pound on two brands.

BREAKFAST CEREALS: One cent increases on four chain brands; a 4 cent reduction on one brand of corn flakes.

FISH: One brand of salmon down 1 cent; one brand of tuna down 3 cents.

CANNED FRUIT: Peaches, up 1 cent to down 5 cents; pineapple, 2 cents higher to 5 cents lower; fruit cocktail, 1 to 4 cents higher.

Prunes Up 1 to 2 Cents.

DRIED FRUIT: Prunes, 1 to 2 cents higher; raisins, 2 cents higher to 1 cent lower.

NOODLES: One cent reduction in one brand.

SALAD OIL: Two to 3 cent reduction in one brand.

SIRUPS: One brand down 4 and 5 cents for 5 pounds.

VEGETABLES: Canned beans, 1 cent higher to 7 cents lower; corn, 1 to 2 cents a can higher; canned peas, tomatoes, and tomato juice, 1 cent a can higher on a few varieties.

Turkey Prices Unchanged.

Current prices of turkeys and chickens remain unchanged. Chickens range from 38 cents a pound live to 65½ cents for frozen and eviscerated. Young fresh dressed turkeys run from 48 to 52 cents a pound. Ducks and geese also are unchanged.

The ceiling price on California peas will be reduced 4 cents a pound for this week, effective tomorrow, under weekly schedules of fresh fruit and vegetable prices announced last night by Mulcahy.

Wax bean prices were reduced a cent a pound and spinach 2 cents a pound. Increases of 1 to 3 cents a pound are authorized for lemons, Florida and Texas oranges, carrots and tomatoes.

Release Canned Goods.

The war food administration announced yesterday in Washington it will release soon for civilian use part of the supplies of canned pineapple, asparagus, corn, pumpkin, spinach, and figs held by canners for government purchase.

"Known quantities of these canned foods that will reach grocers' shelves are 540,000 cases of pineapples and 77,000 cases of figs," WFA said. "It is not possible to estimate exact quantities of the various vegetables, but it is thought they will be substantial."

WFA said the released canned goods would reach retail markets within a few weeks, about the time fresh fruits and vegetables are in lowest supply.

Divorce Trial Set

VERONICA LAKE.

Los Angeles, Nov. 20 (AP).—Trial of Actress Veronica Lake's divorce suit against Maj. John Stewart Detlie was set today for Dec. 2. A property settlement giving the actress custody of their 2 year old daughter, Elaine, has been reached out of court. Miss Lake sued the former studio art director, now in the army engineers, last month, charging cruelty. They were married in 1940.

Debtor of 30 Years Ago Sends $5 to an Auroran

One day last week, Herbert Goldsmith, 61 years old, 245 Cedar street, Aurora, who operated a cigar store 30 years ago, received a telephone call. A man who did not identify himself asked if he were the Goldsmith who formerly had a cigar store. Goldsmith admitted it. "Well," said the caller, "I owe you some money and I'll pay it soon by mail." Yesterday the mailman handed Mr. Goldsmith an envelope, postmarked in Aurora. It contained a $5 bill but no writing to identify the sender.

GATHER POWER TO TAKE OIL AND COAL FROM OPA

Whole Subsidy Setup in Danger of Defeat.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—The administration's price control machinery collided with another challenge today—a threat to remove coal and oil from OPA jurisdiction—as President Roosevelt's stalwarts waged an apparently losing battle to save the consumer subsidy program.

Rep. Johnson.

With the subsidy showdown due Monday in the house, a bloc of law-makers from coal and oil producing states announced that 209 signatures—just nine short of the required 218—had been collected on a petition to force action on their proposal.

"We'll collect the rest of them Monday," asserted Rep. Calvin Johnson [R., Ill.]. The petition calls for committee discharge of the Disney bill to turn control of oil prices over to Interior Secretary Harold Ickes. Johnson plans to offer an amendment to include coal.

Probable Line of Defeat.

The move—another in a series of rapid fire developments on the nation's economic front—left the administration confronting this situation as it strove desperately to preserve the program it has chosen for holding the line against inflation:

1. Likelihood that the house, probably by on overwhelming margin, will approve legislation containing a prohibition against subsidy payments—a device the administration intends to use to keep down retail food prices.

2. A new Republican house drive for creation of a single food administrator, with control over prices as well as production, which would leave the office of price administration an empty, executive shell. The proposal is supported by the house agricultural committee and the house Republican food study committee.

3. Demands of coal operators for increased prices to meet the new wages to miners.

Nelson Backs Subsidies.

Meanwhile, pleas for the preservation of the subsidy program by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox and War Production Chief Donald Nelson were made public by Rep. Wright Patman [D., Tex.].

Knox said elimination of subsidies would result in an increase in the cost of living and nullify the new higher allotments for dependents of servicemen.

Nelson declared continuance of the subsidy program is "essential to the national well being." He predicted if it be discontinued "unrest in war plants may result from uncontroled food prices and gravely retard war production."

Further administrative support for subsidies came from Chester Bowles, OPA chief, who declared the price agency has no other program to halt inflation if the subsidy plan now before congress is defeated.

"I'D GIVE A MILLION DOLLARS"

. . . to be able to play like that!

"My folks couldn't afford the luxury of music for me when I was a boy. Now I have great wealth but am too old to learn. All I can do is listen to others create the magic of music. How much deeper would be my satisfaction if I only could make my own music—even a simple little tune!"

Today it is much easier for a child to obtain musical training. Wurlitzer, for example, provides a fine instrument, expert instruction and band training at a modest cost any family can afford. Moreover, adults as well as youngsters are learning to play this easy, economical Wurlitzer way.

Don't let your child grow up to regret the lack of musical ability. Poor indeed is the richest man or woman, without this magic gift. You are invited to come in for further details of the Wurlitzer Music Plan.

PLANS TO BARE 'REAL' KILLER IN 1913 SENSATION

Innocent Man Lynched, Lawyer Says.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 20 (AP).—A retired Georgia jurist promised today "after certain persons are dead" to clear Leo M. Frank of the murder for which he was convicted and lynched following one of the nation's sensational trials 30 years ago.

"I am one of the few people who know that Leo Frank was innocent of the crime for which he was convicted and lynched," wrote 70 year old Arthur G. Powell, former judge of the Georgia Court of Appeals in a book, "I Can Go Home Again." The book was published by the University of North Carolina Press.

"I know who killed Mary Phagan, but I know it in such a way that I can never honorably make the information public as long as certain persons still are living. . . . I expect to write down what I know and why I know it, seal it up and put it away, with instructions that it is not be be opened until certain persons are dead."

Case a Sensation in 1913.

The Frank case created a national sensation back in 1913 and a motion picture centering around it was made several years ago.

Powell said in an interview here that he could not be compelled to testify before a grand jury now because he received his information in his capacity as an attorney.

Powell was engaged in private practice at the time of the Frank trial.

Mary Phagan, 13 years old, lived in near-by Marietta and worked in a pencil factory in Atlanta. She was slain April 26, 1913—Confederate Memorial day—and Frank, who came from Brooklyn and was secretary of the firm, was accused of the crime. His trial was postponed several times because of high feeling against him.

Sat Beside Trial Judge.

Powell said he sat beside Trial Judge A. M. Roan on the bench while he prepared to charge the jury, and that Judge Roan told him, "This man's innocence is proved to a mathematical certainty."

However, Frank was convicted and sentenced to death, Powell wrote, "with the mob in the streets around the courthouse grumbling for vengeance, howling for his blood."

The case was carried to the United States Supreme court without success. Finally, a petition for clemency was filed with Gov. John M. Slaton—now an elderly practicing attorney here. On Slaton's last day in office, June 30, 1915, he commuted the sentence to life. Powell wrote that Slaton "told friends privately that he would have granted a full pardon if he had not believed that in a very short while the truth would come out. . . ."

Frank was taken "at 11 o'clock on a night in mid-August, 1915," from the prison farm at Milledgeville "by a party of masked men in motor cars," wrote Powell, "carried northward 165 miles to an oak grove 2 miles from the court house and public square" in Marietta and "hanged with a new hemp rope to an oak tree."

2,500 LEATHER WORKERS STAY OUT; DEFY F. D. R.

Reject Demands for End of Strike.

Peabody, Mass., Nov. 20 (AP).—Some 2,500 workers employed in 32 leather and tanning plants in the Peabody-Salem area continued their strike today in defiance of President Roosevelt's order to cease picketing and return to work at once.

The men, members of the National Leather Workers' association, an independent union, rejected the President's order at a mass meeting yesterday, voting unanimously to continue the 12 day old walkout until two discharged members were reinstated in their jobs.

The vote was taken despite a warning by Joseph B. Harrington, attorney for the union, that such action probably would mean government seizure of the plants.

3,600 Steelworkers Strike.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—A strike involving 3,600 workers tied up war production today at the Homestead plant of the Mesta Machine company.

The workers, members of the CIO United Steelworkers of America, left their jobs at midnight over a grievance involving overtime work, a union spokesman said. The full weight of the walkout was felt just as two navy officers were to officiate at ceremonies marking the start of operations in new electric steel furnaces.

Fishermen Called Out.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 20 (AP).—The AFL Atlantic Fishermen's union today called a strike of Boston, New York and New Bedford fishermen, which, Business Agent Austin Powers said, would affect 1,900 men and tie up about 120 boats in the three ports within the next six days.

Consumers are not expected to feel the effects immediately as the three fleets are at sea and will bring in millions of pounds of fresh fish, and there is a fair quantity in storage.

The Boston fleet includes about 50 comparatively large boats and 800 men; the New Bedford fleet about 75 boats and 800 men, and the New York fleet 300 men and about 30 boats.

Crews of the various boats will cease operations immediately upon arrival in port. The union decided to call the strike after industry and government officials failed to reach an agreement on price ceilings.

REP. HOPE HITS SUBSIDY CHARGE BY MRS. F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Rep. Clifford R. Hope [R., Kas.] took issue today with the food subsidy views of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and the League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Roosevelt at a press conference had charged "a certain group" is prodding congressional opposition to subsidies in order to get higher prices, while the league declared "the interests of the country are being betrayed by political leaders who yield to the demands of special interest groups."

Asserting that 90 per cent of the people are against subsidies, Hope said only one special interest controls congress, "the people."

JURY FREES SIX OF ARMS PLANT FRAUD CHARGES

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 20 [Special].—Six defendants, including a lieutenant-colonel of the army engineers, were acquitted here tonight in federal District court on charges of defrauding the government of $190,000 in connection with the construction of the Hoosier Ordnance plant at Charlestown, Ind. The jury took three hours to reach its verdict.

The trial came to a swift conclusion today when the defense decided not to submit any evidence after the prosecution had rested. The government charged that the alleged fraud resulted from a contract for the rental of construction machinery and equipment at a rate 20 per cent above the prevailing schedule and with inadequate provisions regarding the government's right of purchase.

The defendants were Lt. Col. Wayne O. Hauck, assistant construction quartermaster at the ordnance plant; Charles N. [Sam] Hikes, principal inspector of equipment at the plant, a war department civilian employe; Ashby Corum of Madisonville, Ky., a contractor; Arthur Corum, brother and business associate of Ashby; Kyle Corum, son of Arthur, and Roy L. Gorrell, a partner in another contracting firm.

Expects Advance from India, However.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

High officials have recently intimated that a major attack on Japan is in preparation. The date is of course secret, but is said to be imminent.

Several lines of attack lead toward Japan. That in the southeast of Asia is only one of them. An attack may be limited to one line, or to several. If there be more than one, they may not start all at the same time. It is for the board of chiefs of staff to draw up a plan and schedule. What this may be will not be known until the campaigns themselves occur.

The most important allied force in the Pacific area is in India. Long ago, the British disclosed that they had over a million troops there, including British and Indian. Not all of this large army could be used against Japan. Some troops are required to maintain order in India, and watch other frontiers. But a very large part of this great army is available, and some of it is in line along the Burma frontier.

The American strength in India has never been divulged.

Many Troops in India.

Statements from American correspondents report two or more complete Chinese divisions as in northeast India. They have been organized and equipped by the United States. Altogether there seems to be a huge gathering of British, Chinese, Indian, and American troops in India.

India is the only area where an allied commander in chief has been appointed to take charge of a major offensive. As is well known this is Adm. Louis Mountbatten. No headquarters comparable to his has been established elsewhere within the Pacific area.

These preparations point to the strong probability that at least one of the coming attacks on Japan, and very probably the most important one, will be launched from India. As the weather will be good from now on, until next May or so, when the rainy season is again due, this attack may start at any time.

How can this be done?

The only land contact between India and the Japanese is the Burma frontier, which is about 600 miles long. The forces now guarding this line could be reënforced, and ordered to advance. This sounds easy, but in reality it is difficult.

Tough Frontier to Cross.

This frontier is a ridge of mountains, extremely rough, mostly covered with jungle. At the north end are the Chinese troops with some Americans. They are building a road—the Ledo road—into Burma, with the idea that it will eventually hook up with the Burma road. Descriptions published about this road indicate that the maximum force that could be supplied over it would not exceed three divisions, or say 50,000 men.

From this area, all the way down to the coast, there are only a restricted number of trails crossing the mountains. Only small forces could be used and supplied over these. At the coast itself, there is flat strip between the sea and mountains, but it is traversed by a multiplicity of streams, has much jungle and is a hard territory to operate in. There is only one road, but troops can be supplied partly by sea transportation. An advance along this coastal strip was tried last spring. It failed to work.

No matter how it is figured, only a small part of the vast armies in India could be used along the Burma frontier. The relatively small forces which can be used so far met about an equal number of Japs, with the natural result of establishing a stalemate.

It is therefore necessary to look elsewhere to discover where large allied armies can get at the Japanese. As there is no other land frontier, the armies must move overseas or remain out of the fighting.

DIES IN UNION STATION.

Fernando Murray, 87 years old, of Long Lane, Mo., died yesterday in the emergency hospital of the Union station after suffering an apparent heart attack in the station. Police learned he was en route to Elgin to visit a daughter, Mrs. F. K. Converse, 1020 Morton avenue.

ABANDON SHIP THEN GO ABOARD, SAIL IT TO PORT

U-Boat Fails to Sink Liberty Vessel.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Another Liberty ship is back at her home port ready for more war duty, after taking a torpedo explosion and an accidental ramming by another torpedoed ship.

The S. S. James Smith, built by the Richmond, Cal., yard of Permanent Metals corporation was bound for Brazil when her convoy was attacked at night, the war shipping administration reported today. The torpedo blast killed six merchant seamen and five navy crewmen, showered wreckage on another Liberty ship some distance away, and tore holes in the James Smith's deck that made it look like a perforated tin can," reported Cadet-Midshipman Donald F. Fennessey of Northampton, Mass.

Abandons the Ship.

The Smith got a gun into action, but the U-boat escaped. The vessel's master, Capt. William H. Aguilar of Vallejo, Cal., gave the order to abandon ship because the stern was completely wrecked and it seemed impossible for the vessel to float.

But it floated. A second torpedoed vessel was seen by survivors to crash blindly into the seemingly stricken ship, which still refused to go down.

Crew Climbs Aboard.

At daybreak Capt. Aguilar, 29 years old, ordered surviving members of his crew back aboard. They gave burial at sea to the dead. Then a naval patrol vessel picked up most of the crew and took the James Smith in tow to a West Indies port, a five day haul. With temporary repairs the battered vessel sailed for home under her own power.

The merchantman is operated by the Matson Navigation company, and now is commanded by Capt. Bernard G. Kuckens of Redwood City, Cal., Capt. Aguilar having been transferred. The ship is named for one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

CHICAGOAN WINS STAR FOR HEROIC BOMBING ATTACK

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Nov. 20.—A Chicagoan and two midwesterners, participants in a heroic air battle at terrific odds, have been awarded silver stars by Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the 5th air force.

They are Staff Sgt. Joseph A. Jachim, 1351 North Campbell avenue, Chicago, a rear gunner; Tech. Sgt. Harold D. Jackson of Dalton City, Ill., an engineer; Staff Sgt. Robert N. Krebs of Des Moines, Ia., nose gunner.

They were all members of the crew of a Liberator flown by Maj. Dale J. Thornhill of Shreveport, La., which spearheaded a bombing run over Wewak last Aug. 29. Thirty Jap fighters ripped into the bomber formation, but Thornhill and his copilot, 1st Lt. David W. Emch, Los Angeles, Cal., kept their plane on the course, enabling the entire formation to pass over the target, start fires and destroy grounded planes.

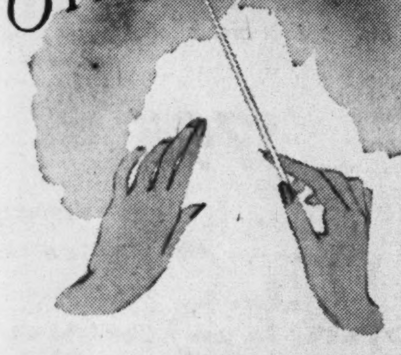
OTHERWORLDLY ADVENTURE IN



Organdy

How illusionary can the atmosphere of a room be? Enough to transport us to a new scene, inspiring and refreshing?

Interesting for an experiment. We chose a bedroom and sought to give it an atmosphere pervasive enough to displace, by its difference and charm, our familiar everyday impressions.

The result we might call, an Otherworldly Adventure in Organdy. At the door, you see clouds of white organdy in the room, misty, luminous white organdy. It is at the windows, it drapes the beds and several lamps. Refreshing as eau de Cologne, and quieting as intense silence. Decidedly otherworldly.

Yet not too ethereal, for there are swags of crimson satin over the windows, certainly one of the sweet pomps and vanities of this world. And the enormous red roses appearing occasionally on the white walls, velvety and luscious, are earthy in their rapture.

Moreover, an abundance of services and comforts is stressed by softly glowing mahogany chests, tables, beds and chairs, standing ready in their places.

But the room has unusual scope, its several influences implying that life and thought and feeling are old, deep and diverse. From Elizabethan romance, all frail blossoms and sorrows, comes the alabaster hand clasping the shaft of the organdy shaded lamp, tied with red ribbon.

Blackamoor lamps light up tufted divan chairs which suggest, with an Oriental inflection, their gentle ease. The old Prie Dieu in the corner is touchingly worn.

Decidedly otherworldly, our visitors say, an experience. Won't you come and try its effect on yourself?

AUSSIES PUSH ON AT SATTELBERG AIDED BY TANKS

Bombers Pound Japs in Guinea Advance.

Identify Transport

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—The navy announced today that a small vessel reported lost in a Southwest Pacific bulletin last Thursday was the destroyer transport McKean. The ship went down off Bougainville Nov. 17 after an attack by Japanese planes. A destroyer transport is a heavily armed transport ship. Built in 1919, the McKean had a displacement of 1,060 tons. She was equipped to carry landing barges and troops.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC HDQ., Nov. 21 [Sunday]—(AP).—Tank paced Australian soldiers are continuing to move slowly ahead against Japanese entrenched in hilly country around Sattelberg on the Huon peninsula of New Guinea, Gen. MacArthur's spokesman said today.

Previously, the Aussies in their jungle drive northwest of Finschhafen to Sattelberg, which overlooks the allies' positions because the Japanese are on a plateau, had been reported within a mile of their objective. The extent of the latest gain was not specified.

In addition to the light tanks, the Australians drew support for the second straight day from bombing and strafing planes.

Buka Air Base Bombed.

Mitchells and Marauders ranged north of Sattelberg along the coast, concentrating bombs and machine gun fire on enemy supply dumps. On Friday morning, attack planes swept the same sector as well as Japanese camp areas southwest of Sattelberg.

In the Solomons, the furious onslaught on enemy air bases at Buka continued, with Liberators dropping 72 tons of bombs and rendering the runways unserviceable.

Within the last few days American warships have blasted those bases with 101 tons of shells and bombers have pounded them with upward of 200 tons.

Buka is on the northern tip of Bougainville, the big island on which American forces have a beachhead at Empress Augusta bay.

On Bougainville's south coast, Liberators have dropped 43 more tons on the Kara air field.

South of Bougainville, at Treasury Island, two Japanese planes attacked a vessel entering the harbor, but their bombs missed and ships' anti-aircraft downed one of the raiders.

Liberators attacked the Japanese seaplane and floatplane base on Poporang Island and the air base on Ballale in the Shortlands.

Build Bougainville Roads.

WITH U. S. MARINES ON BOUGAINVILLE, Nov. 16 [Delayed]—(AP).—As U. S. marines pushed the Japanese back thru the jungles of Bougainville Island, construction battalions follow along closely.

Firm roads are being built on the coastal bog. Artillery and anti-aircraft emplacements increase in numbers daily. Clearings are being cut in the jungle.

Except for the foxholes and sporadic artillery fire, the beachhead at Empress Augusta bay now resembles a Pacific coast logging camp under construction. The allies have complete day time control of the air but the Japanese come over every night. Hospitals have been set up.

Light tanks are appearing in reasonable numbers. There are amphibious tractors to haul supplies to the forward fighting area. The feeling here is that the beachhead is firmly held, despite concentrations of Japanese at various places in the defense perimeter. The enemy so far has been unable to get any artillery into this area.

MRS. NORMA SWANSON.

An injunction restraining Arthur H. Swanson, 28 years old, a war worker, from molesting his wife, Norma, 23, of 3734 Campbell avenue, or interfering with the custody of their two children was issued by Superior Court Judge John J. Lupe yesterday. Mrs. Swanson charged her husband beat and tried to choke her, and attempted to take away the children on Nov. 18. Her attorney, Nathan M. Gomberg, said Mrs. Swanson sued for divorce in July, 1942, but became reconciled with her husband and dropped the action. She has another bill pending, he added, and this time intends to go thru with it.

Gen. De Witt Wins D.S.M. for Services in Alaska

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Award of the distinguished service medal to Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt for services in establishing defenses of the west coast and Alaskan areas was announced by the navy today. The citation said DeWitt collaborated with the Pacific fleet and North Pacific forces providing "great assistance in counsel and suggestion in connection with operations in the North Pacific area which resulted in the ejection of the Japanese from the Aleutian Islands."

WHAT THE YANKS TALK ABOUT: PIE, BUGS AND BOMBS

WITH U. S. MARINES ON BOUGAINVILLE, Nov. 16 [Delayed]—(AP).—Bugs and bombs and raisin pies—these are among the topics of conversation among United States marines on the American beachhead at Empress Augusta bay.

"The first thing about this place is the lizards," said 1st Lt. R. C. Coffey of Wauwatosa, Wis. "Last night a lizard crawled into my pants pocket and died. What a mess! And these are the only pants I've got."

"I had two land crabs, a dozen spiders, one centipede, an eight inch long praying mantis, and 5 million red ants with me in my foxhole last night," said 1st Lt. G. W. Sarbacher of Philadelphia.

"Did you hear what those Seebees did today?" asked Sgt. Michael Plain of New York City. "They baked a raisin pie in their mess down on Torokina! Wonder when we'll get some pastry."

JAPANESE GAIN ALONG TUNGTING FRONT IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 20 (AP).—Reënforced Japanese columns, supported by planes, have launched a new drive along a 100-mile front west of Tungting lake and advanced in some sectors 10 to 20 miles, the Chinese high command said today. It acknowledged the invaders had occupied Tzelo, a highway town 90 miles south of the Yangtze river port of Ichang, but said more than 2,000 Japanese had been slain.

A Chinese counter-offensive from the mountains west of Tzali on the Jap flank was said to be developing favorably. Chinese troops attacking the environs of Ichang were said to have scored further successes.

At the same time American fighter planes, supporting Chinese ground forces, attacked the Japanese in the Tungting lake and Salween river areas yesterday.

ALLIED PLANES POUND GERMAN EUROPE FOR FOURTH DAY IN ROW

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—British bombers, striking for the third time in three nights at the sources of vast quantities of Germany's war chemicals and poison gases, last night pounded Leverkusen, an industrial suburb of Cologne and today lighter allied planes struck Nazi targets in northern France and off the coast. Two German planes were downed without loss.

The Paris radio said the R. A. F. also was over Germany during the afternoon.

The daylight foray was a continuation of the intensive aerial offensive which has seen six heavy raids on Germany in four days.

Nazi raiders dropped bombs in one London district tonight during a brief attack but no casualties were reported, altho some persons were feared trapped in demolished buildings.

The principal goal for the R. A. F. last night was a group of plants belonging to the great I. G. Farbenindustrie chemical trust, known to produce ingredients for poison gas altho not the gas itself.

HOSPITAL CLERK HELD UP.

MOVE TO SPEED NAZI SURRENDER BELIEVED NEAR

Hint 'Big 3' Is Shaping 'Psychological Drive.'

LONDON, Nov. 21 [Sunday]—(AP).—A Reuters [British news agency] dispatch from Washington, D. C., early today said an announcement was expected soon in the United States capital on a meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Premier Stalin.

There has been no allied confirmation of any meeting at present of the three leaders, but axis sources for several days have hinted that a meeting was imminent, suggesting Cairo as the conference spot.

Speculation in London has suggested that one result of such a meeting would be a psychological offensive aimed to attract bomb shaken Germany's surrender when the allied armies strike in the spring.

Peace Feelers Rumored.

An allied declaration of principles for the treatment of defeated Germany was suggested as a possible means of hastening the end of the fighting. A similar appeal was made by Roosevelt and Churchill to Italy before her capitulation.

There have been fresh rumors of German peace feelers seeking a definition of what "unconditional surrender" would mean. One such rumor said German resistance on the home front was being bolstered by the uncertainty as to the country's probable fate.

May Set Invasion Date.

Another rumor said German military leaders had Turkish Foreign Minister Numan Menemencioglu sound out British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on the probable peace terms if they agreed to an armistice. Eden replied, according to this rumor, that the only term was "unconditional surrender."

The three allied leaders also may decide the date for the great assault on Hitler's European fortress from the west—promised for next spring—and possibly accompanied by an invasion thru the Balkans.

They may discuss a program for the general European political and economic reconstruction under allied supervision immediately after the war.

BUCHAREST WILL BE EVACUATED, RUSSIANS HEAR

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Moscow radio reported today that the Rumanian government had decided on the evacuation of Bucharest, Ploesti, Constanta, and other important centers following the American air raid last Sunday on Sofia, Bulgaria.

The broadcast said the Sofia raid "has made a powerful impression on the inhabitants of the Rumanian capital," and the weakness of the German anti-aircraft defenses at Sofia during the raid had led to the Rumanian decision.

This broadcast followed one by the Cairo radio which said the Bulgarian Black sea port of Varna had been evacuated.

LAVAL MAY GO IN PETAIN ROW, BRITISH BELIEVE

See Chance for Fall of Collaborationists.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—The belief grew in London tonight that collaborationist Pierre Laval's bloc might collapse in the face of the reported defiant determination of the Vichy chief of state, Marshal Henri Petain, to lead conquered France back to democratic government.

Lifting a week-long blackout of all mention of Petain, the Vichy radio went to elaborate lengths today to create the impression that the 87-year-old marshal still is functioning.

A Berlin foreign office spokesman was quoted in a Swiss dispatch as having given guarded confirmation of reports of a crisis at Vichy. The spokesman added, however, that "rumors" that Petain had resigned, "so far as is known at the Wilhelmstrasse, are nonsensical."

The Morocco radio had said a woman's voice announcing that "Marshal Petain has resigned" was heard on the Vichy radio earlier today.

Out of the welter of rumors from Vichy, the report of an open break between Petain and Laval, his German-supported chief of government, appeared substantiated.

Petain never has liked Laval. It was recalled that in December, 1940, Petain called a meeting at the Parc hotel and when Laval emerged he was arrested. His release was brought about by Otto Abetz, Nazi envoy to France. The danger to Laval's position now is believed to lie in the fact that he was in much better standing with the Nazis three years ago than today.

The Vichy radio broadcast a recording of a voice, purportedly that of Petain, designed to picture the marshal as laughing off reports that he was ill.

Move to Avert Fighting.

The French radio said Laval had presided at a cabinet meeting not attended by Petain, but had seen the marshal later and that the "chief of state" [Petain] had received a delegation from Normandy today.

Swiss reports, without confirmation, persisted that Petain was under house arrest. French politicians in Switzerland said Petain hoped by his threat to resign to bring about a showdown.

The marshal's reported plan to draft a democratic constitution, which the Nazis prevented, was viewed here as an attempt to make way for a regime that would be acceptable to the allies when France is freed. Petain recently told friends he was seeking a way to prevent a revolution between the Vichy regime and the French Committee of National Liberation when the Germans are driven out.

The resignation of Hubert la Gardelle, Vichy labor minister, was viewed as the first concrete evidence of a swerve of cabinet ministers away from Laval. Altho brought into the government by Laval, La Gardelle has been regarded as faithful to the marshal.

[According to a dispatch from Geneva, Switzerland, a non-French source said: "Petain's move would have reached far beyond Laval and even the Germans. He has established contacts on neutral soil, that is, not Switzerland."]

Still Insist on Trial.

ALGIERS, Algeria, Nov. 20 (AP).—Most Frenchmen today shrugged off Marshal Petain's reported troubles in Vichy.

"Vichy is still Vichy," said one source close to the Committee of National Liberation, adding that the committee still is determined to bring the marshal and all other Vichyites to trial as soon as they are caught.

Egypt's King and Queen Expecting Third Child

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 20 (AP).—Cairo press reports said today that King Farouk and Queen Farida are expecting the birth of their third child. They have two daughters, Princess Ferial, 5, and Princess Fawzia, 3.

SLAV PARTISANS BATTLE NAZIS ON TWO ISLANDS

Germans Land on Isles Below Fiume.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—Jugo-Slav Partisans under Gen. Josip [Tito] Broz grappled with the Germans tonight for the Islands of Krk and Crew, which command the approaches to Fiume, thru which Hitler has been pouring reënforcements to his southeastern Europe flank.

Nazi sea borne troops gained initial lodgements on both islands, and heavy but indecisive fighting erupted.

This was the most important of half a dozen Jugo-Slav fighting fronts. In central Bosnia the Partisans were pushed back slightly, but in the Croatian coastal area they threw back all Nazi attacks.

In eastern Serbia, it was said, the whole district of Boljevac has been cleared of occupation forces and the railway between Belgrade and Zajecar, 100 miles southeast, had been cut.

Report French Refuse to Reinstall Lebanese President.

ALGIERS, Algeria, Nov. 20 (AP).—The French committee of national liberation will comply with a British demand that Jean Helleu be replaced as delegate general in Lebanon, but still refuses to reinstall Riad Sohl as Lebanese president, a person close to the committee said tonight.

The committee has agreed to a recommendation by Gen. Georges Catroux, committee representative sent to Bierut to settle the controversy, to remove Helleu because of his hasty repressive measures.

France has control of the tiny Levant state under a league of nations mandate, but recently the Lebanese assembly voted to set up an independent state, leading to the current row which has stirred the middle east.

Catroux and Maj. Gen. Edward Louis Spears, British minister to Lebanon and adjoining Syria, were believed to be seeking some compromise on the Lebanese presidency which would allow a quick settlement of the dispute in accordance with Britain's committments to the Arab peoples.

The Morocco radio broadcast an announcement in which the French Committee of Liberation said it now was able to define its position with a view to speedily settling the dispute arising from the arrest of Lebanese officials after the chamber of deputies voted to throw off French control.

"A solution must be found within the framework of the mandate received from the League of Nations and in accordance with the promise of independence" made by the French in 1941 when Vichy control was overthrown, the statement said.

Turkey Informs Britains of Attitude on Aid Pact.

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Istanbul newspaper Sonposta said today that Foreign Minister Menemencioglu had "officially informed" the British government of Turkey's attitude "on the Turkish treaty of mutual assistance which was unanimously approved" at a secret parliamentary meeting of the People's party Wednesday night.

The newspaper added that other governments represented in Ankara had also been informed of the Turkish attitude.

Best judgment on this action by the party, the only one in Turkey, is that it marks no particular advance in Turkey's changing national policy, but is a logical development of the Cairo meeting between Menemencioglu and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

The Turkish-British mutual aid treaty, dated May 12, 1939, provides that the two powers agree to come to each other's assistance if attacked in the Mediterranean.

Husein Yalchin, editor of the newspaper Tanin, who rarely reflects the specific feeling of the government, but frequently that of the mass of pro-allied Turks, said, meanwhile, "there is no sense in saying Turkey will not take up arms unless she is attacked," and added:

"To say that at Cairo questions concerning the alliance with the British were discussed can only mean that questions concerning Turkey's entry into the war were discussed."

Learn Nazis Transfer 800 Yank Captives to Reich

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Approximately 800 of the 1,000 American prisoners of war who were in Italian internment camps last September have been transferred to Germany, according to word received today by the Red Cross. Names of the men were not included in advices received from the International Red Cross committee in Geneva, Switzerland.

BRITISH 5 MILE LUNGE WINS HILL TOWN IN ITALY

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Nov. 20 (AP).—Breaking thru German forward positions in the first heavy fighting on the Italian front in recent days, the British 8th army lunged forward five miles to capture Perano, it was announced today, thereby threatening an important inland sector of the Nazis' heavily fortified line behind the Sangro river.

Against heavy artillery fire, wretched weather and difficult terrain, the 5th army also made some gains north of Venafro along the western side of the front.

The capture of the village of Perano put the troops of Gen. Montgomery within less than a mile of the only bridge crossing the Sangro river between the coastal road and a point ten miles from the Adriatic.

Overlook Vital Road.

From their new vantage points in and near the village 8th army units could look across the river at a short section of an extremely important lateral road upon which the Germans are dependent for supplying large forces entrenched in the hills overlooking the Sangro.

This road extends from Sanvito Chietno on the Adriatic coast along a winding course inland thru Castel Frentano, Casoli, and Palena to Roccaraso. Along most of its distance it is well behind the river and screened from the British, but opposite Perano it loops down into a valley to within less than half a mile from the stream itself.

All allied gains were made against sharp opposition. Big guns on both sides kept the 5th army front ablaze. Heavy rains, deep mud, and swirling floods impeded all operations.

Capture of Rome Delayed.

The storm of the past week has washed out hopes of an allied entry into Rome at any time in the near future, particularly in view of the time that has been given the Germans to deepen their defenses in the present winter line to such an extent that swift exploitation of a breakthru at any point would be difficult if not impossible.

Allied headquarters also announced many casualties had been inflicted on the Germans by 8th army patrols which crossed the Sangro river near its mouth. The war bulletin said patrol clashes farther south and west near Rionero cost the enemy many casualties.

Air operations again were held to a minimum by bad weather, but there were a few good periods which gave fighters the opportunity to go after communications in Italy and Jugo-Slavia.

Yanks Bomb Bridge.

Near Cassino north of the Mignano front American A-36 Invaders bombed a bridge. German troops quartered in Barrea, northeast of Isernia, were strafed by Warhawks and Kittyhawks.

American Warhawks destroyed four German vehicles near the Adriatic port of Split in Jugo-Slavia and in the same area Spitfires damaged a locomotive and rolling stock.

On Thursday night R. A. F. Bostons bombed Lanciano, 20 miles south of Pescara on the Adriatic.

Three allied planes failed to return and two enemy planes were destroyed.

DETROIT POLES SPLIT WIDE ON SOVIET CLAIMS

Big Protest Meeting Is Set for Friday.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20 [Special].—Organization here last week-end of a group of Polish-Americans who disapprove the policy of the Polish government in exile in resisting claims of the soviet union to certain portions of Poland's pre-war territory has provoked a furore among the large Polish-American population of this city.

Resentment against the new organization, which has taken the name "Kosciuszko Legion of Detroit," by elements supporting the Polish government has led to the calling of a mass protest meeting by the central citizens' committee, a federation of political, religious, social and civic groups. This meeting is to be held Friday in Dom Polski hall.

Called Communist Body.

Representatives of the central citizens' committee have denounced the Kosciuszko Legion as a communist organization, altho they admit they have no evidence to support their charge. They contend the legion is representative of only about 5 per cent of the Polish-Americans in Detroit.

Sponsors of the legion, however, insist the movement is designed to benefit Poland and all Poles after the war and deny that it is communist or affiliated with communists either in the United States, Russia or Poland.

The Legion was organized at a series of meetings here Nov. 6 and 7. Speakers and organizers were the Rev. Stanislaw Orlemanski, of the Holy Virgin church of Springfield, Mass., and Dr. Oscar Lange, professor of political economy at the University of Chicago and formerly with the Polish university in Krakow, Poland.

Backs Return of Territory.

Detroit sponsors were Joseph Wedda, president of the Detroit Civil Service commission; State Senator Stanley Nowak, and Dr. W. T. Osowski, president of the Michigan Slav congress. Antony Kasmarczyk, a member of the Hamtramck board of education, was elected president.

The Legion lists among its aims the return to the Soviet union of such Polish territory as British and American authorities may consider rightfully belonging to Russia, and annexation by Poland of German East Prussia. The Legion calls for carrying on the war to the defeat of Nazism, adherence to the resolutions of the Moscow conference, and establishment of the future Poland as a full democracy.

"Don't Blame It On Us."

Also listed as an aim is the convincing of public opinion that neither the people of Poland nor Polish-Americans anywhere are responsible for policies of the Polish government in exile which has led to a sharpening of its relations with the United States, Great Britain, Russia and Czecho-Slovakia.

Joseph Stanowski, chairman of a committee of the Central Citizens' committee, referred to supporters of the legion as "radicals" and said that "patriotic Poles of Detroit" feel the legion should not defile the name of the great Polish hero, Kosciuszko, by using it for such an organization.

PROTEST RADIO BROADCAST BY EX-KING CAROL

Protests against permitting Ex-King Carol of Rumania to broadcast over a national network next Tuesday are being telegraphed to the state department by chapters of the Rumanian-American Alliance for Democracy, the national president of that organization, Thomas Costino Sr. of East Chicago, Ind., announced in Chicago yesterday.

"King Carol sold out Rumania and is only trying to get on the winning side for his own selfish gains," Costino declared.

Costino said the alliance is composed of church, social, and fraternal organizations of American citizens with Rumanian ancestry. The national membership exceeds 80,000 with about one-fourth of that number in Chicago and nearby cities.

John Manta, president of the East Chicago chapter, said the organization's protests prevented the entry of King Carol into this country a year ago last July and that it would continue to oppose recognition of any kind for King Carol.

10 JEWISH PAPERS SUSPENDED OVER PALESTINE RAID

Their Story Different from Official One.

BULLETIN.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 20 (AP).—Thirty persons were injured and the British district office at Tel Aviv was set afire today during demonstrations which followed a mass meeting protesting a government search for alleged illegal arms.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Nov. 20.—What has been officially described as "highly tendentious accounts of the search last Tuesday at Ramat Hakovesh [a Jewish village on the coastal plain] and given wide publicity calculated to mislead and inflame public opinion" has led to the suspension of nine daily Hebrew papers and a Jewish paper printed in German.

They had published a uniform statement about the event without submitting it for the required censorship.

The published version differed substantially from the official statement on the search, which said:

"It was reliably reported by security authorities that certain deserters [Jewish] from the Polish army were harbored by Ramat Hakovesh, that at this settlement there was a training camp for a unit of an illegal armed organization and that illegal arms were concealed in the settlement.

"Ramat Hakovesh was accordingly searched on Nov. 16 by a police unit acting in conjunction with Polish provost personnel and imperial [Indian] military units. Certain occupants were arrested."

The widely published Jewish account of the daylong search said there had been violence on both sides, including the forcible round-up of all male villagers inside a barbed wire enclosure. The official report said the police had maintained utmost restraint and had carried their task to completion with a minimum of force.

MOSLEYS FREED SECRETLY FROM BRITISH PRISON

Whisked Into Seclusion Despite Protests.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—Britain's pre-war Fascist leader, Oswald Mosley, and his wife were released secretly from Holloway prison before dawn today and whisked into seclusion as a nation-wide protest increased in tempo.

Oswald Mosley.

The Mosleys were reported to be in an Oxfordshire hamlet tonight, protected from the hue and cry against the government's decision to free them on the grounds of Mosley's general debility and phlebitis.

Orators at street corner rallies demanded bitterly today: "What are we fighting against—phlebitis or fascism?"

Described as Sick Man.

The former Black Shirt leader, whose second wedding in 1936 was attended by Adolf Hitler, was described by the sister of his first wife as a "very sick man" and depressed by his imprisonment since May, 1940. She said she believed the workers' protests were "extremely unfair."

Maj. Haden Guest, a Laborite, announced, however, that he would ask the home secretary, Herbert Morrison, in parliament "why, as medical and nursing services provided in Holloway prison are adequate for prisoners confined there, it is necessary for medical reasons to remove Sir Oswald and Lady Mosley from detention in that institution?"

The Communist Daily Worker commented that Mrs. Mosley, a sister of Hitler's former friend, Unity Freeman-Mitford, was "released without even the phlebitis pretext." [Phlebitis in inflammation of the veins.]

Protest Meeting Called.

Irate war workers bombarded both the home office and the prime minister's residence at No. 10 Downing street with resolutions of protest. A "gigantic protest rally" was called for Sunday evening in the London coliseum.

The London Labor Mayor's association of which Morrison was a member when he was mayor of Hackney, joined in the chorus of resentment, while the Furniture Workers' association declared in a resolution that Mosley "must be held morally involved in atrocities which have been committed against millions of people."

Mosley, muffled up in a heavy camel's hair coat, slipped out of a back exit from the prison with his wife about an hour before daybreak and crossed some tennis courts to an ambulance. He was not seen by newsmen and photographers who waited at the front door.

Release Is Conditional.

One report was that they were taken to the home of Mrs. Mosley's father at Mill cottage, Swinbrook, Oxfordshire, and one of Mosley's former followers said that the pair probably would be under some form of "house arrest."

Authorities emphasized that he may be sent back to prison if he violates the terms of his release. It was stated authoritatively that the detention order was only being suspended — not revoked — thereby leaving open the way for the government to change its decision.

The home office repeated today that there would be no explanation of Mosley's release until Morrison makes the promised "full explanation" when parliament reconvenes. Morrison, a Laborite and himself long a champion of workers' causes, has indicated he believes that workers will be satisfied when this explanation is made.

GAS DEATH HELD ACCIDENT.

A suicide verdict was returned yesterday at the inquest on the death of Benjamin Landeweer, 52 years old, 6834 Morgan street, motorman for the Chicago Surface Lines, who was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage at the rear of his home Friday.

Freed from Cell

Mrs. Oswald Mosley, who was reported in seclusion last night with her husband, after they had been freed secretly from Holloway prison in England.

CATCH FUGITIVE IRISH REBEL AID IN KITCHEN CHAIR

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 20 (AP).—Police today put an unspectacular end to the spectacular activities of Hugh McAteer, Irish rebel leader who slid down a rope of bedsheets to escape from a Belfast prison last January after serving two months of a 15-year sentence for treason.

Two constables on bicycles saw him walking along a path, chased him into a house, and found him sitting in a chair in the kitchen.

McAteer was the young chief of staff of the outlawed Irish Republican army who once warned the United States that American troops in Northern Ireland certainly would become involved in a "resumption of hostilities between Ireland and Great Britain."

FLAMES LAPPING AT THEM, YANKS FLY TO TARGETS

Pilot Tells of Blinding Smoke at Ploesti.

An eyewitness account of the epochal army air force raid on the Ploesti oil field in Rumania on Aug. 1 was given yesterday in Chicago by Capt. Royden Lebrecht, 24 years old, of Denison, Tex., who piloted one of the 170 planes which took part in the mission.

"Ships were going down on all sides of us," he said. "We got thru by a miracle. When we reached the target it was a mass of flame and smoke. The smoke was so dense that some of our planes collided in the air or hit smokestacks."

The bombing was a low level job and some of the American planes were knocked out of the air by explosions of oil tanks on the ground, Capt. Lebrecht said. The bottoms of some of the planes were scorched by the flames licking up from the burning field. The ships actually broke off tree twigs, so low was the flight level.

35 Missions; No Casualties.

"We're lucky; we must have been stroked with rabbit fur," he said, in referring to the record of 35 missions without a casualty among his 10 man crew.

Capt. Lebrecht flew into Chicago in a Liberator bomber with 1,200 air hours and 71 missions to its credit. It still wears the pinkish paint which was standard in the Mediterranean theater. Despite 50 bullet holes, it still has three of the original four motors. Its name is The Squaw.

Capt. Lebrecht brought as a passenger Brig. Gen. Uzal G. Ent, chief of staff of the 2d air force, formerly commanding general of the 9th bomber command, based in the middle east.

General Praises Their Courage.

Gen. Ent stressed the courage of the men who took part in the Ploesti raid, many of whom did not expect to return. "However," he said, "things got too fast to think of our danger when we started flying on the deck." ["Flying on the deck" is an army phrase for low altitude flight.] He told of one gunner who, when the plane was nearing its home base after the raid and the engineer called, "Wheels down and locked" [a preparation for landing], exclaimed: "Those are the best words I ever heard!"

Gen. Ent said that of the 170 planes in the raid 164 reached the target and 117 got back to their base. Not all of the missing 53 crashed. Many probably landed safely in neutral or hostile territory.

Gen. Ent, who led the Ploesti raid, today will present the congressional medal of honor to Arthur H. Jerstad, 1725 Park avenue, Racine, Wis., for his son, Maj. John L. Jerstad, who lost his life in the raid. The ceremony will take place in the Holy Communion church in Racine at 3 o'clock.

Done the Hard Way; Last Over Target.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 20 [Special].—Staff Sgt. Benjamin J. Warmer III., home from heroic exploits as a combat airman, told today of "rolling a natural" across Sicilian skies—seven German planes downed by his blazing Fortress guns in a few minutes of vicious fighting.

The giant flyer—he is 6 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 240 pounds—came home for a 30 day visit after 50 bombing missions in the Mediterranean theater. He is the son of Superior Judge Benjamin F. Warmer of Ontario, Cal., is a graduate of the University of California.

Fort Called "Patches."

Warmer was waist gunner in a Flying Fortress called "Patches," so named because it was ventilated with 100 holes and barely got back from an early raid over Messina.

Gerbini was the target. The date was July 5. His ship, flying right wing in the formation, was the last one over the target and started getting hit five minutes before reaching it.

"We had to fight all the way on the bomb run," Warmer related. "They came roaring at me and I started my gun clucking and bagged them as they came.

"We were five minutes off the target when I saw a Messerschmitt 110 hanging out from a group of 24 attacking one of our crippled Fortresses. He came in at us off the right wing at about our level. I pumped away and he burst into flames.

Two Foes Bail Out.

"The next ship swept in just in front of my right wing. He went into a banking turn, started smoking and the Jerry pilot bailed out. Another one peeled off below and I gave him 20 or 25 rounds. He, too, bailed out.

"Another Messerschmitt was coming in at the crippled bomber. As the Jerry was making a turn, I picked him up and fired all the way down under his tail. He went into a stall and began leafing down, then crashed.

"I ran out of ammunition about then, but I couldn't wait. I ran a string of bullets over my shoulder, feeding the gun that way.

"Numbers five and six went down in smoke after taking short bursts."

"The last one, another Messerschmitt, came from below and right off the tail. He cut in front of my gun and I gave him about 20 rounds as he passed. He went into a vertical dive and was finished."

RECORDING FEE DRIVE ON MOVIE INDUSTRY NEXT

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Counsel for the American Federation of Musicians [AFL], seeking to force record companies to pay into a union unemployment fund a fee on each record made, asserted today the union would "open a second front" against the movies when the principle was established.

The statement was made by Joseph A. Padway before a special war labor board panel hearing the case of the union and the record companies after Ralph F. Colin, counsel for the Columbia Broadcasting System's record company subsidiary, observed that the union "conveniently forgets" the juke boxes and movies in its demand.

In an effort to obtain its demands from record and transcription companies the union banned its members from making records 16 months ago.

JAPS CAN'T TAKE IT, ASSERTS ACE WHO DOWNED 20

American warplanes "can both dish it out and take it," while those of the Japanese can only "dish it out," and when the battle is even the Japanese "run like hell," Lt. Kenneth A. Walsh, the 28 year old marine ace who has downed 20 Jap planes, said yesterday in Chicago. He said the only edge the Japanese Zero can claim is in maneuverability.

Lt. K. A. Walsh.

Walsh's record is topped only by his fellow marine, Maj. Joe Foss, who has shot down 26 Jap planes. Walsh, who once was Foss' instructor, bagged two enemy craft in his first combat flight last April in the South Pacific and won the distinguished flying cross.

He landed at Glenview Naval Air station late yesterday afternoon, after being delayed in Akron, O., by weather conditions, and had to cancel talks he was to make at Glenview and at naval technical centers in Chicago.

He is on a tour of naval pre-flight schools and technical training centers which will end at St. Mary's college in California on Thanksgiving day.

WAGE INCREASE GRANTED TO 2,000 DAIRY WORKERS

The war labor board in Washington, D. C., yesterday decreed a wage increase of $2.80 a week for about 2,000 inside dairy workers of 85 milk companies affiliated with the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., of Chicago. The member companies of the dealers' group handle about 90 per cent of the milk market business in the Chicago area. The pay boost, which was made retroactive to May 1, is subject to approval by Economic Stabilizer Vinson.

MYSTERY BLAST ROCKS LONDON'S NIGHT CLUB BELT

Secret German Weapon? Probably Not.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—A mysterious explosion wrecked a five story building in London's night club belt of Soho last night and for a while had Londoners discussing the possibility that the Germans had employed a "secret weapon."

During the day enough evidence was accumulated to dispel the supposition that a noiseless invisible projectile might have caused the blast, or that it was due to any enemy action, but the exact cause remained obscure. Authorities investigated the blast but did not announce their findings.

The explosion — London's third mysterious blast in a week—knocked out the walls of a building on a narrow street where the sales rooms of most major film companies are situated and shattered windows for a quarter of a mile around.

Explanations Offered.

One report was that film had caught fire in the cutting room of a company which makes documentary movies for the ministry of information. Another was that the blast might have been caused by a faulty gas main. This is the reason attributed unofficially for the two other recent explosions.

Until it developed that the explosion probably was due to some such cause as these, the barber shop quarter backs of London's aerial warfare league kicked around the idea that a high trajectory rocket shell might have dropped on Soho or that a silent glider bomb did the damage.

Old timers recalled that the first shots from the Germans' "Big Bertha" long range artillery in World War I. mystified Parisians when they first fell into the French capital from a forest 75 miles away. Until then no gun had been known to shoot so far.

Nazis Tell of London Raid.

The Germans had seemed to add to the mystery today by announcing that "German aircraft bombed selected targets in London last night," but this claim was disputed by London officials. They said no bombs, guns, or sirens were heard.

Authorities made no announcement as to loss of life or injuries from the blast.

NEW ORLEANS EDITOR ACCEPTS POST WITH OWI; SUCCEEDS HOYT

G. W. Healy Jr.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—George W. Healy Jr., managing editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, has been selected to succeed Palmer Holt as director of domestic operations of the office of war information. Hoyt's resignation — as he stipulated when he agreed to take the job last June — will become effective shortly after Jan. 1. Healy, who is chairman of the Associated Press Managing Editors association, is scheduled to step into the job at that time. Hoyt will return to the Morning Oregonian, Portland, of which he is publisher.

Elmer Davis, OWI director, and Hoyt offered the post to Healy some weeks ago, it was learned, and recently received a favorable answer. Healy is vice president of the Times-Picayune Publishing company, which publishes the New Orleans States, afternoon paper, as well as the morning Times-Picayune. He is not yet 40.

HIDES A LOVER IN HER HOME FOR 16 MONTHS

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—The story of a 33 year old woman who hid a lover for 16 months in a coffin-like space—11 feet by 3—under her parlor came out of Chelmsford court today. By the official account related in court, the secret was so well kept that the husband never suspected. But, the court was told, the lover suspected that three other men also were friendly with the woman. He emerged and the police seized him on a charge of desertion from the French army. The woman was sentenced to a month in jail for helping to conceal a deserter.

Sgt. M. C. Schwermer.

Staff Sgt. Milton C. Schwermer of the army air forces, who on Oct. 21 was listed missing in action in the European theater, is now reported to be a prisoner of war in Germany, his sister, Mrs. M. J. Johnson, 2837 Cullom avenue, said yesterday. Schwermer was lost after his Flying Fortress participated in a raid on Muenster, Germany, on Oct. 10. The news that he is safe was telegraphed by the war department to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schwermer, 921 Green street, Michigan City, Ind. Schwermer was the lower turret gunner on the Fortress.

GRAND JURORS CALL DR. LANDS IN TYLER DEATH

Quiz McNealy 2 Hours in Secretary's Suicide.

Dr. Victor A. Lands, the young resident physician at Wesley Memorial hospital who altered County hospital records to conceal the suicide of Marjorie Tyler's death, was subpenaed yesterday to appear tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. before the grand jury which is conducting the third investigation in the case.

He waited two hours to go before the jury yesterday. He was in the jury room only a few minutes. When he came out, he said he had been asked his name and then served with the order to reappear.

Physician Issues Statement.

Dr. Lands also issued a statement expressing his belief that the case of Miss Tyler is a "medical" one rather than a "detective" problem.

"The facts in the case were obvious," he said. "It was a matter of unraveling a complex knot of threats with logic and reason, with an attempt to verify the facts rather than consider personalities. At no time has there been anything to shroud or conceal, as far as I am concerned. I feel I am an innocent bystander caught up in a world of confusion. I feel that a great man [Dr. Raymond W. McNealy, whom Miss Tyler served as secretary], one of the greatest surgeons of our time, has been maligned without justification. I was motivated at all times by what I think were my best instincts. I have no doubt that the facts in this case indicate it should be treated in retrospect as a medical problem rather than a detective problem."

Woman Friend Also Recalled.

Miss Helen Peck, 37 years old, 321 Belden avenue, a friend of Miss Tyler, also was ordered to return tomorrow. She said she has given State's Atty. Courtney several letters which she received from Marjorie's mother, Mrs. C. V. Tyler, of Plano, referring to Marjorie's mental state.

Eleven witnesses were heard by the jury yesterday, and Dr. McNealy, the last called, remained the longest in the jury room. He entered at 5 p. m., and did not leave until nearly 7 p. m.

Dr. McNealy is chief of staff at County hospital and chief surgeon at Wesley Memorial hospital. He was boar hunting in Tennessee when she was found unconscious Nov. 10 in her apartment at 223 East Superior street, her body lying on an ironing board, and her head over an open gas jet.

Recognized by Train Porter.

H. J. Callopy, 1143 East Marquette road, a Pullman conductor, met Dr. McNealy in the annex to the jury room and said he recognized the surgeon as a passenger on the train which left Chattanooga the day Miss Tyler was found.

Dr. Lyman A. Perkins, Kendall county coroner, said he will hold an inquest into Miss Tyler's death Friday at 9 a. m. in the court house in Yorkville. "Our main purpose," he said, "will be to establish a motive."

THREAT OF TEAR GAS AIDS POLICE IN BOOKIE RAID

Chief John McGinnis, new head of the county highway police, threatened to use tear gas yesterday when operators of an alleged handbook refused to open the heavy door of their place in the basement of a tavern at 4817 65th street, in Stickney township, south of Chicago airport.

Women in the place screamed with dismay when they heard the tear gas threat, and the door was opened. Chief McGinnis and his men said they found 68 men and 18 women patrons, six of the men were arrested on charges of being keepers of a gambling establishment, and one was seized as an inmate.

Finger prints of the seven men arrested were sent to the Chicago bureau of identification to determine whether they have criminal records. The raiders confiscated a blackjack table and handbook equipment. Justice of the Peace Henry Pendl will hear the charges Friday in the Willow Springs county highway police station.

CLUB MASSEUR DIES.

Oscar Lindquist, 63 years old, 3153 Broadway, masseur at the Lake Shore club, died in St. Luke's hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Nov. 12 when he slipped on a wet floor and fell, fracturing his skull.

DIVORCE DECREE KILLED; JUDGE JAILS WITNESS

Husband No. 2 Brings About Inquiry.

A divorce decree granted on Nov. 18, 1941, to Mrs. Marjorie E. Howard Bomson, 40 years old, from James H. Howard, New York insurance salesman, was vacated yesterday in Chicago Heights City court by Judge Robert A. Meier Jr. on the ground that the decree was procured on fraudulent testimony.

The court stated that such testimony was directed to two questions—namely: the years of residence in Illinois and the wilful desertion by a spouse.

Suits Filed by Both.

Investigation of the divorce resulted from a petition filed on Sept. 8 by Nat S. Ruvel, attorney for Stanley Bomson, 52, of 7300 South Shore drive, to whom Mrs. Howard was married six days after her divorce from Howard. Mrs. Bomson, who now lives at 640 Harrison street, Oak Park, later filed suit for separate maintenance in Superior court.

Miss Min Greengard, 38, of 3810 Gladys avenue, a witness in the divorce proceedings and again during the investigation, was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail and fined $100 after she was found guilty of contempt of court.

Testimony in Conflict.

She testified that she had known Mrs. Bomson since January or February of 1941. Judge Meier said her first testimony when the Howards were divorced, was that she had known Mrs. Bomson three years. The motion of Miss Greengard's attorney, George Crane, to vacate the order was continued until Dec. 4.

Miss Greengard denied that Atty. Ruvell struck her in his office on Nov. 5, when she was being questioned in the case, but admitted the excitement over her examination caused her to faint. Atty. Victor Neumark had charged in court on Nov. 6 that a blow by Ruvell had caused Miss Greengard to lose consciousness. His statement later was ordered stricken from the record.

GIRLS TESTIFY AT YANK'S TRIAL IN ATS KILLING

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Louisa Price, 18 year old auxiliary territorial service private, danced with an American soldier the night before her partly clothed body was found in the undergrowth at the foot of the Wrekin, a Shropshire beauty spot, seven witnesses, most of them ATS girls, testified at a United States army court-martial in the West Midlands today. However, no one identified American air force Sgt. Michael Pihosh, 22 years old, of Cleveland, O., who is accused of the murder of the Price girl, as ever having been seen in her company.

High spot of the proceedings came when Pvt. Dorothy Davies picked out one man from two American soldiers in the court as the man she and the dead girl had known as "Cookhouse Slim." Later ATS Corp. Miriam Pardoe identified a different soldier as "Slim."

Defense Opens Case.

The court, which is being held in an officers' club, resembled a schoolroom today as medical witnesses drew on a large sized blackboard illustrations of the various tests for blood grouping and of the injury to the dead girl's left breast.

During the afternoon the defense opened its case by calling several ATS girls who told of the good time they had had at the dance, which both Pihosh and Miss Price attended. Miss Price, known as "Blackie" by her friends because of her dark hair, was described as a keen jitterbug.

Lt. Jack Coffin, who is aiding in Pihosh's defense, said the defense would establish that Miss Price had danced a tango between 10:30 and 10:50 o'clock the night of the murder and also would account for Pihosh's activities from 10:40 that night until the next morning.

Girls Salute Court.

The ATS girls saluted the president of the court as they entered. On the stand they all spoke so softly that the prosecutor had to repeatedly urge them to raise their voices.

The court has arranged to sit all day tomorrow, but it seems doubtful if the case will end before Monday.

Miss Price's body, partially clothed, was found on the morning of Sept. 9. A blood stained handkerchief bearing the last five figures of Pihosh's army serial number was found near the body. Special testimony showed there was no sign of rape.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 20.—Calls for "aggressive" action on the problem of illegitimacy brought information in the assembly yesterday that health boards were arranging for lectures on birth control.

Army and Legion Join in Investigations.

munist dominated. She is a member of the "master" committee of the Communist party and was in charge of distribution of Communist pamphlets at the University of Chicago and at Northwestern university. In 1940, '41, and '42 she was an instructor in the Chicago Workers' school at 64 West Randolph street, operated by the Chicago Communists and out of which the Red Abraham Lincoln school now at 30 West Washington street has grown. She was active in the campaign to free Earl Browder.

On Bargaining Committee.

Evelyn Fargo, member of the union bargaining committee, born in Chicago of parents who came from Hungary. Went to work at the plant in June, 1942. She is associated with the American Youth congress and is a member of the International Workers' order, a Red affiliate. One of the most active agitators in the plant.

Lillian Portnoy, union steward; she is president of the Victor Barron branch of the Young Peoples Communist League and distributed Communist literature at many party mass meetings and gatherings. She formerly was a typist employed by the WPA.

Swanson and Gertrude Selig on Friday afternoon led a group of 20 among their union followers to The Tribune office to protest against this newspaper's disclosures. Both denied they are Communists at that meeting with the city editor. They were told they would be given space to deny categorically the 11 specific charges made in last Thursday morning's paper, if they would allow themselves to be photographed as an assurance of their sincerity of purpose. They did not accept the offer.

Deny Charges in Pamphlets.

After this call the Communists quickly printed pamphlets denying THE TRIBUNE's charges and attacking the paper in violent invective. Miss Selig, who obtained permission to resume her maiden name after she divorced Irving Keith, was particularly aggressive in her meeting with the Tribune editor. Keith, her former husband, after the divorce, was killed while fighting in Spain with the Communist Abraham Lincoln brigade.

William Sennet, alias Sidelski, whose real name is Snesetzky, was one of the chief Communist agitators at the plant prior to his induction into the army six months ago. There were hints at the time that his plant activities might have brought about his induction. Sennett was editor of the communistic Studebaker Pilot, ostensibly the official organ of local 998. He was an instructor at the Chicago Workers school in 1935, 1938, and 1940, a former west side Young People's Communist league organizer. He was chairman of the National Youth day in 1934 and a member of the Youth Section Against War and Fascism about the same time.

Explains Legion's Activity.

Atty. Libonati issued an official statement disclosing how the Legion Americanism committee thru legionnaire workers in the plant has been conducting its independent investigation. The statement said:

"The American Legion at its national convention held at Omaha in Sept. of 1943 stated: 'We urge that lockouts, strikes, deliberate delays, profiteering, unjustifiable absenteeism, and other forms of selfish interference with war production be deemed treason and be dealt with accordingly.'

"Information has come to me from Legionnaires on the ground at the Chicago Studebaker plant that conditions are being created by a small minority that are un-American and should be investigated by proper authorities.

"These Legionnaires further inform me that the management is trying to do the job of production and that the great majority of the workers there, are doing their job, but this small minority whose activities are pernicious are creating conditions that are deplorable as far as the war production effort is concerned.

"But worse yet is the campaign of education that is being carried on there by this group, teaching the advantages of communism as a political and social institution without setting forth the meris of our form of government and the benefits of our social and industrial institutions.

"The distribution on workers' benches of Communist literature such as the Daily Worker without distribution of American treatises on the advantages and benefits of our form of government and its social and industdial institutions is in my judgment an un-American activity.

"We of the American Legion stand opposed to literature which would tend to teach socialism, collectivism, regimentation or other philosophies foreign to our constitutional government.

Hails Patriotic Majority.

"The fact that this plant has won the army and navy "E" awards and star reflect no credit upon this minority which is actively engaged in un-American activities. The credit belongs to the large majority who are patriotic, loyal Americans, who are opposed to this small group.

"The Americanism committee of the Cook county council will be presented with this problem at its regular meeting Tuesday night, for whatever action it deems advisable to recommend to the Cook county council of the American Legion at its next meeting Dec. 1."

MARIE NASH.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 [Special].—Marie Nash, blonde soprano star of musical comedy and operetta, was married today to Roger Brill of Washington in the Little Church of Fort Lincoln cemetery, in nearby Maryland. The wedding, attended by 100 guests, Climaxed a five weeks' romance. Mrs. Rufus Carey Nash of Chicago and Mrs. Edith S. Brill of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., mothers of the bride and bridegroom, were present. Miss Nash was given in marriage by her uncle, Harry Hanson of Chicago.

INQUIRY ASKED INTO DEATH OF WOMAN IN LAKE

An inquiry into the death, supposedly by drowning, of Mrs. Abigail Allen, 41 years old, Ogden Dunes [Ind.] fisherwoman, was demanded yesterday by M. Liedy Olmstead, administrator of her estate at Michigan City, Ind.

Mrs. Allen disappeared on Oct. 13 and her body was found on a Lake Michigan beach near Ogden Dunes six days later. A neighbor had reported seeing her drift into the lake in a rowboat with only one oar.

Olmstead said he was directing the attention of State Police Supt. Don F. Stiver at Indianapolis to the fact that head bruises were found on Mrs. Allen, that she still wore red anklets, which he contended would not have stayed on a body in the stormy lake five or six days, and that no trace ever was found of her boat or its oars. The administrator said he believed the neighbor might have been mistaken.

Union Authorizes Probes of Strikes by Members

Authority to investigate work stoppages involving members and to take necessary action to prevent a recurrence was given to national officers of the CIO United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers of America yesterday by the union's executive board at a meeting in the headquarters at 188 West Randolph street.

U. S. PROBES BAN ON NEGRO LABOR AT EAST ALTON

An investigation to determine whether the Western Cartridge company, East Alton, Ill., discriminates against Negroes in its employment policies was ordered yesterday by Elmer W. Henderson, midwest regional director of the President's committee on fair employment practices.

Henderson said the investigation would start at once and that he would take appropriate action under the executive order setting up the committee.

The company issued a statement defending it's hiring policies and welcoming an investigation. Because of the hostile attitude toward Negroes of residents of the East Alton area, the company statement said, it was feared that the hiring of Negroes would cause at least a partial shutdown.

The investigation was requested by William H. Spencer, regional war man power commission director. Spencer told Henderson that the company, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of small arms ammunition, employed approximately 13,000 workers in the East Alton plant, but "does not have one Negro employe among them." The United States employment service has referred many Negroes to the plant, he added.

Spencer said records show that the company hires a "substantial percentage" of white workers referred by the employment service for work in the East Alton plant, but no Negro workers ever have been employed. He called attention to the fact that Negro workers have been employed in the United States Cartridge company plant in St. Louis, Mo., 25 miles from East Alton.

Both Western Cartridge and United States Cartridge are subsidiaries of the Olin corporation.

According to a man power commission spokesman, no Negroes live in East Alton and that there are none working in two other war plants there.

Under the President's executive order forbidding employment discrimination in war industries, it is possible to cancel war contracts and withdraw WMC services from offenders.

DEMAND GROWS FOR 25 BILLION CUT IN SPENDING

Army's 13 Billion Refund Stirs Congressmen.

of its 71 billion dollar appropriation for the fiscal year which will end next June 30. Part of the savings will be effected, it was said, by plans of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, to reduce the 8,200,000 man goal of the army by 548,000 men to 7,652,000 men.

On Friday congress learned the navy is expecting to save between 4 and 5 billion dollars, which, combined with the army saving, would make approximately 18 billion dollars that would be returned to the federal treasury. Rep. Harry R. Sheppard [D., Cal.], chairman of the house subcommittee on naval appropriations, promised a detailed report from the navy next week.

During the week five ammunition plants employing more than 43,000 workers were closed at the order of the war department. It was explained that the army has huge surplus stocks of ammunition the plants were producing.

Seek Civilian Production.

These and other closings brought congressional agitation for reorganization of war production with a view to turning industry into the production of scarce civilian goods.

Military and war production officials have refused to give any figures on overproduction, emphasizing that production of weapons is restricted by military security. They said plants would be closed whenever surpluses arise and discounted the possibility of serious overproduction of war materials.

"The army and navy actions make it clear that with any kind of management and elimination of things we do not need the federal budget can be trimmed 25 billion dollars below what it is for this year," said Rep. Taber.

No Effect on Taxes.

The voluntary budget reductions of the army and navy would not affect the need for new taxes, treasury officials said. Tax collections are still far below war expenditures.

American war costs had been estimated by the national industrial conference board as more than three times those of the British empire. American expenditure for the current fiscal year has been estimated at 104 billion dollars as against 31 billion dollars for the British empire.

Reduction of American expenditures by 18 billions to 86 billion dollars would place American expenditures at slightly less than three times those of the British empire. The United States will collect about 40 billion dollars in taxes during the current fiscal year, it has been estimated, while the British empire collects about 25½ billion.

Nab Bandit in 8 Minutes Thru Victim's Phone Call

Eight minutes after he had forced Mrs. Evelyn Bright, 22 year old Negro clerk, into the back room of the Pekin Cleaners and Hatters, 223 East Garfield boulevard, where there was a telephone on which she summoned police, and had escaped with $5 yesterday, Cecil Johnson, 18, Negro bus boy of 5834 South Park way, was arrested. Sgt. Edward Keen of Wabash avenue police, who seized him, said Johnson, a former inmate of the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles, confessed robbing 15 cleaning establishments of $600 in a period of several weeks.

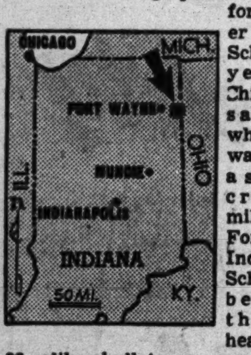
TWO STATES JOIN TO TRACK DOWN AUTO MURDERER

Indiana state police have enlisted the aid of Chicago police in a search for the slayer of Jack T. Scheine, 39 years old, Chicago herb salesman, whose body was found in a shallow creek 16 miles east of Fort Wayne, Ind., Friday. Scheine had been shot thru the head with a .32 caliber bullet.



Scheine's blood stained automobile was found early yesterday near the heart of the Fort Wayne business district. Scheine's hat also was found in the car. Police believe the slayer, after abandoning the car, headed toward Chicago with Scheine's wallet, which contained about $60.

Scheine, en route to New York from Chicago, last was seen Thursday night with a young man who wore the uniform of a marine corps private with medals and a Guadalcanal service stripe. Detective Estel Bemenderfer of the Indiana state police said Scheine picked up the marine outside Chicago.

Bemenderfer said that three Chicago addresses were found on Scheine. They were: 1310 Jackson boulevard, 517 North Clark street, and 750 South Spaulding avenue, the latter being that of Scheine's widow, Ann, 40. She told Detectives Thomas Ladd and Albin Kunker of the Chicago homicide bureau that she and Scheine had agreed to a marital separation at 1 p. m. Thursday, and that Scheine had left for New York soon afterward.

GRAVES RACKET BRINGS ANGUISH TO AGED PEOPLE

Elderly persons unable to subdue their fears that their mortal remains will have no resting place after death suffer most from the perpetual care racket attributed to some Cook county cemeteries, Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett said yesterday.

He made public typical letters among the 1,500 complaints he has received since beginning his cemetery trust fund investigation on Sept. 1. In addition, he said, some 500 telephone complaints have come in, and scores of victims have called at his offices in person.

"The elderly sufferers know their days are numbered and the practices of the perpetual care racketeers have filled them with a horrible dread that the graves they own may not be their final resting places because of a $5 fee overlooked or unpaid or some other type of trick clause in their trust deed," Barrett said.

Suit Filed Against Eight.

Suits charging fraudulent use and misapplication of perpetual care funds have been filed against eight Cook county cemeteries and others are in preparation. Those already sued are Chicago Brith Abraham, Glen Oak, Independent Order Brith Abraham, Oak Lawn, Oakridge, Ridgewood, Rosehill, and Woodlawn.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Albert F. Meserow, who is in charge of the investigation, said complaints now are being received from points as distant as New York, California, and Tennessee, from relatives of persons buried in Cook county cemeteries.

Disclose Typical Letters.

"Chicagoans who have just lost loved ones have telephoned us sometimes a few hours before a funeral to ask what to do about large or unjustified bills for which payment has been demanded before a burial could take place," Meserow said.

Typical of the complaints received, Meserow said, are the following:

Mrs. E. H. wrote that Rosehill charged her $10 to remove a tree that had grown under a stone that was on a so-called perpetual care lot purchased 20 years ago. Perpetual care, it seemed, did not include such services.

Miss E. M. K. told of being charged $15 by Woodlawn to have the name of her lot's owner changed on the cemetery's books.

E. G. R. enclosed a bill for $76 from Oakridge for annual care at $4.50 a year for a lot on which he never found evidence of any care having been provided.

J. F. S. wrote that "perpetual care was part of the deed of six lots I bought from Oaklawn in 1924. For a few years reasonable care was given, but there has been little or none for 13 years. I had to pay extra for a grass lawn which for lack of care died by fall."

A. P. charged the I. O. B. A. cemetery has been collecting $10 a year for grass cutting.

Meserow said only the initials of the complainants were disclosed to protect them against retaliation.

FOR WAR BONDS • THIRD WAR LOAN

YOU'VE GOT TO BE GOOD . . .

You'll be up there in good company when you fly with the A.A.F.!

You'll be on the same team with fighters who knocked out the Luftwaffe over Salerno . . . with bombing crews that blasted Schweinfurt and blew Ploesti off the map . . . with hunters who tracked a Jap fleet to the Bismarck Sea, and bagged every ship that flew the red-ball flag.

You'll be up there in the "big leagues" . . . and to make it, you've got to be good . . . and that puts it up to you!

If you think you've got what it takes to fly . . . if you're willing to work long hours, on the ground as well as "upstairs" . . .

Then maybe you, too, can win your wings as Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot...

And fly and fight with the A.A.F. . . . . the greatest team in the world!

MEN OF 17 . . . Go to the nearest Aviation Cadet Examining Board; see if you can qualify to join the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. If you qualify, you will receive the Enlisted Reserve insignia . . . but will not be called for training until you are 18 or over.

Begin now to prepare yourself, mentally and physically, to be a Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot in the A.A.F. Bone up on math, physics, history, geography . . . all important subjects for a member of the Air Forces. Above all, study hard . . . and keep your mind alert. For the A.A.F. wants your training as an Aviation Cadet to be second to none in the world . . . so that when you win your wings, you'll be the toughest and smartest flyer who ever burned up the sky!

Toughen your body, too. For, as a member of a bomber crew or a fighter pilot, other men will depend on your "staying power," and you will depend on theirs. Meanwhile, see your local Civil Air Patrol officers about taking C.A.P. Cadet training—also see your High School Principal or Adviser about the recommended courses of the Air Service Division of the H. S. Victory Corps. Both afford valuable pre-aviation training.

TO WIN YOUR SILVER WINGS . . .

You'll start your A.A.F. training in one of America's leading colleges (after a brief conditioning period). Here, in 5 months, you will be given the equivalent of a year of college training. From the College Training Detachment you will go on to 8 months of full flight training.

When you win your wings as a Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot, you will get an extra $250 uniform allowance . . . and your pay will be $246 to $327 a month.

And after the war you will be qualified for leadership in the world's greatest new industry—Aviation!

See your nearest Aviation Cadet Examining Board—or the commanding officer of the College Training Detachment nearest you—for complete details.

NAVY TRANSPORT PLANE CRASHES IN BRAZIL; 18 DIE

17 Americans Are Killed in Flames.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Nov. 20 (AP).—A United States naval transport plane crashed in the mountains about 30 miles east of here Friday afternoon, killing all of the 18 occupants, it was announced tonight by the Brazilian government news agency. The announcement said the plane, bound for Rio, burst into flames after the crash. Of the 18 aboard all were Americans except one passenger, a Brazilian.

Forts Collide; Believe 10 Dead.

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP).—A Flying Fortress collided with another Fortress, then crashed and burned 20 miles east of Tampa yesterday, killing at least eight and probably 10 men, MacDill field public relations announced today. Altho damaged and with one motor knocked out, the second Fortress reached the field safely.

The planes were on a training flight. The number on the bomber that crashed was not immediately established, but the army said 10 men were believed aboard. One of the eight bodies was identified as that of Staff Sgt. Charles H. Knop, engineer, son of Mrs. Caroline Knop, Sparta, Ill.

Lost in Navy Plane Crash.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Nov. 20 (AP).—Search was discontinued today for the remaining seven of eight men aboard a navy PBY flying boat that crashed into the Gulf of Mexico 100 miles southeast of Galveston Wednesday, officers at the naval air training station said.

Among the missing is Aviation Cadet James Harold Zaremba, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Zaremba, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Army Plane Kills Civilian.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP).—A civilian pilot was killed and another civilian severely burned late today when a large army plane, overshot the runway at Detroit's city airport and struck two private planes.

William O'Brien, 28, occupant of one of the private planes, was burned to death when he fell into a pool of flaming gasoline. William Jennings, 19, was thrown clear of the wreckage of his plane and was taken to a hospital with severe burns. The crew of the army plane escaped injury.

Use 47,000 Prisoners of War in U. S. Harvesting

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—An agriculture department source said today that approximately 47,000 Italian and German war prisoners are being used to help harvest record food crops this year.

Again in Custody

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED BY VANDERCOOKS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Vandercook, 2610 Harrison street, Evanston, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage at a family dinner last night in the home of a son, David Vandercook, 2524 Marcy avenue, Evanston. Mr. Vandercook is the inventor of the Vandercook proofing presses and is said to be the oldest living "N" man, having won his football letter at Northwestern university, where he was graduated in 1888.

Among those present at the gathering last night were the couple's three sons, David, Edward and Frederick; a daughter, Miss Frances Vandercook, and seven grandchildren. All are residents of north shore suburbs.

Married in Denver, Colo., the Vandercooks moved to Evanston shortly afterward and have lived there since that time.

TAILOR SHOP LOOTED AT NOON.

Anthony Bolech, a tailor at 2020 Chicago avenue, reported to police yesterday that while he was out at lunch burglars pried the lock off the front door and removed woolens valued at $800 and a woman's coat, left for repair, worth $50.

ARMY'S POLICE PART M'INTOSH FROM HIS BRIDE

Pvt. Charles L. McIntosh, who married Mrs. Alice Rand de Tarnowsky, Barrington heiress, only 9 days ago, was seized by military police outside the courtroom of United States Judge William J. Campbell yesterday and taken to the Fort Sheridan guardhouse to await court martial on charges of being absent without leave and wearing improper insignia.

The son of a wealthy Detroit and Muskegon, Mich., department store owner, he literally was taken from the side of his bride, who a few minutes earlier had been praying in the courtroom as her husband's attorney sought in vain to quash an indictment charging violation of the national stolen property act.

Outgrowth of Their Trip.

Both the indictment and the army charges were the outgrowth of McIntosh's eastern trip with the former Mrs. De Tarnowsky in August when the soldier was alleged to have cashed bogus checks totaling $500 and ranging from $15 to $150. The heiress obtained in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, a divorce from Capt. Alexis de Tarnowsky of the army engineers, on Nov. 8, four days before her marriage to McIntosh in Detroit.

McIntosh overstayed his leave from the Liberal [Kas.] army air field when he made his cross-country tour. He also is accused of improperly wearing the wings of the army air forces, of which he is not a member.

Military police headquarters said McIntosh would have to stay in the Fort Sheridan guardhouse thru Christmas and New Year's and until he is turned over to federal authorities for his trial Jan. 10.

Demurrer Overruled.

McIntosh appeared in Judge Campbell's courtroom with his bride, his father, Charles L. McIntosh; a friend of the elder McIntosh, and Atty. David Polasky.

Judge Campbell overruled Polasky's demurrer to the indictment which argued that the national stolen property act was not intended to cover personal checks not falsely made [McIntosh's checks were drawn on a Detroit bank where his funds were not sufficient] or checks under $5,000.

Mrs. McIntosh took out a rosary during the hearing and fingered its beads while her lips moved in prayer.

PURSE SNATCHER GETS $20.

Mrs. Catherine Dahlke, 2747 23d place, reported to police yesterday that a man snatched her purse containing $20 near her home and escaped.

GOLD AND SILVER MEDALS FOR 700 R. O. T. C. WINNERS

80 Midwest Institutions to Share in Awards.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Approximately 700 gold and silver medals will be awarded to outstanding students of the army and navy Reserve Officers Training corps in universities, colleges, military academies, and high schools located in Chicago and thruout eight mid-western states.

These awards, introduced by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Chicago Tribune, have helped stimulate interest in the R. O. T. C. Scores of recipients of these awards have brought honor to themselves and their schools in the present war.

The medals will go to 80 institutions in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, and Minnesota. Thirty-one of these schools are located in Chicago—29 public schools under the jurisdiction of the Chicago board of education, St. Mel High school, and Morgan Park Military academy.

Ten Drop Eligibility.

At their request, 10 universities and colleges, annual recipients of the medals, were dropped from the list following elimination of the senior R. O. T. C. courses or modification of those courses in their schools.

Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago public schools, is head of the largest R. O. T. C. unit in the United States, the 29 Chicago public schools forming one unit of nearly 11,000 cadets.

Col. Morrison also has supervision over St. Mel, Morgan Park Military academy, and the R. O. T. C. unit in Joliet Township High school, Joliet.

The awarding of medals is one of a series of tributes paid by The Tribune to the work of the R. O. T. C. Each winter this newspaper and W-G-N salute the medal winners at a special Washington day radio program in the W-G-N audience studio.

Cadets in Impressive Parade.

Near the close of the school year the 29 Chicago public school units and St. Mel cadets parade up Michigan avenue before thousands of cheering Chicagoans. This parade is sponsored jointly by the Chicago board of education and The Tribune.

The medals are awarded at impressive ceremonies in the 80 schools and on their campuses.

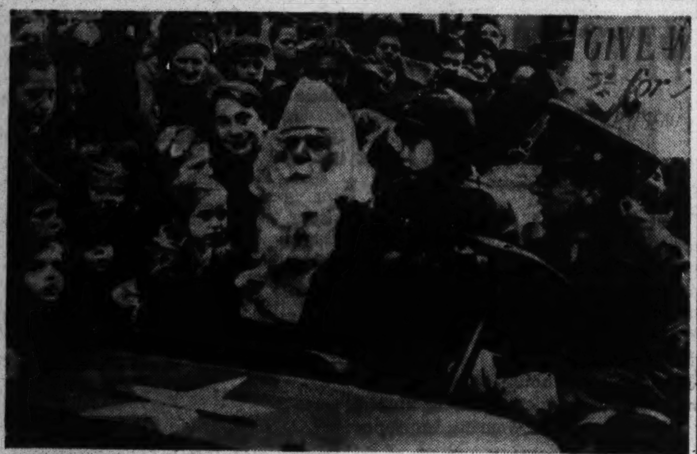
Santa Heads Jeep Parade



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Santa Claus arrived early in the Chicago loop yesterday via the subway, and then from State and Monroe streets rode in an army jeep at the head of a jeep parade.

Hands Out Candy

With a "huff and a puff," 1943's streamlined Santa Claus came out of the subway entrance at State and Monroe streets yesterday and clambered into a jeep. A modern smokescreen enveloped the jolly old gent at the mouth of the subway.

The smokescreen and six jeeps were by courtesy of the United States army, and thousands of youngsters converged on the miniature parade around the loop as Santa handed out candy bars.

The Christmas season was officially under way!

Loop and neighborhood stores were jammed with Yuletide shoppers, particularly the toy departments.

"It's uncanny!" the manager of one of Chicago's largest toy departments exclaimed. "They'll buy anything this year! Junk, good stuff—they don't care. There's never been another year like it. We did our November business in October, and now we're doing our usual December business. Heaven help us by Christmas!"

MOVE TO CRUSH BLACK MARKET IN LIQUOR NEAR

Indications of some definite action next week in the federal investigation of the liquor shortage and black market were seen yesterday after a conference of United States Atty. J. Albert Wohl and E. C. Yellowley, district supervisor of the alcohol tax unit. Wohl gave assurance he would assist the tax unit in presenting whatever evidence it turns up, and both officials plan to support the office of price administration in action against black market operators.

Yellowley is known to possess information that certain large wholesalers have been holding back huge stocks from the market, supposedly to enhance prices.

In addition to putting a huge staff of agents into the field of his three state district—Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin—Yellowley asked that persons knowing of violations of the law inform his office by letter. He pledged that their names would be held in confidence.

TALK OF GIVING STORED GERMAN FOOD TO VICTIMS

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 20 [Special].—Plans to use great reserve stocks of food and supplies known to be still in Germany to aid Germany's victims were under discussion today at the united nations relief and rehabilitation conference. Jan Kwapinski, the Polish delegate, suggested also that German labor be used in rebuilding wrecked cities in plundered nations.

The conference's finance committee reported unanimous approval of the proposal that contributions of allied nations to the cost of UNNRA's post war activities be fixed at 1 per cent of each nation's income for the year ending June 30, 1943. This would amount to 1½ billion dollars for the United States, Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state and chairman of the committee, said.

For the first time today the conference issued to the press a written statement summarizing proposals under consideration, and it was said such statements will be issued regularly. A UNNRA spokesman said Andrei Gromyko, Russian delegate, had been defeated in a move to refrain from statements and to bar newspaper men from the sessions.

FLY AWAY MORE THAN 1,000 FORD BOMBER PLANES

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP).—The Ford Motor company announced today that "more than 1,000 four-engined B-24 bombers have been flown from Willow Run during the last year."

"This does not include substantial numbers shipped in knockdown sets for final assembly elsewhere," the statement added.

The figures are the first official production statistics ever released on the Ford operated Willow Run bomber plant. "The next thousand," said a plant representative today, "are going to come awful fast."

Ground for the big plant was broken on April 18, 1941, with an outlay that has gradually mounted until it exceeds 60 million dollars. More than 40,000 workers are employed.

50 OPA Rental Office Employes to Give Blood

Fifty employees in the Chicago defense rental area office of the OPA at 222 Adams street, will donate blood to the American Red Cross Dec. 16. Many others in the group also have given blood.

Fresh food on the high seas during long periods of action away from port is the result of compact, efficient refrigeration.

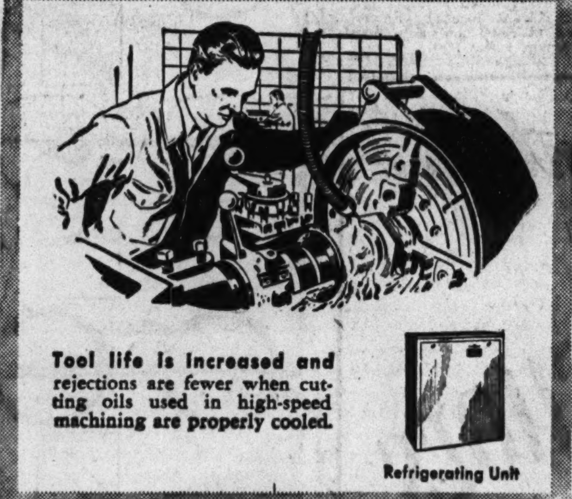
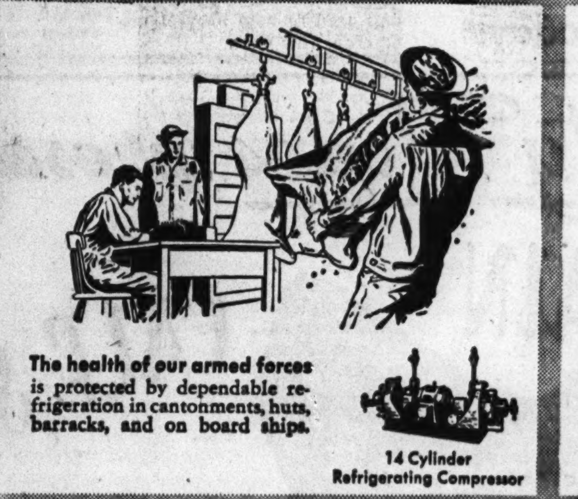
Spot Welder Tip Cooling Unit

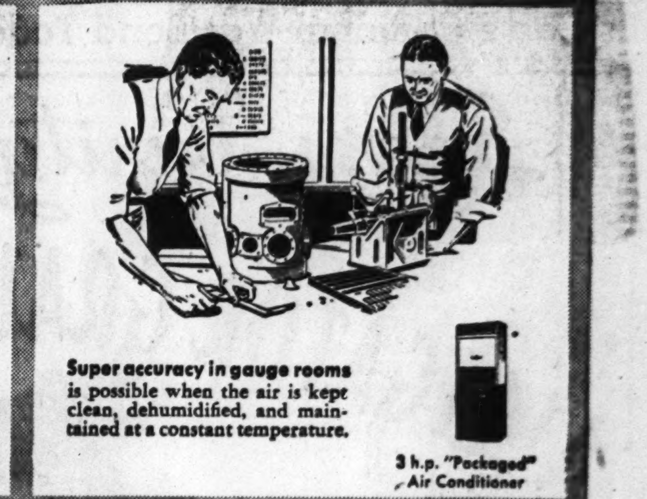
Peak welding efficiency is made possible by cooling of welding tips with water or brine carefully held at the right temperature.



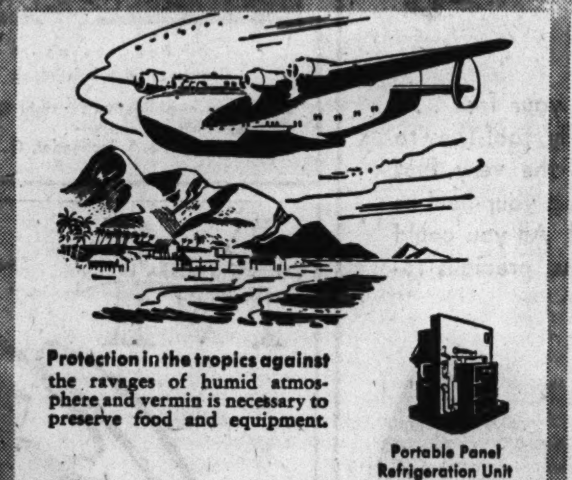
Tool life is increased and rejections are fewer when cutting oils used in high-speed machining are properly cooled.



The health of our armed forces is protected by dependable refrigeration in cantonments, huts, barracks, and on board ships.



Super accuracy in gauge rooms is possible when the air is kept clean, dehumidified, and maintained at a constant temperature.



Protection in the tropics against the ravages of humid atmosphere and vermin is necessary to preserve food and equipment.

VARIABLE CAPACITY
RADIAL COMPRESSOR

From tiny, fractional horsepower to big 75 horsepower units, Chrysler Airtemp Radial Compressors are performing a major war job on both the production and battle fronts.

The science of air control is built around the compressor. Chrysler Airtemp's exclusive Variable Capacity Radial Compressor provides a new efficiency and accuracy in indoor climate regulation. The radial cylinders cut in or out automatically, one at a time, to meet varying load requirements. This flexibility eliminates the peaks and valleys resulting from abrupt starting and stopping of ordinary compressors . . . holds both temperature and humidity at a constant, desired level. The Airtemp compressor is so quiet and smooth-running, you can balance a penny on it at 1750 R.P.M.

Years spent in building delicate mechanisms, have developed high-precision, versatile skills at Airtemp, now devoted to war production. Backed by Chrysler Corporation research and engineering, when peace comes, these skills will again create heating, cooling and refrigeration units for homes and commercial use that will set new, high standards of efficiency and performance.

The lessons learned during peace in free competitive enterprise—freedom of the individual to produce and to compete—today bring strength to a nation at war.

DIVIDENDS THAT GURGLE.

Early last week the Tom Moore Distilling company declared a dividend of 27 gallons of whisky on each share of stock. In anticipation of the action and in response to it the price of the shares rose from $70 to nearly $200 in two weeks. Last Monday the American Distilling company announced it would bring the same sort of cheer to its stockholders. Each share gives its owners the privilege of buying a 50 gallon barrel of whisky at cost to the company, or about half of the prevailing prices. The stock of the company, which sold for as little as $15 early this year, went to $111 and then settled back to around $90.

No manufacturing company wants to mess around with shipping its wares in odd lots to the assortment of people who own its stocks, unless there is good cause. The two distilleries had a good and obvious reason for the action they have taken. They were actuated by the same motive which may have led Count de Marigny to become divorced from his second wife, Ruth, without immediately interrupting their happy home life, and certainly leads some millionaires to hang on to racing stables and other chronic losers year after year. The idea is to have fun at the government's expense.

That the liquor companies were out to save some money in taxes was freely acknowledged. Sale of the whisky by the distillery and payment of equivalent cash dividends from the proceeds would have "involved a substantial tax to the company which is not incurred by distributing in kind," Joseph Krieger, president of Tom Moore, told his stockholders. The excess profits tax, it should be noted, amounts to 90 per cent. Russell R. Brown, president of American Distilling, told his stockholders that he was giving them liquor at cost, both to enable them to make a neat profit for themselves if they chose to sell it or to provide them with some very useful merchandise if they chose to keep it, and to provide the company with a substantial amount of cash without subjecting the corporation to taxes.

If the distilleries can save their stockholders taxes by giving them merchandise instead of cash, other companies can do it, too. The breweries are certainly going to be under pressure from the thirsty and tax-oppressed people who have supplied their capital. Whether Commonwealth Edison can dispense its kind of juice as a dividend to stockholders will depend upon the company's tax status, but many who were sold an interest in the company by Samuel Insull will say that Sam would surely have done it. The owners of the cigaret companies will call their directors to account if they are not given some taxfree smoking from a declaration in kind. The flour companies may be under pressure to roll out some barrels.

If Armour doesn't issue a ham per share, or Goodyear a tire, or Standard Oil a barrel of gasoline, or Hart, Schaffner & Marx a second pair of pants, with cuffs, or Container corporation some boxes in which to store one's dividends, it may be because of OPA or WPB. Anyhow, it's an idea to be kept in mind for use after the war, if high corporate taxes persist and rationing has been terminated.

These dividends in kind are nothing new. The London East India company as early as 1628 distributed a dividend in calico and pepper when it was stuck with excessive inventories. There were several precedents for distributions of liquor. The Grommes & Ullrich company was the most sensational because it came in 1923 when prohibition was in full flower. One stockholder then received 8 cases of whisky, 8 cases and 4 jugs of brandy, 12 cases of cordials, and 4 cases of gin. Owners of stock in National Distillers received on Oct. 16, 1933, 1 case of Old Reserve whisky for each 5 shares of stock held.

Never before has there been such good reason for paying dividends in kind. If the law is not changed to prevent it, payments in property are likely to become general. It seems to be the only sure way to escape the unjust double taxation on a portion of corporate earnings.

THE OCD AND PAPER.

There are 50 states in the United States for the purpose of civilian defense. Mr. Roosevelt thoughtfully gave Mayor Kelly and Mayor La Guardia their own metropolitan areas to rule, freeing them from supervision of the governors of Illinois and New York, who, by pure coincidence, of course, are Republicans.

Both the Illinois and the Chicago civilian defense organizations have official publications. The current edition of the state OCD organ, Illinois Mobilizes, carries this statement by Sen. Arnold P. Benson, chairman of the committee that supervises its publication:

"The December issue of Illinois Mobilizes will be omitted as a paper conservation measure. It is planned to issue the paper again in January. Thereafter Illinois Mobilizes probably will be sent to you bimonthly. . . .

"There is a serious shortage of paper. It has forced newspapers to cut down the number of pages, to curtail circulation, to refuse advertising. It has forced merchants to eliminate many wrapping services. . . .

"In consideration of these circumstances, the Illinois war council believes that as the state's directing agency of war time activities we should set an example by eliminating the use of paper wherever possible."

The Chicago OCD publication is called the Civilian Defense Alert. It is edited by James W. Gilman, who doubles in brass as a member of the faculty of the local communistic school that defiles the name of Abraham Lincoln. In a letter of Nov. 10, over his signature and those of his superiors, he says:

"With the Dec. 10, 1943, issue [Vol. III, No. 1] of the Alert, plans are being made to increase the printing of the four page weekly issue to a sufficient quantity so that each active member of the civilian defense organization may receive one. Your order for the quantity needed in your community should be sent in as soon as possible. With the beginning of Vol. III, the monthly edition of the Alert will be discontinued and the four page weekly edition will be published each Friday."

Sen. Benson has reason to know about the paper shortage. He runs a newspaper in Batavia. Mr. Gilman also knows about it. He's doing his best to help create it.

Postscript: The OCD official who told us about the Alert's circulation boosting plea had a large bundle of the publications on his porch, still in their shipping wrapper. It's more convenient for the OCD scrap paper collectors to leave them that way, he explained.

WE MUST GET THE ISLANDS.

The map and the accompanying story in the Graphic section of today's TRIBUNE tell how to get to Tokio. They describe several routes, but they point out that the one along which Gen. MacArthur is heading, from the Solomon Islands and New Guinea to Mindanao, the upper islands of the Philippines, Formosa, and, finally, on to Japan itself, is the best route. There must be battling along the other routes, too, but Gen. MacArthur's road is the highway.

This is a piece of war strategy that has been apparent to every serious student of Pacific operations for a long time. Obviously, the Japs are aware of it, too. In America there has been considerable bewilderment over the fact that Gen. MacArthur has been detained in Australia and the Solomons for two years now, without the men or the materials to do the job he wants to do and must do.

Once Gen. MacArthur gets the soldiers and the supplies he can and he will travel up the road to Tokio. That will mean the end of the Japanese war thru the conquest of the Jap military machine. Peace will follow, and with it will come responsibilities.

The map tells why. In a lozenge-shaped area in the center of the Pacific ocean lie a myriad of tiny island groups, most of them now held by Japan. Before the war they were held by Japan, the principal imperialistic nations of Europe—Great Britain, the Netherlands, and France—and a few by the United States. In the upper center of the area is Hawaii, with its great naval base. In the extreme southwest corner is New Caledonia, which American arms and men have made now into a base said to be equally strong.

In these islands lie security against another Japanese attack on America, the security of a lasting peace. Certainly, none of the allied powers will want the Japanese ever again to hold or to fortify any of these islands. Without them, Japanese militarism is powerless even to threaten America, Australia, or the rich island empire of the East Indies.

Altho American holdings in the Pacific were far less important than those of Great Britain or the Netherlands, the task of winning these lands back from the Japanese and of crushing Japanese military might has become almost entirely an American assignment. Our men may have to do the greater part of the job alone, and we probably shall have to furnish most, if not all, of the materials.

The preservation of peace in the Pacific, once the war is won, will become exclusively an American problem. Therefore, we must have those islands. If we are to protect them from the Japanese and from Japanese fortification, we must have possession of them. Our five ocean navy will be the only fleet in the world powerful enough to do adequate patrol work in the Pacific, and possession of the islands will be necessary to that work.

America has no ambition to rule alien peoples in the Pacific or in any other part of the world, but when it becomes our duty to protect the Pacific from aggression and to maintain peace there, we must have the tools with which to do the job. We must never again have to fight our way thru hostile waters to Australia, New Zealand, and China. We must have the bases that will give us safe passage across the Pacific in war and peace.

AMERICANS IN THE WAR NEWS.

An American army officer serving in Italy has a letter in the Voice of the People this morning, accusing THE TRIBUNE of failure to give United States soldiers proper credit for the invasion of Italy. He says we gave undue emphasis to the work of the British 8th army. He calls particular attention to the issues of Sept. 10 and 11, when the 5th army under Gen. Mark Clark was landing at Salerno.

All of these stories, and there were several of them in each edition, came thru army censorship, either from official communiques or from the accredited war correspondents or American news agencies. Each of them mentions British-American forces, or American-British forces, without any attempt to evaluate numbers or activities by nationalities.

At the time the stories were printed THE TRIBUNE considered that it was giving Americans proper credit for their part in the invasion. Certainly no dispatches about American heroism and accomplishment were suppressed in our newsroom.

Presumably the American officer who wrote to us knows what he's talking about. If the news stories failed to tell adequately what Americans accomplished in the invasion of Italy it was because American war correspondents there were prevented from finding out or prevented from telling about the Americans' share in the battle. If this is true, the fault lies in American army censorship or British censorship, or a combination of both. And no doubt a share of the blame goes to the burocrats who have failed to permit adequate facilities for sending news directly to this country by radio to be set up.

GEORGE ROGERS CLARK

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, on the Chicago Theater of the Air, over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

George Washington and Benedict Arnold freed the northern states from the British. Nathaniel Greene freed the south. An equally great campaign, which gave us the west, is practically unknown, altho in brilliancy of strategy and tactics it eclipsed the famous campaign of young Napoleon in Italy and, unlike the latter, was decisive of the future of the world.

You will recall that the French had maintained an empire in the St. Lawrence and Mississippi valleys for a century before the outbreak of the Revolution. You will recall the two considerable settlements at Quebec and New Orleans. Not all of you may know that there was a third settlement called the Illinois Country, running from St. Louis south on the east side of the Mississippi river for about 100 miles.

When this French empire fell all of New France east of the Mississippi and of New Orleans was ceded to Great Britain. All of the empire west of the Mississippi, including New Orleans, was conveyed to Spain, but not until 1765 did the Illinois Country submit to Britain, nor did New Orleans submit to Spain until 1769. The spirit of independence thus was born early among the early French.

Ignoring the royal decree that they remain east of the Appalachian watershed, Americans settled freely along the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers and at Pittsburgh. American hunters and trappers, the most energetic men on the continent, went anywhere they desired.

Thus the rival Spanish and English governments were faced by two rebellious populations, American and French, which were not sympathetic to each other.

Conditions became anarchical and were destined so to continue until control of that vast territory should be obtained by combining sufficient forces to create a preponderance of power. This was the gigantic achievement of George Rogers Clark, backed by Gov. Patrick Henry of Virginia and aided by Oliver Pollock, an American merchant in New Orleans.

When the Revolutionary war broke out, Lt. Gov. Hamilton of Canada, with headquarters at Detroit, instigated the Indians under his influence to attack the colonists in Kentucky and on the Pennsylvania and Virginia borders by paying for the scalps of the colonials. The borderland people were unable to protect themselves.

Then it was that George Rogers Clark, a man of 26, conceived the idea that if he could defeat the British garrisons in the Illinois Country, he could bring the French populations into the Revolution, and with them become strong enough to resist the British invasion and control the Indians, because of the Illinois Country's advantageous geography. The Mississippi, Illinois, Wabash, Ohio, Cumberland, Tennessee, and Missouri rivers, which furnished the transportation for one-third of the country that was to become the United States, all flowed together in the Illinois Country. Whoever controled this territory would hold what soldiers call interior lines.

If he were in control here, he could, as we shall see he did, advance from his interior position against an enemy coming from any direction while the enemies north and east would be out of touch with each other. He could also receive supplies from any direction, especially from Gen. Hand at Pittsburgh and Pollock at New Orleans.

Ninety years later another great military genius, Ulysses S. Grant, operating from the same country, saved the Union.

I don't suppose many of you remember the attempted Communist revolution in 1919. I remember it because I worked on the general staff at that time. The idea of the Communists was that if they could control the railroads out of Chicago they could disrupt the economics of our country and bring on revolution. Our studies, however, showed that to control the United States and the North American continent one must control the country running all the way from Detroit to Cairo, Ill. But returning to my story of Clark:

Clark traveled 600 miles overland on horseback to Williamsburg, Va., and laid his plan before Gov. Patrick Henry. Henry approved the plan. He furnished Clark with 1,200 pounds in continental currency and an order on Gen. Hand for the necessary boats, ammunition, and supplies. Clark raised a force of less than 200 men and a small flotilla of boats.

Clark's generalship in the ensuing campaign was perfect. He descended the Ohio to its falls, where Louisville now stands. He fortified this spot, closed the river to the enemy and secured a base, which he never lost, for further operations.

He then continued on and landed at the mouth of the Tennessee, where he left his boats. In the event of defeat he now had four waterways over which to escape—the Mississippi, the Tennessee, the Cumberland, and the Ohio to its fortification at the falls.

These precautions gave great confidence to his men. They advanced eagerly, and in 10 nights surprised and captured garrisons at Kaskaskia, Cahokia, Prairie du Rocher, and St. Philippe.

The French, who had been treated as a conquered people, were now easily won over to the Revolution. Upon receiving a guarantee of absolute religious tolerance, as provided in the laws of Virginia, the priest, Father Pierre Gibault, not only used his influence with the parishioners in the Illinois Country, but traveled to Vincennes and persuaded the settlers there to come to the American side.

So rapidly and secretly had Clark acted that all of these epochal events had taken place before Lt. Gov. Hamilton knew that Clark was in the field. The governor then raised a force of over 1,000 men and retook Vincennes. Hamilton has been greatly criticized for not having immediately marched upon Kaskaskia, but by this time he knew of the American force at the falls of the Ohio, did not know its strength, but knew it could be reënforced from Pittsburgh. Clark, at the falls of the Ohio and at Kaskaskia, had him between the jaws of a nutcracker.

Hamilton feared that if he marched on Kaskaskia he might be cut off from Detroit and decided to wait until spring to collect a force large enough to conquer the whole district.

In the meantime Clark enlisted and drilled a force of French settlers, and, learning that Hamilton had sent back the larger part of his force, marched overland and surprised Vincennes.

Whether or not Hamilton might have maintained himself in the fort is uncertain, but as he had violated the laws of war in buying American scalps from the Indians, he was subject to death and sought safety in capitulation.

After this the military situation did not change. Clark was never strong enough to carry out his plan to take Detroit, nor were the British able to take the Illinois Country. Their defeat before St. Louis laid the lands to the northwest open to invasion. Clark, with his control of the river network, was able to dominate the Indian tribes and this control was sufficient to enable the American commissioners at the peace conference to obtain the Northwest and the Southwest Territories, comprising the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama.

The possession of this territory led to the War of 1812, to the purchase of Louisiana, and eventually to the acquisition of all of the territory westward to the Pacific coast.

This acquisition, nine-tenths of the present United States, was due to the strategic foresight, tactical skill, dash, and persistency of a 26 year old American, George Rogers Clark.

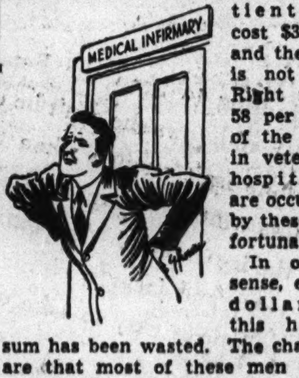
WHY PSYCHOTICS ARE REJECTED.

According to Franklin G. Ebaugh of Denver, our government has expended over 1 billion dollars on neuropsychiatric cases incident to World War I. This means that each patient has cost $30,000, and the end is not yet. Right now 58 per cent of the beds in veterans' hospitals are occupied by these unfortunates.



In one sense, every dollar of this huge sum has been wasted. The chances are that most of these men were carrying on in civil life on a fairly even keel but when called into military organizations and confronted with rigorous training and the prospects of combat the situation was more than they could withstand.

During the present conflict experience has shown that from 40 to 60 per cent of those thus far discharged, who were neuropsychiatric suspects, might have been saved induction if the examining physicians and other officials had been willing to scrutinize, with sufficient care, their records and histories.

There are misfits in all walks of life. Industry recognizes them. The chap who reports to the medical department frequently—with a galaxy of aches and pains—is typical. Should he be injured, his recovery period will be tremendously prolonged. There is nothing wrong with his muscles, his bones, or his blood. In other words, healing will occur as readily as with any one. On the other hand, these persons seem unable to think clearly about their own bodies. They develop "hospitalitis" and become burdens to every one—their friends and families included.

How can we recognize these individuals and thus prevent calls to military duty? The most important consideration is to obtain a consistent and careful report of past performance. Every previous employer will need to be consulted. The chances are that many instances of misbehavior or poor work will be disclosed. Accidents and illness come next. If the candidate has suffered numerous cuts and bruises and has been obliged to lay off the job or has been hospitalized repeatedly, we may assume that he is unable to protect himself.

How often has the subject changed positions? Has he been out of work for long intervals? If so, why? What doctors has he seen and how often? What were his complaints? The one who is a medical shopper is open to suspicion. A few simple questions will determine the existence of fads, foibles, or fears. Oddities in behavior or peculiarities which have become fixed are not difficult to detect. Naturally, chronic alcoholics as well as narcotic and sedative addicts are poor risks.

Why do these men snap under army life? In the first place, some are nonconformists. While they may not object to discipline openly, they rebel inwardly. With all this, they may exhibit no emotional disturbances but merely appear uninterested. When called upon for strenuous activity, however, they fail to deliver.

Of course, every breakdown cannot be forecast. But there should be far fewer than have been encountered in the past. Should illness come, each case will need to be handled with sympathy and understanding.

PAIN IN THE NECK.

A. F. writes: For about a year, I have been suffering with a severe pain in the neck. I can hardly turn it. What do you think is wrong?

REPLY.

A careful study of the region should be undertaken, with neuritis and arthritis in mind. It may be that an infection within the sinuses, the mouth, or the throat is responsible.

SENSITIVE TO VITAMINS.

M. O. writes: After taking capsules containing all the vitamins, I developed restlessness and itching all over the body. I stopped them and symptoms disappeared. Does this mean that I am allergic to some of the ingredients?

REPLY.

SPOTS BEFORE EYES.

L. H. writes: I have dandruff in my eyebrows. Will this affect my vision?

REPLY.

Guard against surprise. Otherwise you may think it is snowing. No real danger. Use a mild sulfur ointment.

POLYPS.

K. L. writes: What causes polyps in the nose?

REPLY.

BATTERED.

N. B. writes: What causes bruises?

REPLY.

Without breaking the skin, a blow or sudden pressure may rupture capillaries beneath the epidermis. Within a day or two the parts may become discolored [black and blue].

NOT LIKELY.

U. O. writes: Is there any danger of a thrombosis following a tonsil operation?

REPLY.

Extremely remote. Be sure that you are in skilled hands, however.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

OUR RULERS ARE DISPLEASED.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—Official circles are indignant at the folly shown by the people in the recent elections. It was tantamount, the responsible leaders point out, to rocking a boat in the height of a storm.

There is much force in their indignation. For example, it is said, with justice, that the people do not know enough about what is being planned in Washington to make any judgment upon the matter, good or bad. Only the leaders today can be trusted with over-all information, and they can only pursue effectively global plans for the war and for the post-war world in the protection of a profound secrecy. Therefore a dissenting judgment, if such the recent elections really were, is a frivolous gesture, wanting all the facts.

This seems a tenable criticism of the Republican victories, to the degree that these victories are based upon dissatisfaction with the way the Roosevelt administration is conducting the war or planning the structure of the post-war world. The people really do not know what is being done and, therefore, they cannot make any sound judgment on the matter.

Thus, according to the view here in Washington, if the people desire successful issue to the great affairs in which they are involved, they should leave the management of these affairs in the hands of their betters and refrain from giving our implacable enemies the least appearance of disunity.

JUNIUS JUNIOR.

WANTS BRAHMS IN THE MOVIES.

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 15.—In my opinion the sooner the people of the world educate and devote themselves to the love and understanding of good, serious music, such as Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms, or for that matter any composer of classical compositions, the sooner the world will settle down and forget about war, greed, killing, and murder. Why do tear-jerking sob songs sung by fabulously overpaid crooners and ear splitting jive tunes played by moaning saxophones and blaring trumpets have to be the accepted form of music by our young people and by the public in general?

Our symphony orchestras, opera companies, and radio broadcasting companies, as well as our public schools, are contributing much to selling good music to the public, but this is still not enough for greater appreciation of the masters.

The best medium we have of bringing good music to the attention of all the people is by means of our motion picture theaters. If music of this type could only be presented to the public in this way it would make a great impression on both young and old alike, and in due time the majority of the people would love and appreciate good music.

V. H. PETERSEN.

THE HIGH PRICE OF WHISKY.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Now the senate is going to investigate the liquor traffic. At long last they have awakened to the fact that the public has been systematically robbed, and robbed is the correct word, for over a year and nobody in the senate or the house raised a finger until after the recent Republican victories.

The OPA knew all about the taverns raising the prices of bottled goods a little at a time, and did nothing about it until they got ready. Then the tavern interests were tipped off before the public knew about the fact that a ceiling was to be put on bottled goods. The tavern owners stocked up and stored the liquor.

You can buy all the liquor you want over the bar from these same tavern owners, but they won't sell a bottle even in cases of sickness. The bar prices are 2 to 3 times and more the cost by bottle, which is robbery.

There are millions of hard liquor drinkers in this country who are wondering why something wasn't done to protect them and next year they will do something about it.

FISCAL NOTES.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 12.—The Wall Street Journal reports Britain's war appropriations this year are 4¼ billion pounds. Translating that into dollars at current exchange, the result is $17,170,000,000. In proportion to population, our annual expenditure on an equal basis would be $48,236,500,000.

In four years of war the English national debt has increased slightly less than 10½ billion pounds, averaging £2,575,000,000 a year.

On the same basis of calculation, from Jan. 1, 1942, to Aug. 31, 1943, our average increase for 12 months would be $29,493,782,145. It actually is $51,672,600,000.

Where has the money gone? Are those figures a result of British leadership of Mr. Roosevelt? That's what makes me "THE WILD IRISH ROSE."

"AMERICANS IN THE WAR NEWS."

SOMEWHERE IN ITALY, Oct. 26.—You may be Republican, isolationists, anti-Roosevelt, anti-New Deal, and anti-administration, but why be anti-American? Why should your personal animosity against the administration cause you to relegate so important an event as the first invasion of the European continent by American troops to the background? It's the sacrifice of these Americans that is preventing Goebbels from dictating to you what you should or should not print.

I'm referring to your columns in the editions of Sept. 10 and 11, where you play up the work of the British troops in preference to our own, where you give most space to what the 8th army is doing in the southern part of Italy and lightly pass over the action in which our men took part.

It's about time you gave credit where credit is due, and forget your political tenets. Remember, we are not Republicans, Democrats, Socialists, or what have you, but Americans, and as an American your thoughts should be for the Americans, first, last, and always.

FROM AN IRATE CHICAGOAN.

AND HE CAN'T TURN IT OFF.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—I have just noted the letter of T. C. Fetrow in THE TRIBUNE regarding radio as a nuisance. While he berates it for the heavy proportion of advertising, and cheap advertising at that, carried by it, I berate the pests who insist upon forcing this junk on hapless neighbors who have no choice but to endure it. I live in what is purported to be an "excellent" building and I pay a terrific rent for very sloppy service. On top of that, I am besieged on every side by junk in the form of silly children's programs, lame brained wit, and asinine soap operas all the time I am in the apartment which is only evenings and on Sundays. I never enter my apartment that I am not confronted by the overtones of the neighbors' radios ranging from just loud enough to drive you crazy to so loud that the very floors and walls vibrate. Any complaint brings the answer that I am unreasonable.

F. M. F.

LOSING WOMAN POWER.

Glenview, Ill., Nov. 11.—The war man power commission is planning to enforce a 48 hour week in the Chicago area. There is a multitude of married women who are holding down two jobs, one of them being housekeeping. It requires no small amount of ingenuity to maintain a home, take care of clothing, purchase and prepare food. Many now employed 40 hours a week find they are just barely managing, by devoting Sunday to cleaning, mending, and home finances.

If this 48 hour week goes into effect and no time is allowed for banking, shopping, and household duties the inevitable result will be the loss of considerable woman hours.

HOME AND FIRESIDE.

4-F SOLUTION.

Vallejo, Cal., Nov. 15.—To members of the 4-F club: I, too, was a dejected reject. I, too, was an essential employe in an essential war industry in my home town, Chicago. I, too, reported back to my employer and could have had my old job back. Here is where I differ from you. I decided that as long as I could not be in the army, I could best serve by using my skill at a United States navy yard repairing navy ships that would transport or protect my more fortunate buddies who were privileged to wear the uniform. So now I am a third class machinist in a uniform [overalls], working 10 hours a day at the Mare Island navy yard, Vallejo, Cal. Come on out, brothers, we need you.

T. A. ALLEN.

THE NEW DEAL AND RAILROAD LABOR.

Elgin, Ill., Nov. 16.—The hand of the master New Dealer is again evident in the handling of the railroad wage dispute. To keep a prop under the Little Steel formula he would deny wage equality for railroad men, and at the same time pose as their friend by hiding behind his stooge, Economic Stabilizer Vinson.

For many years the machinery for handling railroad disputes has been satisfactory to all concerned. The public has been protected from the evils of wildcat strikes, the employer and employe alike were assured of a just settlement of all disputes and there has been built up over a period of years a confidence not existing in any other industry.

The action of Mr. Vinson in nullifying the wage award, recommended by the committee appointed by the President to investigate the wage controversy, is not only unfair and unjust to a loyal and patriotic group of American workers, but a deliberate attempt to destroy a fine piece of legislation, the railway labor act. There is no good reason why railroad men should comply with the requirements of this act, notification, mediation, arbitration and fact finding commissions if the results, not being in line with the master mind's ideas, can be overruled by the wage czar at the eleventh hour.

"RAIL" FOR 24 YEARS.

DRAFTING THE DOCTORS.

West Frankfort, Ill., Nov. 12.—There must be something wrong with the procurement and assignment setup for physicians for the army and navy. The case of the Chicago ear, eye, nose and throat physician is bad enough, but is nothing compared with the following.

Here in West Frankfort, population over 12,000 in the heart of the coal mining district, we have a hospital with 60 or 70 beds owned and operated by the coal miners. These miners employ a full-time surgeon and an ear, eye, nose and throat specialist.

These doctors are busy day and night, the surgeon performing on an average of 30 or more major operations weekly for the miners and their families plus outside work. This hospital is now without an ear, eye, nose and throat man, as the last two have been drafted into the navy after having been designated by the county procurement and assignment committee as dispensable.

Now this same committee has also classified the surgeon as dispensable. Our town has nine physicians, three of draft age, and should the hospital surgeon also be drafted it would leave the hospital without competent medical and surgical service. Appeals from the management to the authorities have so far fallen on deaf ears, and the surgeon has his orders to report to the navy shortly. If there ever was a case where a man is indispensable here is one.

A. S. ALBERT, M. D.

ROMAN TROLLEY BUSES.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—The news item, captioned "Rome's Glory Fades," states in part: "Rome's beautiful trolley buses have been sent to Germany with many other transport vehicles. Taxicabs also have vanished and there remain only the street cars, which are without seats to give more room. Passengers are packed in like cattle in box cars."

So what? We in Chicago have had the same street car condition for years. Rome had beautiful trolley buses. Well we ain't never had any. May I suggest that we lend-lease the Chicago Surface Lines to Rome for the duration [of time]? They are experts in the business of crowding passengers like cattle in box cars.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

SUNDAY BUS SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—[Friend of the People.]—Can anything be done to better bus transportation for civilians, as well as for sailors who study at the Wright Jr. college? Sometimes on Sundays the Addison bus goes downtown. On other Sundays it only goes as far as Sheridan road, and on at least one occasion I know that about 50 sailors were late for their classes.

L. K.

Order LB-5 of the office of defense transportation, issued for the purpose of conserving rubber and other vital materials, provides:

> The Chicago Motor Coach company . . . shall not operate in any calendar month . . . more than 85 per cent of the total bus miles operated during the corresponding calendar month of either 1941 or 1940—whichever is greater.

As a result of this order, we are compelled to operate a different number of miles each calendar month. Since some months this year have one more week day than in either 1941 or 1940, and in consideration of the 150,000 war workers adjacent to motor coach routes who must be served week days, it becomes necessary on Sundays during the winter months when riding is at a minimum to adjust our service to meet mileage requirements. In setting up the schedules on Addison street, buses operate only between Harlem avenue and Sheridan road, Sundays, where transfer is made to and from loop coaches.

In complying with this order every effort is made to cause the least amount of inconvenience to passengers, and to "provide the greatest good for the greatest number."

We ask the indulgence and patience of patrons during this trying period and assure them of our firm intention of improving transportation services as soon as restrictive orders are released.

Chicago Motor Coach Company.

GAMING CLIQUE'S UNPAID TAXES COUNTY PUZZLE

Suit Filed in July and Is Later Dropped.

Five years' taxes totaling approximately $7,000 on the Albany Park building, 3422-24 Lawrence avenue, remained unpaid yesterday while the action of officials in recent attempts to collect the arrears provided a mystery in the county building.

Title to the building, occupied by a safe deposit company, a real estate office, and neighborhood headquarters for the office of civilian defense, is recorded in the name of Theodore Goldstein, son of Atty. William Goldstein. The elder Goldstein was formerly attorney for William Skidmore, gambling boss, and of William R. Johnson, partner of Skidmore in gambling ventures.

Johnson Case Pending.

In the trial of Johnson for income tax evasions, Atty. Goldstein testified that he bought the building for Johnson with funds supplied by the latter. This was one of several properties worth about $800,000 that Goldstein had said he bought for Johnson.

Johnson, convicted and sentenced to five years in prison, is fighting to set aside the conviction, asserting Goldstein's testimony was perjured. The case is pending before Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Tax Foreclosure Unfiled.

Last July 26 action was filed in the County court under the Skarda act to collect taxes due on the property. Four weeks later, the suit was dismissed by Marshall Kearney, former assistant state's attorney.

Kearney explained that his office planned to file a tax foreclosure suit. No such action has been taken, but Joseph Burke, assistant prosecutor, said that he would take up the matter with State's Atty. Courtney tomorrow.

Leo J. Backus, an employe in the county treasurer's office, reported to County Treasurer Victor L. Schlaeger, and has signed an affidavit on file in the Johnson case, that during pendency of the Skarda suit Atty. Goldstein told him that the building was his and offered to pay $250 a month on the tax arrears.

Backus said he was informed by John Fitzgerald, assistant state's attorney, that Earle C. Hurley, in United States Atty. J. Albert Woll's office, had asked that the Skarda action be dismissed temporarily. Backus said Hurley later informed him there was no objection to the tax collection attempts. Hurley said yesterday he did not request dismissal of the suit or take any action to have it dismissed.

COME AWAY ON A MAGIC CARPET

Into the weaving of rugs has gone the fascinating story of men and their times. You read it in the symbolism of a magnificent Chinese rug of the Kang-hsi period (1662 to 1722) with a circle of happiness framed with a field of lotus blossoms and butterflies floating against the blue of midnight... its border rich with the signs of augury and precious things. Fine Rugs tell other stories too ... like the Georgian needlepoint from a great 19th century London town house where its beauty was mirrored in the gleam of old silver and fine old china... like the New England hand-hooked rug made by the flickering fire-light when lids were heavy with the work of the day, made with the love and warmth of the family circle reflected in bright red roses. Every rug tells a wonderful, wonderful story. So, come to choose your magic carpet here where rug lore has been our business for nearly a century.

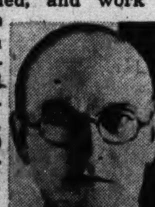
COMPLETE PLANS FOR BROOKFIELD WORKERS' FLATS

Brundage and Maher to Be Co-Owners.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]



Philip B. Maher.

Priorities are in hand, financing has been provided, and work is scheduled to start shortly on a $525,000 privately financed apartment project in Brookfield, to contain 100 home units for war workers, Philip B. Maher, architect and originator of the development, announced yesterday. Forty-four 3½ room units will rent for $55 per month, and 56 of 4½ rooms for $63.50, all including services. Completion is scheduled for early next summer.

The building site at the northeast corner of Arden and Brookfield avenues, in the Hollywood section of Brookfield, comprises 3.86 acres, of which 18.9 per cent will be occupied by buildings.

Designed in Georgian Style.

The apartments are of Georgian design, with walls of pink Georgian brick. They are in seven detached buildings with 15 divisions of suites, ranging from 4 to 24 units, and 15 entrance halls. The buildings are two and three stories in height, and laid out in an elaborated double-U design, with three large courts.

The largest, opening on Arden avenue, and with a width of 152 feet, will have a sunken garden, another will have a play area, and the third will have an open air parking space for 50 cars which may be developed later into garages.

First of Its Type.

This will be the first large apartment building in the Chicago area, Maher said, to be built for war workers under "Title 608" of the national housing act. It is a type he believes will prove popular in the suburbs.

"It will be a big asset to Brookfield," said Charles W. Horak, mayor of the village, "relieving a serious housing shortage. It is well located, being close to railroad, bus, and street car transportation to the big west, northwest, and southwest war plants, and it fronts on the town park."

It will be known as Arden court and will be financed with a $471,400 FHA 25 year insured mortgage, negotiated by Harry C. Eigelberner thru Dovenmuehle, Inc. Avery Brundage is co-sponsor with Maher and the Avery Brundage company has the general contract. The Roanoke Real Estate company, owned by Brundage, will manage the property.

In Western Suburb

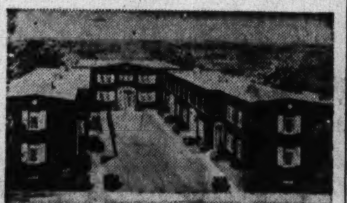
Three story section of half million dollar privately financed rental war housing project to be built in Brookfield by Philip B. Maher, architect, and Avery Brundage, builder. It will accommodate 100 families.

PLANS 5 HOMES PROJECTS FOR NEGRO WORKERS

Five privately financed, constructed, and operated residential rental projects for 98 families of Negro war workers, to cost approximately a half million dollars, were announced yesterday for the south side. Financing and priorities have been obtained for two buildings, work on which will be started this week at 4213-23 South Michigan avenue, and 5337-47 South Wabash avenue. A third is planned at the corner of 50th place and Vincennes avenue, and two more on sites being negotiated for.

All of the projects are sponsored and will be built by the Martin P. Lincoln company, headed by Joseph Hock, former president of the Consumers company.



This 16 unit flat and row house project will be built at 4213-23 South Michigan avenue and duplicated at 5337-47 South Wabash avenue.

The Michigan and Wabash avenue projects will be identical in size and design and will cost $175,000. Each will be 2 stories with a combination of 8 flats and 8 row house units. There will be four 3 room apartments renting at $45 and four 4 rooms at $52. The two story row house units will have 5 rooms and rent for $56. Rental includes all services. Occupancy is set for March 1, 1944.

HOTEL OPERATOR BUYS CHICAGO UNIT IN CHAIN

The Milner Hotel corporation of Detroit, operators of 182 hotels thruout the country, yesterday purchased thru Ralph H. Jackson & Co., the leasehold and eight story Milner hotel at the northwest corner of Rush street and Grand avenue, for $150,000, according to the county records. Title was taken by the 536 Rush Street Building corporation, a subsidiary of the Milner Hotel corporation, which has been operating the Rush-Grand property for five years, and will continue to operate it. The land under the hotel, 100 by 100, is owned by the Bradley estate of Dubuque, Ia.

At the Realty Boards

The Chicago Real Estate board will hold its annual past presidents' party on Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock in the board rooms, 105 West Madison street. A turkey dinner and entertainment are scheduled, Arthur W. Draper Jr., chairman, announced.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with queries.]

G. H. P. writes: "A few months ago an article appeared in your column stating the navy was looking for men with engineering degrees who had sales experience. These men were needed to eliminate bottle necks in plants producing navy ordnance and other materials for the navy. Is the navy still asking for such men? The writer is 30, married, but has no dependents. He is a graduate with a B.S., M.E. degree. My experience has included four years of sales engineering."

ANSWER: You may have in mind either the navy expediter or analyzer programs. Expediters should have a degree in either electrical or mechanical engineering plus production and organizing experience in industrial, marine engineering ordnance or steampower. Eight years of practical experience in any one of these fields will be accepted as a substitute for formal education. P. T. I. asks: "Can a service man falling ill on a furlough go to a civilian hospital?"

ANSWER: A member of a military organization who is taken ill while on furlough may be cared for at the nearest army or navy hospital, whichever branch of service he is connected with. If no army or navy hospital is in the vicinity, he may apply for admittance to the nearest civilian hospital. In such cases and if the illness is "in line of duty," that is, not the result of the man's misconduct or negligence, the civilian hospital bill will be paid from a special fund maintained by the surgeon general. Before paying the bill, however, the army may appoint an investigating officer to determine the circumstances surrounding the illness or accident. If it is determined the service man was to blame, he must pay his own hospital bill. A man's furlough ceases automatically upon admittance to any hospital, but he assumes the uncompleted portion upon release from the hospital.

Armies, like whole nations, draw their strength from the past—from the traditions of freedom, honor and self-sacrifice on which they are founded. America's glorious traditions are putting in a full day's work on embattled beaches in jungle warfare, in legislative halls—and in industry. Typical of America's industrial tradition is Reo—old as the trucking industry, time-honored builder of fine commercial vehicles. Today all of Reo's experience, skill and engineering insight—in short, all of its tradition—is at war. Tomorrow this traditional skill will give America its best commercial transportation.

CANCEL BOMBER CONTRACT WITH BREWSTER FIRM

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—The navy has canceled its contract with the Brewster Aeronautical corporation for the production of bombers at the request of Henry J. Kaiser, the company's recently named president.

This was disclosed today by Robert Kline, counsel for the house naval investigating committee. Kline said Kaiser made his request in order to convert Brewster's production entirely to fighting planes.

The Brewster corporation has been under investigation by the navy for failure to meet plane production schedules.

A spokesman for the company's plant at Johnsville, Pa., said it has not been determined how many employes will be affected. Layoffs, he added, would be for only a month or so to enable assembly lines to be rearranged for production of the Brewster model of the Corsair fighting plane.

Single Case of Polio Reported for 24 Hours

A single case of infantile paralysis, in Schaumberg township, was reported yesterday for the preceding 24 hours, raising the total to date for Cook county to 1,243 cases, with 107 deaths. There were no new cases or deaths in Chicago, which alone had previously reported 985 cases and 86 deaths since the start of the epidemic.

BIG REMINGTON ORDNANCE PLANT ORDERED CLOSED

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 20 (AP).—The huge Lowell ordnance plant of the Remington Arms company, which has been manufacturing .50 caliber shells for the army since April 2, 1942, will close before Dec. 31, the army announced today, because the army has enough ammunition "for any crisis, however unexpected."

[This brings to five the number of large ordnance plants ordered closed during the week. The others were at St. Louis, Marion, O., Milwaukee, Wis., and in Utah.]

Employed 5,700 Men.

Announcement of the closing was made at a press conference called by Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell, chief of ordnance in the war department.

At the peak of production, the plant employed 5,700 men and women, but this number has been reduced in recent weeks to about 3,500, the announcement said. The remainder of the working force will be reduced gradually during the coming month.

"Virtual elimination of the submarine menace" contributed to the cessation of operations, the army said.

Enough on Hand Now.

The officials explained that the army always allowed a margin of loss in transporting ammunition overseas but that, even with this allowance, there was sufficient .50 caliber ammunition being sent abroad, thus eliminating the need for the Lowell production.

The cost of the plant, which the government financed, was never disclosed, but it was estimated at millions of dollars.

ARMY CHARGES PEORIA HAS 90 RED LIGHT JOINTS

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 20 [Special].—City and county officials and civic leaders heard charges today by army officials that 90 houses of prostitution are in operation here.

Warning that the army will clean up the situation if local authorities fail, Brig. Gen. George E. Hartman, commandant at Camp Ellis, asserted that prompt action is necessary to make the area safe for service men. He was backed up by Col. Thomas G. Gowenlock, coördinator of law enforcing agencies in Illinois, and by representatives of the army provost marshal's office in Chicago.

Gen. Hartman said an army investigation of Peoria vice conditions, resulting in the discovery of 90 houses of ill fame, was launched after 40 soldiers at Camp Ellis contracted venereal diseases in October. City officials expressed surprise at the figure of 90 houses of prostitution, but admitted they knew of 10. Those attending the meeting included Mayor Edward N. Woodruff, Sheriff Charles Swords, Chief of Police Edward Wombacher, State's Atty. Roy Hull, and representatives of the Peoria Ministerial association and the Peoria Association of Commerce.

Does Your Face Powder Whisper
Older? Younger?

Your age is your own affair! But can your face powder keep a secret? Does the powder you use hide those first sly signs of age? Or does it cruelly accent every line—make you look a little older?

By Lady Esther

When someone asks you your age, do you hesitate, just an instant? Do you drop off a year or two? It's no crime, you know . . . everybody wants to look young!

But if you want to look young and attractive, why use a face powder that may add age to the appearance of your skin—even a tiny bit? Why not use the face powder deliberately planned to flatter your skin—to make it look younger and more enchanting—Lady Esther Face Powder!

You see, Lady Esther Face Powder is so flattering because it's made differently. It isn't just mixed, just sifted, in the usual way. It's blown by Twin Hurricanes—blended with the speed and power of hurricanes—to look clearer, smoother and more youthful on your skin!

Because of this patented, exclusive method of hurricane blending, the texture of Lady Esther Face Powder is much smoother and finer than ordinary powder. The first touch of your puff spreads a delicate film of beauty on your skin, hiding little lines, little blemishes. And Lady Esther Face Powder clings so much longer, too—clings smoothly and fragrantly—stays fresh four long hours!

But the most exciting difference is in the shades. Lady Esther shades have a subtle new quality—because of the way the color is blown in by hurricanes. Many women say that the Lady Esther shades are so fresh and alive—they look so youthful and appealing on the skin—that ordinary powder shades seem dull and drab by comparison.

Living Proof— In Your Own Mirror!

Why choose a face powder because it is expensive, or because of a clever package? Judge it only by its appearance on your skin!

That's why I say—try Lady Esther Face Powder! Get the smallest size box, if you like—but try it! When you see how much softer, smoother and younger it makes your skin look—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But for living proof in your own mirror that this is the most flattering face powder you have ever used, get the small-size box of Lady Esther Face Powder today!

DIRKSEN PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED WITH GOV. GREEN

Committee of Publishers Will Be Named.

Garner Speaks Out

Uvalde, Tex., Nov. 20 (AP).—John N. Garner, breaking a long silence on governmental matters, said today that the way to solve post-war problems was to "take the hobbles off the people." In an interview two days before his 75th birthday, the former Vice President said: "Give them [the people] a chance to think and act for themselves. Return to the American way of life and the people will solve the problems."

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

A committee of downstate newspaper publishers will call upon Gov. Dwight H. Green soon to discuss with him the possibility of Rep. Everett M. Dirksen of Pekin entering the Republican Presidential primary without harming the strong G. O. P. unity program. Not yet appointed, the committee was decided upon at a meeting of downstate publishers in the Morrison hotel.

Dirksen has been found often on the side of the internationalists, and it was not recalled that he previously had taken issue with Wendell Willkie. He was told if he announces that he wants to be President, he should make a public statement that he is not for Willkie and has no intention of corraling Illinois delegates and turning their votes over to the defeated 1940 candidate.

Approves Mackinac Statement.

According to all reports from the closed session of publishers, Dirksen was not asked about his connections with such recognized internationalists as Deneen Watson, promoter of the Republican Post-War Policy association, now defunct, and Henry Luce, magazine supporter of Willkie who recently bestowed a friendly article in Fortune upon Dirksen.

However, Dirksen did take the occasion to approve the Republican statement on foreign policy formulated at the Mackinac Island conference. He also said that he is opposed to New Deal burocracy.

Hosts for about 15 publishers were Carl P. Slane, publisher of the Peoria Journal-Transcript; George Z. Barnes, vice president of the Peoria Star, and F. F. McNaughton, publisher of the Pekin Times, all in Dirksen's congressional district, the 16th.

Seek United Delegation.

Several of the publishers were emphatic in their opinion that Dirksen had better take the program of Republican state leaders into account before committing himself to a candidacy which might conflict with it. State party leaders want an uninstructed and united delegation from Illinois to give this state greater power in 1944 than it was able to wield at the 1940 convention.

Meanwhile, in Peoria a possible opponent for Dirksen's seat in congress returned from Washington and was immediately subjected to reported pressure from Dirksenites not to run. He is Lawrence A. Welch, president and general manager of the Avery Farm Machinery company of Peoria, now serving as a $1 a year man for the war production board. Welch said he might make his decision before returning to Washington Tuesday.

Chicago Heights Passes $75,465 War Fund Goal

In a whirlwind four day campaign the Chicago Heights community and war fund campaign committee topped its quota of $75,465, it was announced yesterday by the fund's metropolitan Chicago office. The Chicago Heights campaign was opened last Tuesday, and at the report meeting Friday it was revealed $76,000 had been subscribed. King Williams, 220 Country Club road, Chicago Heights, is chairman of the Chicago Heights campaign committee.

CLOTHING STOLEN FROM AUTO.

Thomas Frundt of 12402 Harold avenue, Palos Heights, reported to police yesterday that thieves broke into his car, parked at 62d street and Stewart avenue, and took clothing and seat covers, all valued at $54.

BRICKER URGES DEFINITE STAND ON ALIEN ISSUES

Columbus, O., Nov. 20 (AP).—Gov. John W. Bricker said today the Republican party ought to take a "definite stand on foreign issues and let the country know what that stand is."

"I think," the candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination told his press conference, "that lack of a definite stand is one of the difficulties facing the country today. The people don't know where we stand."

The governor said in Chicago yesterday he felt the nation's foreign policy was a proper subject for debate in the forthcoming political campaign.

"If the parties find they agree, that is all right," he expanded today. "But at least they should debate the issues. Any attempt to foreclose discussion of international relations before the election is not consistent with American doctrines."

WPA EMPLOYES ARE BARED AS STATE BURDEN

Woman Legislator Says They Rule Funds.

Altho the work projects administration has been dissolved, its personnel in Illinois remains a burden on the public pay roll as a result of its transfer to a different setup, State Rep. Bernice T. Van der Vries [R., Winnetka] charged yesterday before the board of managers of the Council of State Governments in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive.

Mrs. Van der Vries told the board that the former WPA employes were administering the funds of the Lanham act, handling and controlling expenditures for day nurseries, school lunches, and similar purposes, from the United States treasury to the final recipient, without state or local supervision.

Board Advocates State Control.

The board of managers, which is a policy making group, acted, as Mrs. Van der Vries proposed, in favor of state and local control over such funds as the Lanham act's. The board voted to give vigorous support to a bill, S-1130, which has passed the senate and is in house committee, providing for such control thru the federal security agency, and condemned another measure, HR-3206, which modifies and, according to Mrs. Van der Vries, "is even worse than" the Lanham act.

Simplification of the federal ballot which the Lucas-Green bill proposes be distributed to men in service for the 1944 general election was urged by Frederic W. Cook, secretary of state of Massachusetts and president of the National Secretaries of State association.

State Ballots Also Urged.

The board voted in favor of all possible measures for service men to vote in state elections as well as for President, senators, and congressmen.

Fuller use of existing agencies of state and local governments to do the jobs necessary in prosecuting the war, rather than expansion of the federal burocracy, was urged by Frank Bane, executive director of the council, in a report the managers approved.

The report asserted that "the establishment of large agencies with thousands of employes scattered thruout the country, duplicating in many instances governmental agencies already in existence, is unnecessary, undesirable, and almost always detrimental to the fullest use of our facilities in this emergency."

The report pointed out that "the states have insisted that those duties and responsibilities transferred to the federal government for war purposes must be returned to the several states at the end of the war."

Saltonstall Elected Chairman.

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts was elected chairman of the board, succeeding Gov. Herbert O'Conor of Maryland. Grant McFarlane, president of the Utah senate, was elected first vice president; Sidney Smyer, Alabama state representative, second vice president; Francis A. Pallotti, attorney general of Connecticut, third vice president, and George B. McKibbin, Illinois director of finance, auditor. O'Conor and McKibbin were elected members at large, to serve five year terms.

Screen Romances

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 20 [Special].—In a simple ceremony attended by only a few friends, Actress Bunny Waters, 27 years old, and Composer-Conductor Johnny Green, 35, were married today at the Beverly Hills home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cummings. Judge Cecil D. Holland performed the rites. The bride, wearing a white dinner dress and carrying a spray of white orchids and white roses, was attended by Mrs. Gene Kelly. Jack Cummings served as best man.

Another Hollywood romance found Victor McLaglen, film actor, meeting his bride-to-be, Suzanne Rockefeller Bruggemann, at the Glendale railroad station when she arrived from San Francisco. McLaglen said they plan to be married within the next few days, probably in Yuma, Ariz. Miss Bruggemann has been the actor's secretary for the last six years. After their marriage they will live at McLaglen's 760 acre ranch near Fresno.

BUCHALTER AND 2 PALS GET 3D DEATH RESPITE

Louis Buchalter.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 20 [Special].—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today for the third time granted a respite to Louis [Lepke] Buchalter, Louis Capone, and Emanuel Weiss, three New York City racketeers under sentence of death for murder. He postponed the date of their execution from Nov. 29 until Jan. 3.

The governor's action resulted from another refusal of President Roosevelt to grant a conditional pardon to Buchalter so he can be turned over to the New York state authorities. He is serving a 14 year sentence for violation of the federal narcotics law and is now in the federal house of detention in New York City.

Custody Often Requested.

District Atty. Thomas C. Hughes of Kings county repeatedly has requested the federal authorities for the custody of Buchalter, but his petition has always been denied. Counsel for the three condemned members of "Murder, Inc.," have applied for a hearing to consider executive clemency, but the governor takes the position that it would be unfair to take such action until all three are in the custody of the state. Capone and Weiss are now in the death house at Sing Sing prison. They were convicted of slaying Joseph Rosen, a Brooklyn florist in 1936.

Gov. Dewey charged that Lepke is being "protected from punishment by the failure of the President of the United States to grant the customary conditional pardon."

"Louis Buchalter," said the governor, "is the major figure of the three and is now serving a sentence in a federal penitentiary. It has been the practice in the past under such circumstances for the President of the United States to grant a conditional pardon to such a prisoner.

"I have twice respited the executions of Capone and Weiss because I will not consider their cases while the principal defendant is protected from punishment by the failure of the President of the United States to grant the customary conditional pardon."

Biddle Refuses Release.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle said tonight he will not recommend the release of Louis [Lepke] Buchalter from federal custody "as long as any possibility exists" that his New York death sentence may be commuted.

His office "has made it plain," Biddle said, "that at such time as the governor of New York has ruled on Buchalter's clemency petition and advises the attorney general that the state is ready to carry out the sentence imposed by the state court, prompt consideration will be given to the commutation of the federal sentence."

THREE GET $50 IN TAVERN.

Henry Foley, bartender in a tavern at 5204 Harrison street, reported to police yesterday that three Negroes held up the place and obtained $50.

ANNUAL FEASTS AT INSTITUTIONS THANKSGIVING

Traditional Thanksgiving dinners, unrestricted by the point system, are in prospect for most of the large charitable and penal institutions of the Chicago area, menu samples indicated yesterday.

Veterans of World War I. at Edwarrd Hines Jr. hospital were promised, among other delicacies, 1,500 pounds of roast turkey and a salad of 1,200 grapefruit and 100 pounds of pomegranates.

Plans were made to serve 2,000 pounds either of chicken or turkey at County hospital; 3,200 pounds of roast chicken at Oak Forest infirmary; 1,000 pounds of chicken at the Bridewell; 750 pounds of roast young chicken at the county jail, and 350 pounds of turkey or chicken at the Juvenile home. Customary trimmings will accompany the turkey or chicken, institutional heads said. There will be no entertainment in the Bridewell, in contrast with vaudeville in other years, Supt. Edward Denemark said.

Thanksgiving, tho, will be just another day in one Chicago institution. In the police headquarters lockup, the customary sandwich will be served. It will be bologna.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Northwestern's Wildcats went in for points in a big way yesterday while closing the season in battle with Illinois in Dyche stadium. The Wildcats, altho disturbed at times by the elusiveness of the 148 pound Eddie Bray, went to work early and stayed on the job until a decisive 53 to 6 score had been fashioned before 25,000.

Hopelessly outclassed and in arrears before the final few minutes had been reeled off, the Illini never had a chance, but it remained for one of them to sprinkle the one-sided struggle with a 90 yard sprint. And, of course, that one was the squirmy Bray, who pedaled his way thru the entire Wildcat layout on a kickoff in the third period to account for the lone Illinois scoring expedition.

Otto Finishes Well.

Otto Graham, the Wildcats' pitching expert, closed his varsity career in fitting fashion. Altho not employed from start to finish, Otto was in there enough to throw four completions in six attempts for 47 yards, boosting his Big Nine record total to 158 successes in 334 throws for 2,163 yards. And for an appropriate conclusion, Otto, attired in civilian clothes by the time the game ended, sauntered out onto the field, copped the ball over which the two teams were fighting, and went away from there in a hurry. Otto also picked up 79 yards on the ground, some of this permitting him to score two of the touchdowns.

The Wildcats, far heavier, seemingly far more talented, and with just enough speed to keep Bray and his pal, Eddie McGovern, from getting completely out of hand, needed only one minute and 27 seconds to launch the touchdown stampede. Before the first period closed they had made three sorties over across the enemy goal. In the second quarter they were satisfied to confine themselves to one march but by way of making up for this pause roared forth with two more in the third and another pair in the last fifteen minutes.

Score in Three Plays.

By way of showing there was no intention to fool around, the Wildcats tried to pass on the first play after receiving the afternoon's initial kickoff. Three more plays proved sufficient to get them across the Illini goal for the first time. Nick Vodick wandered thru a wide opening at center and hiked 48 yards to the Orange and Blue 14. The same opening awaited him on the next down, so he drifted to the 3 yard line where Graham attended to the touchdown ceremony and also to the harvesting of the extra point.

The second touchdown was put under way as soon as the Wildcats could get their claws on the ball. This happened when Graham took a punt from Don Greenwood and lugged it up 29 yards to the Illini 10. A couple of passes clipped off

THE SCORE THAT STARTED THINGS AT NOTRE DAME

MICHIGAN ROLLS OVER OHIO STATE, 45-7, FOR SIXTH BIG 9 TRIUMPH

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20.—Michigan, led by Bob Wiese, ran over Ohio State this afternoon, 45 to 7, to finish its Western conference football schedule of six games undefeated. By this decisive triumph, before 45,000, the second largest home attendance of the year, the Wolverines share the 1943 title with Purdue.

Today's conquest ended a decade in which Michigan had not won top ranking, and this was the first time since 1932 that Michigan has had a perfect conference record. While the result was by no means unexpected, the size of the score scarcely had been predicted, since two of the varsity backs who started the campaign, Bill Daley and Capt. Paul White, were missing this afternoon, and a third, Elroy Hirsch, appeared only to attempt place kicks for points after touchdowns.

Ohio Flashes Power.

Michigan's seven touchdowns are impressive but the doughty, inexperienced youngsters from Ohio State made a valiant fight for 35 minutes. Their own errors led them into trouble in the first period in which Michigan scored twice, but they held the Wolverines scoreless in the second quarter. Then to the amazement of the thousands, the Bucks led off with a touchdown to open the second half.

Michigan now led only 13 to 7, but the young Buckeyes could not keep the pace. The Wolverines settled to a methodical attack at Ohio's guards and tackles to score twice before the end of the third quarter. Ohio State's defenses collapsed completely in the last period and Michigan rushed and passed to three more scores in this time.

Michigan needed only five plays to mark up its last two touchdowns. The ineffectiveness of Ohio State's play is adequately expressed by Michigan's 23 to 2 advantage in first downs and total gain of 531 yards to 95 yards.

Wiese Spearheads Attack.

Wiese carried the ball 30 times today and gained 138 yards. His number of rushes was short two of equaling all Buckeye rushes and he personally doubled the rushing yardage of all the Ohio State backs.

The Michigan full back, who returned to this position after Bill Daley was transferred by navy order, was the key to the Wolverine attack. His powerful plunges on spin plays were almost unstoppable and when he faked this maneuver he set up plays at the flanks by Bob Nussbaumer and Walter Dreyer.

Ohio State held in the first period after Paul Davis' fumble, recovered by Rudy Smeja, gave Michigan the ball on State's 15 yard line. The next time Wolverines got the ball they scored in a 40 yard drive. Wiese led off with 11 yards and he and Dreyer then marched to Ohio's 19. On the fourth play of the next series, Wiese took a screen pass from Jack Wink and went to Ohio's 7 yard line.

Buckeyes Gamble and Fail.

The Buckeyes gambled on fourth down after the subsequent kickoff when they faked a punt but Dean Sensanbaugher failed to make distance at end and Michigan took over on State's 41. Nine plays got the touchdown and Wiese carried

Gophers Whip Badgers, 25-13, Before 19,780

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 20.—Minnesota beat a surprisingly high spirited Wisconsin team, 25 to 13, today in Memorial stadium in a game that was packed with enough action to be a worthy addition to the long succession of football clashes between these universities.

On Minnesota's second play from scrimmage Charles Avery broke clear for a 61 yard touchdown run and there was something going on nearly all the time thereafter until the Gophers ploughed to the Badgers' 3 yard line as the final gun was fired.

Good Show All the Way.

That first Minnesota scoring play was pulled off so easily that it seemed as tho the game might become a runaway, but the Badgers fought back with so much zip that it was a good show all the way. They actually led Minnesota, 7 to 6, toward the end of the first quarter but the Gophers promptly executed a magnificent long passing maneuver, Wayne Williams to Avery, that was good for 68 yards and another touchdown. They weren't headed again thereafter, but the Badgers remained close enough thru most

BOILERMAKERS WIN TITLE SHARE IN 7 TO 0 VICTORY OVER INDIANA

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 20.—Frank Bauman's touchdown, on a pass from Sam Vacanti, in the final minute of the first quarter, plus a conversion by Stan Dubicki, gave Purdue a 7 to 0 victory over Indiana's valiant Hoosier's this afternoon. Thus the Boilermakers, on their first points scored against Indiana in four years, completed their nine game schedule without a defeat or a tie to become Big Nine co-champions with Michigan.

The Harvey, Ill., lad's touchdown was for a gain of 38 yards and came after the Boilermakers had invaded Indiana territory for the first time in the first 14 minutes of play. Thereafter the Hoosiers' offense, led by 60 minute Bob Hoernschemeyer, and a spectacular Purdue defense, supplied all the thrills afforded by this 46th Indiana-Purdue clash.

First Downs Compared.

Testimony as to the way Indiana threatened is reflected in the fact that Indiana made 10 first downs in the second half to 3 by Purdue. [Indiana had 13 in the entire game, Purdue 9.] In the final quarter, Indiana made three thrusts that carried them within a few feet or inches of a touchdown.

Twice they fumbled inside the 5 yard line and in the last minute of play the Hoosiers were first down and 7 yards to go for a touchdown. With 55 seconds to go John McDonnell, of Chicago, dashed thru to the 1 foot line. Jim Allerdice made two thrusts and was stopped on the 6 inch line both times. With five seconds left, Hoernschemeyer tried to complete a pass to John Cannady, but it was no good. Purdue took over the ball, downed it as the game ended.

First Thrust Thwarted.

The first major thwarting of the Hoosiers' ambitions came in the last second of the first half. Pete Pihos, of Chicago, intercepted a pass and apparently had a clear path to the goal when Vacanti dumped him on the 10 yard line. Then the gun ended the half.

The third period saw Indiana advance to within 9 yards of the Boilermaker goal only to have Vacanti end the threat with an interception.

As the fourth quarter got under way a Hoernschemeyer pass to Cannady and Don Mangold's squirm thru left tackle advanced the Hoosiers to Purdue's 23 yard line. Mangold and Allerdice then got to Purdue's 5 yard line and it was first down and goal to go.

Fumble Ends Threat.

On the first play Cannady fumbled and Boris Dimancheff recovered. Chalmers Elliott got off a beautiful kick from the edge of the end zone but Hoernschemeyer

Phillips Wins City League Title, 12 to 6

BY FRANK NORRIS.

Phillips proved too powerful for a fighting Steinmetz team yesterday and captured the City High School league football championship by defeating the West Siders, 12 to 6, before a crowd of 15,000 in Soldiers' field. Phillips obtained its victory thru two first half touchdowns and then staved off all but one of a number of threats by the Flashes in the second half.

The victory sent Phillips into the 10th annual Mayor Kelly Bowl game against the Catholic league champion, which will be either Mount Carmel or St. George who meet today in the lake front arena. The championship was the first ever won by an all-Negro football team in the history of the City league. The championship, however, is not the first for Phillips which tied Englewood in 1913 and repeated in a three way tie with Englewood and Lane Tech in 1915 before Phillips was converted exclusively into an all-Negro school.

As usual the star of the Phillips attack was Claude [Buddy] Young, the state's 100 yard dash champion. Young scored both of the Cats' touchdowns, one on a pass play and the other on a two yard plunge. Young's two touchdowns brought his season's total to 23, of which 21 have been scored in sectional and championship play. He scored all of Phillips' points in the two play-off games except for a place kick by Jim Williamson in the Amundsen game.

Young Well Supported.

In addition to Young, Don Johnson, a smashing full back, Horace Chandler, who pitched the touchdown pass to Young, Allen Anderson, who doubled at full back and right end, and Capt. Earl Banks were outstanding for the Central section Negro champions.

Phillips used a spectacular pass play to score its first touchdown. After Neswold's excellent punt sailed out of bounds on the Cats' 16, Young slipped thru left tackle

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 20.—The greatest team this correspondent ever has seen at Notre Dame today defeated the Iowa Seahawks, 14 to 13, to retain its rating as the No. 1 unit of intercollegiate football.

Only the greatest team in Notre Dame history could have beaten an opponent the calibre of the one it faced today. Iowa Pre-flight, sparked by Dick Todd, who for six years was an outstanding performer in the National football league, thrilled 45,000 spectators from the opening kickoff to the final gun.

Never have we seen a game with better blocking, surer tackling, finer line play, more spirited ball carrying, or more intelligent direction of team tactics. It was a battle of two mighty lines tearing each other to pieces and chopping up running plays in the process. Brilliant backs had only occasional chances to glitter. The real actors were up front along the scrimmage strip. It was there that plays perished. Seldom could either back field do any consistent marching. It was chiefly a battle of strangled offense.

Earley Does It.

It remained for Fred Earley, who only recently reached his 18th birthday, to clinch victory for the Irish. His team, for the second time in this thrilling game, had come from behind to tie the score late in the last quarter. Twice in last week's game Earley had failed to add the point after touchdown. It didn't matter, because Notre Dame had a commanding lead. Today his accuracy determined the outcome of a game that was even in every other way.

Earley didn't fail when the pressure was on. His kick sailed squarely between the uprights and that was the last seen of him for at least half a minute. Teammates swarmed all over him with congratulatory slaps on his head and back. Earley gave evidence today they haven't taken the foot out of football.

Those who had expected Notre Dame to overpower the Seahawks as it had all of its college opponents were stunned at first half developments. It was Iowa Pre-Flight's backs, Todd, Art Guepe, and Jimmy Smith, who were prancing thru the line. It was Todd's toe which twice kicked the ball out of bounds inside Notre Dame's 5 yard line, thereby keeping the pressure on the Irish until they yielded a touchdown at the end of the first quarter.

Todd Suffers Injury.

Todd, incidentally, was the most dangerous ball carrier on the field. He averaged six yards in his 13

Illini Crossed Up.

The third touchdown of the first period followed a pass interception by Junie Franck on the Purple's 39. After losing 12 yards in an attempt to pass, Graham started another pitch but changed his mind and began running, the surprised Illini not locating him until he had arrived at their 32 yard mark.

In two drives he picked up 8 yards and Vodick followed with a plunge to the 6 yard zone. In two plays Graham went over the goal and altho his kick for the extra point was blocked Jerry Carle picked up the ball and scooted across the line to make it 21 to 0.

The second period was pretty well along before the Wildcats got around to another batch of points. A punt gave the Wildcats the ball on the enemy 42 and Franck promptly rambled thru to the 17. Vodick and Graham rushed it up to the 1 yard line and Franck scored thru a hole in the right side of the Illinois line. Carle kicked to stretch the score to 28 to 0.

Bray Has His Day.

The Wildcats used up less than three minutes of the third period for their fifth jaunt over the Illinois goal. Franck took charge of a punt and raced it up to the enemy 48 yard line, where he was nudged out of bounds. He followed with a 17 yard sprint and Vodick did the rest for a 34 to 0 count, Carle's conversion attempt being ruined. It was on the subsequent kickoff that the tiny Bray took the ball and made his nonstop jaunt into the Wildcats' end zone.

About midway of the third quarter the Wildcats, after receiving the kickoff on their own 37, went the route for the sixth time. Franck passed to Harker for 15 yards and from that point the Wildcats stayed on the ground, Vodick taking care of the last 15 yards in two plays. Graham's kick was blocked again but, with the Wildcats leading 40 to 6, it wasn't important.

Wildcats Keep Going.

Early in the final period Scriba intercepted a pass on his own 34 yard line and the Wildcats turned it into another touchdown, Graham going over from the 4 after helping in the advance with a 21 yard pass to Bob Wallis. The Wildcats tried to get the extra point on a pass to Graham by Carle but it was incomplete. The last bit of scoring came soon thereafter when Bernie Schadler sprinted across after taking a long pass from Bill Adler. Capt. Alex Kapter then wound up his collegiate footballing by kicking the extra point.

MACK PREDICTS BASEBALL WILL FLOURISH IN '44

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP).—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, predicted today that baseball would flourish in 1944 and there would be more instead of fewer leagues in operation. "There is no reason to be discouraged," Mack said in an interview. "The outlook is brighter than it was a year ago at this time. You will see more class D leagues in operation. We have no right to be concerned with the quality of baseball. The game is the thing we must keep going." Mack, accompanied by Mrs. Mack, was in Buffalo as a guest of Joe McCarthy, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, and Mrs. McCarthy.

brought it back to the 33. After taking a short pass McDonnell ran 23 yards for a first down on the Purdue 9. Allerdice got to the 2 yard line; then he got to the 1 yard line, where Joe Winkler, of Hammond, stole the ball.

Indiana surged right back after Elliott had kicked out, a pass, Hoernschemeyer to Frank Hoppe of La Grange, Ill., carrying the ball from the Indiana 40 to Purdue's 23. Another pass, Hoernschemeyer to McDonnell, was good for first down on the 7 yard line. It was here that the aforesaid last minute doings began.

Two Throw 24 Passes.

All the 24 passes in the game were thrown by two players, Hoernschemeyer tossing fifteen, completing nine and suffering two interceptions. He made 118 yards. Vacanti tried nine, completed 4, had two interceptions and accomplished 67 net yards, including, of course, the 38 yard victory pass.

The overland traffic was widely shared by several players. For the winners Dimancheff was the most active as a toter from scrimmage, carrying the ball 21 times for 52 yards. Elliott accomplished 41 yards in nine tries. For the losers Allerdice gained 56 yards in a dozen tries. Hoernschemeyer and Mangold netted 28 yards apiece, and McDonnell, 16.

Tho it was the first time Purdue had succeeded against Indiana since 1939, it was the 25th Boilermaker victory against 16 for the Hoosiers.

trips, sending chills up and down the spines of Notre Dame adherents every time he got the ball. He was carried off the field with a broken jaw a few minutes before the end of the game and every one in the stadium came to his feet to cheer a player who almost had removed the nation's No. 1 eleven from the narrowing list of undefeated and untied teams.

While Todd had the highest ball carrying average, Creighton Miller, Notre Dame's All-American back, gained the most yards. He carried 20 times for 88 yards, including a 6 yard dash for the touchdown that tied the score at 13 all.

Statistics bear out the equality of the teams, if the score is not sufficient evidence. The Seahawks made 14 first downs, one of which was on a penalty and Notre Dame earned 12. Pre-flight gained 197 yards by rushing to Notre Dame's 187, but the Irish had an edge in forward passing, 97 yards to 58. John Lujack, whose generalship, defensive play and kicking were high spots in Notre Dame's victory, completed 7 of his 15 tosses. The Seahawks clicked with 6 out of 18. Jimmy Smith, who formerly played for Illinois, threw two of the Jawares' successful passes, Todd two, Guepe one, and Bob Higgins one.

Filley Loses Toss.

Pat Filley, Notre Dame captain, lost the toss before the opening kickoff, the first time he had called the wrong turn this season. Then things happened to the Irish.

Pre-flight couldn't gain after taking the kickoff, but neither could Notre Dame when its turn came. On fourth down Lujack's punt was deflected by Nick Kerasiotis, former Bear lineman, and went out of bounds on the Seahawks' 44. The Iowans made one first down before the Irish line began to operate, at which point Todd punted out of bounds on Notre Dame's 4 yard line.

Miller got only a yard at right tackle, Lujack went thru center for 5, and Mello's plunge was just short of a first down. Lujack punted high and long to Todd, who was brought down on the Seahawks' 47. The Irish held for three downs and Todd again put them in a hole by kicking out of bounds on the 2. Three running plays left Notre Dame a yard short of required distance and Lujack punted from his end zone to his 37.

Seahawks Take Lead.

Pre-flight turned on a terrific burst of running power and the Irish momentarily cracked under the pressure. Smith dashed around Notre Dame's left end after Paul Limont, Irish wingman, had been pulled in close. Todd and Smith made only 2 yards apiece, but on the next play Smith again whirled around end for a first down on the 9. Bus Mertes got a yard at left guard, but Guepe went thru the opposite side of the line for a standup touchdown. It was the first time this season that the Irish had trailed an opponent. Bernard McGarry kicked the extra point as the first quarter ended.

Notre Dame's line still wasn't operating effectively on offense and the Irish backs couldn't gain after taking the kickoff. Lujack punted to Todd on the Seahawks' 20 and he was smothered on the 24. From that point the Pre-flight boys passed and rushed their way to Notre Dame's 13. Runs of 17 and 10 yards by Todd and Todd's 27 yard pass to Bob Timmons were the big factors in the Seahawks' parade.

Irish Make Stand.

The Irish threatened for the first and only time in the first half shortly before time ran out. Lujack hurled a pass to John Yonakor for 30 yards and Yonakor carried on for 20 more before he stepped out of bounds on the Iowans' 9. Bob Kelly picked up 3 at left guard but the gain was canceled on his attempted left end run. Lujack's pass to Yonakor was incomplete. He clicked with a 4 yard pass to Kelly as the gun ended the second quarter.

Known as the greatest third quarter team in 1943 football, the Irish lived up to their reputation today. McGarry kicked out of bounds intentionally to open the second half and it was Notre Dame's ball automatically on its 35. Down the field came Miller, Lujack, Mello, and Kelly. Once again they were the unstoppable back field that had crushed some of the greatest teams in the land. Their famous line—Limont, White, Filley, Coleman, Perko, Czarobski, and Yonakor—suddenly had come to life.

Irish on the March.

Mello cracked the Seahawk middle for 3. Miller danced thru right guard for 5. Lujack made it a first down on his 48. Mello rammed thru right tackle, was halted for a flash, but broke away for 17 yards. Miller hit center for 5, then dashed around right end for 13 and a first down on Pre-flight's 17. Notre Dame was penalized 5 yards for offside, the first one of the game, and Timmons of the Seahawks threw Lujack for a 1 yard loss. However, it took more than those discouragements to halt the Irish now. Lujack flipped a pass to Kelly for 15 yards and Mello went thru center for a first down on the 7. Mello made 1 at center and Lujack's lateral pass to Miller gained 3. Kelly pushed thru center for a touchdown. Fred Earley was sent in to make the extra point which tied the score at 7-all.

A few minutes later it looked as if the Irish were on their way to another touchdown, but the Seahawks held on their 18. The young men from Iowa City then put on one of their finest drives of the game, a march that carried to Notre Dame's 6.

McGarry Misses Point.

Miller broke away for 8 yards, but then disaster struck the Irish. Lujack fumbled the ball trying to hand it to Miller and the Seahawks' George Tobin, who last year won a monogram at Notre Dame, recovered on the Irish 13. On the first play Todd passed to Dick Burk on the 1 yard line and Burk stepped over for a touchdown. McGarry's try for the point hit the west upright and bounded back into the field, a break that saved the day for Notre Dame.

It was now the fourth quarter and those who were watching Notre Dame for the first time figured the scoring was over. They soon learned why the wearers of the Blue and Gold were called the "Fighting Irish."

Miller Ties Score.

Mello returned Pre-flight's kickoff to the Notre Dame 45. Miller ripped thru center for 8 and Kelly earned a first down on the Seahawks' 43. Mello got 4 at right guard and Miller 5 at center. Lujack's bullet pass to Yonakor was completed for a 12 yard advance. Miller pranced off right tackle for 7, and Mello banged center for 2. Miller gained a first down on the 6 and then broke thru his right tackle for a touchdown that tied the score. Then came Earley's kick from placement which sent up a victory cry that threatened to shake down the thunder from the sky.

Pre-flight had one more chance to pull the game out of the fire when Perry Schwartz, former star of the Brooklyn Dodgers, recovered a fumble by Miller on Notre Dame's 33. The Seahawks tried desperately to click with forward passes but four straight attempts found the ball still on the 33 yard line. Notre Dame took possession and froze the ball with two running plays until the gun ended a thrilling game.

Iowa Turns Back Husker Eleven, 33-13

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 20 [Special].—In a comedy of penalties and frequent fumbles, interspersed by brilliant runs, Iowa won its first game on Nebraska sod in 25 years here this afternoon by walloping Nebraska, 33 to 13. It was the Hawkeyes' final game of the 1943 season and their first triumph of the year.

Full Back Bill Gallagher set up the first Hawkeye score midway the first period when he raced 23 yards to the Husker 6. Stephens plunged over from the 1.

Punt Sets Up Score.

A poor punt by Nebraska's Clark Beaver gave the Iowans life early in the second quarter and Hank Terrell scored on a dazzling 34 yard sprint around the Nebraska right end.

Nebraska got its first scoring chance when Hudson's punt rolled out on the Iowa 47, the Huskers just missing a touchdown when Kenfield flipped a long 44 yard pass to Hollins, who was downed on the Iowa 1. Kenfield squirmed thru on a quarter back sneak.

The Huskers came right back in the third period when tall Bert Gissler grabbed an Iowa lateral and planted it on the Hawkeye 18. Nebraska took to the air to score with a substitute quarter back, Morris Galter, passing to End Bob Schneider from the 11 for the touchdown.

Huskers Go Quietly.

It was the last Husker scoring gesture, for on the succeeding kickoff Howie Larson raced 64 yards thru the entire Nebraska team to the 23, where he was run down from behind by Hollins. Terrell scampered over from the 9.

Nebraska's forwards made a great goal line stand early in the fourth period, holding the Hawkeyes for downs on the 1, but a blocked punt put them back in the hole. A penalty for roughing set them back to the 1, and Stephen plunged over from that point.

SAILORS HAND HILLTOPPERS A 25-6 DEFEAT

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Great Lakes' Bluejackets, awaiting next Saturday's attack by Notre Dame, yesterday fortified themselves with a 25 to 6 victory over Marquette, their ninth in eleven 1943 engagements and their second over the young Hilltoppers.

The 22,000 Bluejackets who packed Ross stadium left with the knowledge that their gridiron mates are standing by, ready for the Irish. Their offensive armament includes three of the swiftest backs in the land in the persons of Steve Juzwik, an old Notre Dame man himself; Emil Sitko, an Irish freshman last season, and Buist Warren, late of Tennessee. And Steve Lach, who didn't play a minute yesterday, is expected to be out of sick bay for the kickoff against Notre Dame.

Plenty of Trouble.

The sailors experienced considerably more difficulty in subduing the Hilltoppers than they had in their previous meeting on Oct. 24, when they won, 41 to 7. Marquette restrained the navy offense to 12 points in the first half, and then moved up with a 59 yard march for a touchdown of their own in the third quarter. The Bluejackets took only 90 seconds to make it 19 to 6, and exhausted just five minutes of the final period to run the score to its 25 to 6 finale. Thrice the Hilltoppers frustrated the Great Lakes attack, taking over once at the 9 yard stripe and twice at the 5 yard mark.

Outstanding in the Marquette cast were Joe Rudan, a 200 pound full back from Racine, and Steve Enich, a guard out of Hibbing, Minn. Sitko was the Sailors' top performer. Frankie Aschenbrenner, the Marquette passing and kicking star, was injured in the second quarter.

The First Touchdown.

Marquette smothered the Sailors on the opening kickoff and took a resultant punt from the Great Lakes 48 yard line to the Bluejacket 3, thanks to a long pass from Rudan to Paul Copoulos. Then Russ Letlow intercepted a fourth down Rudan pass and shortly afterward the Sailors scored their first touchdown, starting a drive from their own 10 yard line. Principal factor in this was Sitko's pass to Juzwik, who made a leaping catch on his own 40 and continued to the Marquette 34. The two then alternated with Full Back Dewey Proctor until Sitko dove over right tackle to score. Juzwik missed the kick.

After Quarter Back Paul Anderson recovered a Marquette fumble on his own 36 yard line, Sitko and Juzwik went to work again, but the Sailors fumbled on the Hilltoppers' 14. On first down, Aschenbrenner tried a quick kick, but George Perpich, Great Lakes left tackle, blocked it, and Right End Cecil Perkey scooped it up and ran for the touchdown, Juzwik again failing on the kick.

A Marquette Drive.

In the third quarter Marquette returned a Great Lakes punt to its own 41 yard mark. On first down, Rudan, behind excellent blocking, ran to the Sailors' 30 before he was forced out. Tony Komlanc picked up three, and Rudan then passed to Clyde Buettner on the Great Lakes 13. Rudan picked up 5 yards at left end and then found the other end for the touchdown.

Taking an out-of-bounds kickoff at their 35, the Bluejackets went the rest of the way for the touchdown, with a lift from a 15 yard penalty against Marquette. With the ball on the Hilltoppers' 33, Proctor sifted thru right tackle and romped over for the score.

L. S. U. CHOSEN AS ONE OF ORANGE BOWL'S ENTRIES

Miami, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP).—Louisiana State university's all-civilian football team beaten, 27 to 0, today by Tulane, will play in the 10th annual Orange bowl game here New Year's day.

The Orange bowl committee would not name the teams being considered to oppose L. S. U., but said the choice probably will be another eleven which does not have the aid of service cadets, so as not to disturb the training program. The list was believed to include Penn State, Franklin and Marshall, Wake Forest, Holy Cross, Tulsa, and Arkansas.

MICHIGAN TOPS OHIO, 45-7, AND TIES FOR TITLE

on seven of them. It was Dreyer, however, who got the last 2 yards on a lateral after a fake plunge by Wiese. Wells added the point for Michigan's 13 to 0 lead.

Michigan received to start the second half. On fourth down Wiese's punt—Michigan's first of the game—was partly blocked by Bill Hackett and recovered by Bill Miller on Michigan's 48 yard line. Glen Oliver and Sensanbaugher negotiated a first down on the Wolverines' 36 and then Ernie Parks on a reverse at defensive left end, turned the flank, shook off a tackler, and ran down the west sideline to score. John Stungis kicked the point and cut Michigan's lead to 13 to 7.

Ohio State's young men tired visibly and Michigan drove 59 yards to the goal in nine plays. Wiese again led off with a 11 yard plunge. The other principal contribution was by Earl Maves, substitute for Dreyer, whose 23 yard sprint at end put the ball on Ohio's 4. Wiese scored and Wells place-kicked successfully.

Score on Lateral.

Michigan scored again on the last play of the third period and did it in three plays. Maves got 6 yards and Wiese ripped thru guard and continued for 20 yards. On the same formation Wiese faked the plunge and handed the ball to Wink. The quarter back then lateraled to Nussbaumer who ran 31 yards around defensive left end to the goal. Hirsch came to try for the point and failed. Michigan now led 26 to 7.

After the kickoff opening the last period the Bucks got their second first down of the game and then Parks' fumble was recovered by Harry Olshanski, Michigan end, on Ohio's 45 yard line. Wiese hit the line and on Ohio's 33 Wink passed over Sensanbaugher's head to Vincent Mroz in the end zone. Hirsch again missed the point.

Another fake fourth down punt by Ohio State failed and Michigan took over on the Bucks' 23 yard line. Howard Wikel, substitute back, went around end for 9 yards and Don Lund, now playing full back, plunged for 7. Maves scored on a reverse and this time Hirsch place-kicked the point.

Interception of Don McQuade's pass by Maves opened the way for the final score. With the ball on Ohio State's 40 yard line Wikel passed to Joe Ponsetto, substitute quarter back, for 20 yards and Lund plunged thru guard and continued for the remaining 20 yards to score. A bad pass from center eliminated the try for point.

ARMY ROLLS UP 59-0 SCORE ON BROWN ELEVEN

Total Cadets' Highest Since 1919.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP).—The army football team warmed up for next week's Navy game by beating Brown, 59 to 0, today, the biggest score any army team has rolled up since the 1919 team defeated Villanova, 62 to 0. A crowd of 6,000 in Michie stadium watched the cadets hit the scoring column on nine of the 14 occasions they were in possession of the ball.

Earl Blaik, Army coach, had his bench cleared of reserves at the finish and even the fourth stringers scored. The only real threat Brown was able to make came in the fourth period, against the Cadet third stringers when an air attack reached the Army 5, only to be held for downs.

PENN STATE BEATS PITT.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—Penn State's Nittany Lions, led by Bill Abromitis, a former Pitt star, and two marine trainees who had joined the team only three weeks ago, struck for two first half touchdowns today to beat the Pitt Panthers, 14 to 0, before 15,000.

The second touchdown went from the Pitt 45 to the 5, where Dick McCown, a marine trainee from Philadelphia, kneeling down on the 12 for a field goal try, faked it and raced over on fourth down.

DARTMOUTH WINS.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 20 (AP).—Dartmouth's powerful football team wound up its season today with a decisive 42 to 13 victory over outmanned Princeton. The only blot on Dartmouth's seven game record is a 7 to 6 defeat by Pennsylvania.

A crowd of 8,000 saw Don Kasprzak lead the six touchdown Green attack. The former Columbia star twice passed to Allen Russell for touchdowns and scored a third himself on a 31 yard sprint in the last quarter.

Ft. Riley Beats Warriors, 10-6, on Brother Act

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 20 [Special].—Camp Grant's football team came back with its usual second half heroics this afternoon, but it could not overtake the Fort Riley Centaurs, who walked off with the Midwest Army championship by taking a 10 to 6 decision. In a previous meeting the elevens battled to a 13 to 13 tie on a rain soaked field. Conditions today were perfect.

When Corwin Clatt plunged over from the 1 yard line with five minutes of the last period remaining, the 7,000 soldiers and spectators were confident the Warriors would come back again as they have so often in previous games. The Centaurs, however, doggedly defended their four point lead to the finish.

Pass Starts It.

Camp Grant started its touchdown drive from its 47 yard line. Jim Dewar made a brilliant over the shoulder catch of Bill Reed's pass and was downed on the Fort Riley 18, a gain of 25 yards. Then Dewar, Clatt, and Tony Storti rammed to the 4, and the Centaurs were penalized to their 1 for offside. One big smash and Clatt was over the goal. Bob Orlando missed the try for the extra point.

Lack of time cost Camp Grant a score in the second period. After the kickoff, which followed Clifton Patton's 23 yard field goal for Fort Riley, Bill Burghardt passed to Dewar on the Centaur 37 for a 24 yard gain. Another toss by Burghardt landed in Bill Huber's hands on the 21, where he fumbled and teammate Sam Goldman recovered. Then John Andretich shot an aerial to Burghardt, who was knocked out of bounds on one yard mark. There was time for one play and Tony Storti could not make it as the half wound up.

Brother Act Scores.

A punt which went out of bounds on its two yard line put Camp Grant in a hole in the first quarter, and Fort Riley seized the opening for a score. The resultant return kick traveled only to Warrior 17. On third down Bob Ruman tossed to his brother, Bernard, on a screen pass, and the latter galloped across the goal. Patton kicked the seventh point.

The game ended Camp Grant's schedule of ten games and wound up the duties of Charley Bachman, civilian coach, who tonight returned to Michigan State college, where he has been head coach for ten years. The players presented him a watch as a parting gift.

and around end for 5 yards. On the next play Chandler flipped a beautiful aerial that traveled 24 yards in the air to Young on the Phillips' 45. The Negro star evaded Mills and McCarthy and then outran Chesney to cross the Flashes' goal line standing up. Young's run was for a distance of 55 yards and the pass play covered 74 yards in all. It was completed with less than two minutes of play remaining in the first quarter.

62 Yard Scoring March.

The new champions put together a sustained 62 yard march for their second quarter touchdown. Don Johnson started the ball rolling with a 28 yard gain after he smashed the Steinmetz left side of the line. It was first down on the Flashes' 34 yard line. After Allen Anderson fumbled and Don Johnson recovered for a 2 yard loss, the latter went thru center for 11 yards to the Steinmetz 25. Johnson then hit off tackle for a first down on 21 and the ball was placed on the Steinmetz 6 yard line when the Flashes were found guilty of unnecessary roughness.

The valiant Steinmetz eleven came out for the second half behind 12 points and determined to change the complexion of the game. After dueling back and forth for about eight minutes of the third quarter the Flashes began a drive that paid dividends.

McCarthy Goes Over.

Starting on the Steinmetz 40 yard line, Neswold split center on a delayed buck for 11 yards and a first down on Phillips' 49. Neswold and McCarthy gained 18 yards in three attempts for a first down on the 31. On second down Neswold passed to Wally Williams for 14 yards and a first down on the Cats' 21. After Mills picked up 3, McCarthy smashed the Phillips line three times for a first down on the 11.

Mills made 3 and McCarthy went for 6 but Chesney hit a brick wall. However, the ball was placed on the 1 yard line when Phillips was penalized for offside. McCarthy smashed the line twice before going over. Dick Bidstrup's attempt for the placement was blocked by Banks.

45,000 WATCH HARVARD PLAY A 6-6 BARGAIN

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20 (AP).—The informal football forces of Harvard and Boston college provided one of the most outstanding financial bargains in inter-collegiate sports' history while battling to a stirring 6 to 6 tie today before 45,000 persons. The huge throng, the largest New England football has attracted this season, sat in on the first gridiron clash in 19 years between these neighboring institutions for the flat price of 50 cents.

MOUNT CARMEL, ST. GEORGE PLAY FOR TITLE TODAY

When twilight closes in on Soldiers' field late this afternoon the Catholic High school league football championship will have been decided. Unless the two teams complicate the situation by playing a tie, the new champion will be either Mount Carmel of the south section or St. George of Evanston, the north side representative. A crowd of 15,000 is expected to witness the crowning of the successor to Leo, which ruled the league for the last three years.

Both teams enter the championship match undefeated in league competition. Each is in good mental and physical condition and eagerly looking forward to a victory and an opportunity to participate in the 10th annual Mayor Kelly bowl game against the City league champion, Phillips, Saturday in the lake front arena.

Mount Carmel Wins 4 Titles.

Except for a tie with the Leo Lions, Mount Carmel's Caravan has a perfect record of seven victories, two of which were scored in nonconference games. St. George has won eight of its nine games, dropping a 13 to 7 decision to St. Rita in a pre-league game. Each has had experience in the playoffs for the league title with Mount Carmel successfully winning the championship four times, in 1931, 1933, 1938, and 1939. The last two times it accomplished this feat under the direction of its present coach, Wally Fromhart.

St. George gained the finals in 1937 as co-champion of the north section. During the regular season St. George and Fenwick of Oak Park played a scoreless tie in sectional play and then repeated in an attempt to play it off. When a flip of a coin was used to determine the representative in the championship match St. George won but was defeated by Leo, 6 to 0.

Both Pack Scoring Punch.

Altho Mount Carmel is considered a slight favorite, it should be a close game. Both are capable of scoring frequently, with St. George having a reputation as a strong second half team. This may prove disastrous to the Dragons, for Mount Carmel is quick to capitalize on its opponent's mistakes and St. George as a rule makes a few in the first half of each game.

of the game to keep up the interest of the 19,780 spectators.

That scoring pass, incidentally, was the only one which the Gophers tossed thruout the afternoon. With Avery.

The second Badger touchdown came on a well-sustained march of 69 yards from a kickoff, with nearly all the ground being gained by smashes at the Gopher forward wall. Don Kindt did the heaviest plunging in this attack, with Ray Dooney also showing considerable punch.

Action Starts Early.

The spectators were just getting settled in the stands when they got action. The Gophers had the ball on their own 39 yard line ready for their second play from scrimmage after the Badgers had been forced to punt. Williams took the ball from center, faked a drive at the line, then turned and lateraled to Avery, who was sweeping around behind him from the right.

Avery made the catch at high speed, continued far over toward the left side line, then cut straight for the goal.

Badgers Take 7-6 Lead.

Immediately thereafter, Wisconsin returned to attack successfully. After Bill Peterson had punted from the end zone, Kindt returned the ball 20 yards to the 27 yard line. Behind the line of scrimmage, May lateraled to John Kuenzler, who found an opening in the left side of the Minnesota line. He charged thru it for a touchdown. When Kuenzler's place kick was good, the Badgers led, 7 to 6.

With the ball on the Gopher 32 yard line, a Minnesota scoring maneuver began. Avery raced far down the field while Williams, retreating behind his blockers, waited for the play to open up. Then he let go a long throw which Avery took without slackening speed on the Badger 30 yard line. He continued to the goal without being tackled. Peterson's kick was good and Minnesota led, 13 to 7.

Badgers Refuse to Quit.

After a scoreless second period, Minnesota increased its advantage. Howie Langpap recovered Art Robertson's fumble on the Badger 40 yard line. With Moncrief ripping the Wisconsin line for 12 to 15 yards at a crack, the Gophers went to the goal on seven plays, Williams going around end to score on fourth down from the 1 yard line. Peterson's kick was blocked and Minnesota led, 19 to 7.

The Badgers weren't finished yet, however. Kindt returned Peterson's kickoff to the Wisconsin 31 yard line. The advance from there was high lighted by Kindt's 20 yard fourth down breakthru which put the ball on the Minnesota 40 yard line. The Badgers had been one yard short of a first down when the play started.

The one pass employed in this march was a 10 yard toss from Lawrence Heinz to Kindt, which was completed on the Minnesota 25. From there in the Badgers just smashed their way, Kindt going over from the 1 yard line. The kick failed and Minnesota led, 19 to 13.

The Gophers went from the next kickoff to their last touchdown. Starting on their own 40, with Moncrief doing the most of the gaining and Williams supplementing his efforts, they moved steadily to the Badger 3 yard line. Then Moncrief drove over center for the touchdown which made it 25 to 13.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20 [Special].—The Chicago Blackhawks, possessors of a winning streak which has reached four straight, will meet one of their most severe tests of the young National Hockey league season tomorrow night when they play the Detroit Red Wings.

Not only are the Wings international champions by virtue of their victory in the Stanley cup play-offs last season, but they also hold a jinx of more than three years' standing on the Hawks. Not since March 15, 1940, has Manager Paul Thompson's Chicago team been able to beat the Wings in Detroit. Since that date the teams have met 16 times in this city and the best the Hawks have been able to get was a 3 to 3 tie last November.

CHAUTAUQUA IS A POPULAR SPOT WITH MALLARDS

BY BOB BECKER.

The mallard ducks which have been visiting the cornfields near the Illinois river during the last week and then flying back to the Chautauqua refuge to loaf around and digest their big meals bring a good many pounds of mud with them to the river bottoms on days and nights that are above freezing. When we were hunting among the stumps in the Patterson slough a short distance above Chautauqua a few days ago there were times when we almost forgot to shoot at ducks, so intent were we on checking birds that forgot to wipe their feet before starting for home.

Our front seat for hunting and also for watching the tremendous flight of ducks—which last week totaled an estimated 750,000—was unusual. Because the water is so low this year and also because the birds wanted to work the very shallow water in the open marsh, all of us in the shooting party moved in among the stumps with nary a blind, bush or even blade of grass around us. We had a little chair that fitted over one low stump so we could sit down with our feet anchored in mud covered with about 8 inches of water.

Officer Watches Parade.

At our right Lew Goodkind of Northbrook, was parked on another stump. Beyond him, John Lane, well known Illinois river duck caller squatted on another wet stump which was about 10 inches above the water line. Protecting our right flank was J. H. Kropke, state conservation officer from Canton, who had come into the marsh to check our bag limits and then stayed to watch the mudfooted mallard parade.

During the early morning hours thousands of birds kept sweeping over us, circling and working to the decoys. Most of the time there were too many around for comfort. We saw hundreds of these mallards with gobs of mud on their feet. Then we spotted one mallard drake that was really loaded down with excess baggage. This bird [direct from the cornfields where it had fed on grain left by the mechanical pickers] had a big gob of mud on one foot and stuck in the "gumbo" was a weed about 18 inches long. This fat old drake flew along with that weed trailing along behind it like a tail on a kite. We called out to the rest of the party to take a look at this bird.

There have been 750,000 mallards on Chautauqua this last week. It seemed to us that at least 710,000 of them were above our heads during the morning. Besides the mallards, canvasbacks whizzed by occasionally. About 8 a. m. we saw Goodkind drop one above his head. Teal burned up the airways above us. We nailed one that tried to do a fast sneak around on our left. Mallards came in at all angles before the northwest wind sprang up. When they got within range the "statues" on the stumps lifted their guns and big fat mallards, loaded with corn, dropped kersplash in the water. Some of the birds that swung to our decoys had so much corn in their crops they seemed to be slowed down in their flight. It was a magnificent duck spectacle to watch even tho our front row seats for the show and the superb shooting were slightly damp.

FORT SHERIDAN, CAMP M'COY TO TANGLE TODAY

Soldier Teams Play in Wrigley Field.

The first football team to represent Fort Sheridan in 15 years will be on display in Wrigley field this afternoon when an array of former college and prep school players from the army installation on the north shore meets the Camp McCoy, Wis., Engineers. The kickoff will be at 2 o'clock.

Altho Coach Lt. John Phipps' Fort Sheridan team was late getting started, its performance has been satisfactory. That is because of the fine work done in previous games by such as Dick Gutkowski, rangy left end from Jackson, Mich.; Bill Sims, 247 pound full back from Indiana; Bill Sticklen, 19 year old half back from Notre Dame, and Carl Marks, quarter back from Lindblom High school. Then there is Ralph Palmer, left guard from the University of Illinois.

The Camp McCoy Engineers, coached by Lt. Henry Lojewski, who played at Illinois in 1937, will be led by Bill Peck, one of football's biggest ends. The former University of Miami player towers 6 feet 7 inches and weighs 237 pounds. Another accomplished performer is Ken Aitken, 220 pound tackle from Purdue.

Leading the ground gaining department for the soldiers from Wisconsin are Tom Keenan and Bill McMahon. Keenan, who is only 18 years old and wears an iron mask while playing, is top individual scorer on the squad, having scored six touchdowns in three earlier contests.

MISSOURI PIN STAR

Bud Tierney, winner of the Kansas City Star's preliminary event, who will compete in the All-Star match game bowling tournament in Chicago Dec. 4 to 12. The tourney is sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

Tierney Heads Kansas City's 5 Man All-Star Delegation

Bud Tierney, a 28 year old sidearm specialist who will presently be in an army uniform, will be the Kansas City Star's representative in the third All-Star individual match game bowling tournament, to be presented by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America over the 12 handsome lanes of the Auditorium service men's center from Dec. 4 thru 12. Ernie Mehl and Ken Hegarty of the Star further report that four other Kansas City tenpin artists will join Tierney in representing the Missouri city in the big show.

In addition to the No. 1 man, Kansas City also will send the veteran Erle Shepherd; Barney McCoy of the Mid-Continent Painters' squad, who won the Star trials last year and competed here; Dick Kerr, a Classic league bowler who is making a comeback, and Fred Pugh, a newcomer who has made himself a respected competitor on Kansas City drives.

He's in the Army Now.

Tierney recently was inducted, but was granted enough time to adjust his business affairs and to compete in the All-Star event at the Auditorium. As a boy, Bud developed an unorthodox style of tossing sidearm fashion because the weight of the ball was too much for him, and he has retained it thru his adult years.

In the Star tournament, Tierney, top man on the Dean Rubber company crew, not only set the pace thru the preliminaries, but, when the field was reduced to the final eight, he sped thru the 28 game round robin with a 218 average and a Peterson point system advantage of six points over Shepherd.

Shepherd Averages 213.

Erle averaged 213 in the eliminations. He is a campaigner of 30 seasons' standing. McCoy, the winner of the Kansas City test in 1942, was off his game, but has been doing right well in league competition, carrying a 200 average. Kerr, who is a teammate of Tierney, returned to bowling three years ago after having given up the sport for 10 seasons. Within a few months, his sharp breaking hook made him one of the leaders in Kansas City's Classic league, and he now boasts an average of 195.

Pugh, who owns the Esquire Lanes in Kansas City, is unable to devote much time to the game as a competitor, but when he's in form, he's hard to beat. A year ago he won the Plaza Bowl singles in Kansas City with a six game aggregate of 1,263.

Seven Papers Represented.

Tierney is the seventh standard bearer of the newspapers thruout the country who are coöperating with the All-Star committee in conducting sectional trials. The other six are Bruce Slanker, Oklahoma City Times; Bob Eaves, Nashville Tennessean; Eddie Scott, Kalamazoo Gazette; Charles Stonebarger, Dayton [O.] News; Earl Riffert, Evansville Courier, and Gene Braun, Valparaiso Vidette-Messenger.

Spartas Play British R.A.F. Squad Today

Chicago soccer fans will have an opportunity this afternoon to see a game which promises to be one of the most attractive played in the city in recent years. The main attraction will be the British Royal Air Force team, made up of flyers in training in Dayton, O., which will oppose the Chicago Spartas in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue.

The game will be a benefit for the Chicago service men's centers and it is arousing more interest than any international match played here since the visit of a Scotch international team several years ago. The British squad of 13 men includes several who have played with leading league teams, all but two being former professionals.

Full Backs Are Amateurs.

In goal, Flight Sgts. Ronald Vance, from Surrey, is a player of the highest class. The full backs, Squadron Leader E. G. Davis and Corp. G. Warren, are the only two amateurs in the starting lineup. The professionals include Corp. J. Gordon, one of the best players on the team, who has been connected with Falkirk and Stoke City, two of the leading clubs in Britain; Corp. R. Wilkinson, from Sheffield; Flight Sgt. J. McCarthy of Everton; Sgt. P. Patterson of Aberdeen; Corp. J. Morley of Barnsley, and Warrant Officer R. Stamp of London.

Spartas Get Help.

The Spartas, anticipating their most severe test of the season, have enlisted a number of outstanding players from other Chicago teams. Among these recruits are Pete Matevich, George Hamous, Henry Kuhn, and Max Pearlman. The Sparta defense trio of Joe Silovsky, Tom Scott, and Laddi Mrnka, aided by Jimmy Wolf at outside left, will be ready for their best effort of the year. All other Sparta regulars are in top form. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock, following a preliminary at 1 between the Necaxas and the Italian A. C. Lineups for the main game:

WILY REDSKINS TRY THEIR SKILL AT PSYCHOLOGY

Insinuate They Can't Win from Bears Today.

BY EDWARD PRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—The Washington Redskins weren't talking like champions tonight on the eve of another battle with their arch football enemies, the Chicago Bears. The Redskins were frank about it—they had only a slim chance against the team which last week adding-machined 56 points against the New York Giants, famous as defensive perfectionists.

The Redskins said this somewhat brazenly, perhaps to prepare the 35,682 who will watch the battle of the two sectional leaders for the bad news. The Redskin story seemed logical. Dick Farman, all-National league guard, is in a hospital and Owner George Marshall preferred that he would stay there. But the team physician, at the last minute, said Dick could put on a uniform. Marshall admitted that Farman perhaps might play a minute or two if the occasion arose.

But He Still Can Throw.

Sam Baugh will show up for his aerial duel with the Bears' Sid Luckman, but he did not practice the last three days. Sam is double-teched—with back and leg injuries. But there have been no bulletins that anything is wrong with his right arm. Wee Willie Wilkin has an injured knee and Bob Masterson, veteran end, has leg trouble.

Coach Dutch Bergman's logic seems sound—why risk further injuries to these cripples against the Bears with a game coming up with Phil-Pitt and two with New York? Dutch very wisely figures the goal now is to clinch the eastern championship. The Redskins need two victories or one triumph and a tie. The important game with the Bears, in his judgment, is not tomorrow, but on Dec. 19 in Chicago for the league championship.

Report of this cautious Redskin strategy brought only coarse laughter from the Bears when they arrived here this morning. "We're not going to be fooled by that stuff," said Co-Coach Luke Johnsos. "We know they're ready to knock our hats off."

Use Canned Psychology.

The Bears were in good shape and didn't care who knew it. The Chicago coaches saved the biggest psychological weapon until tonight when the lid was taken off the aluminum can containing moving pictures of last year's title game here when the Redskins smacked down the Chicagoans, -, to ½, thereby ruining their bid for a third straight professional crown. Earlier in the day the Bears took a short workout in Griffith stadium.

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

CHRIS BOULOS, hustling proprietor of Elgin's Bowlway, not only is conducting an All-Star elimination in the watch city, but has jumped into third place in the standings on his own game after two sets of the final round competition at Bowlway. . . . Chris, who was one of the first to forward his franchise fee to Secretary Eddie Linsz for the main event, opening in the Auditorium Service Men's center a week from next Saturday, held an elimination series which drew 34 leading tenpin performers from the Fox valley.

In fact, the current trial, being decided on Fridays and Sundays, not only will determine the Elgin qualifier in the final cast, but also will settle the Fox valley championship. . . . Ten men are competing in a 36 game round robin at Bowlway. . . . Art Anderson of St. Charles is in front after two blocks with a Petersen point system rating of 37.28. . . . Second position is in charge of John Smith of Aurora, 35.26, and Boulos ranks next with 34.47. . . . Roy Rasmussen of Elgin, with 34.04, and Orwyn Freundt, also of Elgin, with 33.24, are fourth and fifth, respectively. . . . The Bowlway trials will be concluded next Sunday. . . . Boulos had high series for the first two blocks with an 823, followed by Smith's 803.

Ice Follies Bowlers Have Real Traveling League.

Every city has its traveling leagues, but we submit as the travelingest of them all the Ice Follies league. . . . This fine skating troupe, conducted by Oscar Johnson and the Brothers Shipstad, bowls every Thursday night, regardless of where their itinerary brings them. . . . Their top local performance was their Chicago Arena victory over a team from the Chicago Blackhawks. . . . Before the tour is over, they will have bowled in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Montreal, Toronto, Buffalo, and Minneapolis. . . . Chicago tenpin fans should not forget the Bowlers' Victory league fund. . . . Contributions are being used to forward playing cards and pocket domino, checker, and cribbage sets to the men overseas. . . . Every bowler is being asked to send $1 to the fund, Room 1706, 32 West Randolph street, Chicago, for which he will receive an attractive B. V. L. emblem. . . . Eddie Scott, who returns to the All-Star ensemble for the second year as representative of the Kalamazoo Gazette, is 39, the father of three children, and the manager of the Kalamazoo Recreation. . . . Joe Puccinelli of the Thompson's Restaurant squad, may be the next local star to don a uniform.

THE Chicago doubles tournament, in progress at Logan Square Recreation, 2552 Milwaukee avenue for the last six weeks, reaches its final Tuesday night, with the first and second place teams battling each other in the feature. . . . The Bill Flesch-Dick Winsberg duo, winning 17 and losing 7, meets Joe Traubenik and Eli Maricich, who have a 15-9 mark. . . . The former hold the series mark of 1,738, but Bill Hargadon and Harry Lippe took the high game honors from them with a 484. . . . Bill and Harry draw Bill Smith-Wally Genter for their final opponents. . . . The other matches: Art Butler-Pete Peterson vs. Norm Nelson-Charlie Drs and Herb Freitag-Jake Lenzen vs. Billy Rusch Jr.-Russ Creamer.

Since Bill Flesch, captain of the Classic league Monarchs, defending champions in that group, has recovered from that eye infection, he has been tumbling pins right and left. . . . In the last Classic session he picked up the tough 4-9 three times and in the benefit match he knocked over 244, 245, 243, and 202 for a stirring 934. . . . Marie Wilson of the Playdium All-Star Ladies' league last week contributed her eighth pint to the blood bank, and Bee Hochstadter, who is in charge of this drive and the Wings of Mercy campaign, donated her second. . . .

Day and Pugel Challenge National Doubles Champions.

Nelson Burton and Frank Mataya of St. Louis, who won the national doubles championship here last May, have just had their first challenge leveled at them. . . . It is being made by Ned Day and his youthful Milwaukee partner, Rudy Pugel, having been duly registered with Louis P. Petersen of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America. . . . Under the rules of the association, the champions must accept the defi and defend their crown within 90 days.

Johnny Small's comment after winning that ten-game match from Ned Day last Sunday: "Ned, I'm the happiest bowler in the country this afternoon because I was fortunate enough to beat the best in the world." . . . The Crowe Name-Plate Manufacturing company yesterday held a mixed doubles tourney at the Bowlium, Montrose, and Sheridan. . . . A turkey was the prize on each of the 30 alleys. . . . Livio Alfonsi reports that Roseland lodge, 1062, of the Loyal Order of Moose will be host to the Illinois Moose bowling tournament at Rose bowl on April 15 and 16. . . . More than 300 teams are expected to enter. . . . A bow to that 1,193 the Keeley Beers rolled in the North End Traveling league for a new season's national record.

ALAMEDA COAST GUARD TOPPLES CALIFORNIA, 7-0

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 20 (AP).—Playing bruising, battering football, the Alameda coast guard eleven closed its regular schedule today with a 7 to 0 victory over the University of California's Bears.

The Home Front

BY MARK COX.

IN this day of employers courting prospective employees you can count on the gents who do the hiring to put their best foot forward around the department where the application blanks are filed. As a result, you might expect to face a replica of the Army-Navy E upon entering the J. P. Seeburg company on Dayton street, but not so. Pass thru the side door, where the employment traffic is directed, mount the slight flight of stairs, and you will come face to face with a trophy case almost as high and about twice as wide as the massive guard lolling beside it.

It's small wonder the plant, which formerly manufactured automatic musical instruments but now is devoted solely to war industry in turning out transmitting and receiving equipment for the army and navy, is so proud of its trophy case, for therein rests what probably is the finest array of awards in the near north side industrial district.

Ralph Isacksen (right), personnel director at the J. P. Seeburg company, and Claude Mason, editor of the Seeburg Voice, company publication, look over some of the plant's athletic trophies.

Sports Fill Major Spot in Plant's Rapid Expansion.

About six years ago the plant was represented by a single softball and basketball team. Then the business began to suffer growing pains and out of the rapid advance sprang the Seeburg Social and Athletic association. Membership fees are a mere $1 a year and the social part of the name applies to such matters as a sick gift to any member laid up for a week or more, floral pieces to the family in case of death and a monthly recreational gathering.

The source of this phenomenal spurt in sports interest at Seeburg's can be traced to the vice president of the company, J. L. Barron, who a few decades ago was establishing a state record in the 880 yard run at Oak Park High school before going on to become a member of the Illini varsity track team for three years. It was not easy for a chap with his background to say "no" to any request along an athletic line and a young man named Ralph Isacksen, who is listed as personnel manager but also heads up the sports program, soon was to make the most of this.

Personnel Director Shows Way in Golf Tournament.

Bowling, one of the earliest ventures of the association, now has 100 men and 60 women competing each Thursday night at Goransons. There are more anglers than fish at the annual fishing party each year, and one of the largest gatherings each summer is for the plant golf championship.

"O, Mr. Isacksen," the personnel manager's secretary prompted at the mention of the golf tournament, "don't forget to admit you were the champion last year. You simply shouldn't miss an opportunity like this to tell about that 100 foot eagle you knocked in out of the rough to win."

But the ruddy cheeked gentleman only turned a bit brighter hue and insisted on passing off his feat by confessing he hadn't missed a golf game on Christmas day for six years. "And there hasn't been snow on a one of them!" he adds.

Maintain Softball Teams in Big League Style.

Last summer the company's investment in the softball program extended well into four figures, including uniforms later presented as permanent gifts to members of the five men's and four women's teams, equipment, and 38 trophies for the winners and runner-ups of the inter-plant leagues.

Now with Mike Priami having traded in his presidency of the association for a spot in the navy at Great Lakes, Vice President Phil Barile, the former high scorer of the old K. C. league, is lining up both men and girls basketball representatives. Coaching the men is Vince Infante, the former Lane Tech baseball and swimming star, and directing the lassies is Paul Napolitan, the plant expediter.

Even the executives keep in trim, Isacksen admits. Take Jim Barron, for example. The fellows still are accusing him of sprinting out of his house one zero morning at 2 o'clock with nothing on but pajamas, slippers, overcoat, and a determined look just to demonstrate his running ability. Of course, the house did burn down, tho.

John Carlyle Gregory, captain of the auxiliary military police at Mills Industries, is a great three cushion billiard player, but says its strictly a business with him and when he really wants to relax would prefer bowling, handball, or a swim. His scrap book includes recordings of one run of 14, two of 13, and eight of 12 in his 34 years of competition from coast to coast.

Patience is the greatest trait John Carlyle believes billiards develops, and just to prove it, has been withstanding the conversational challenges of many of his co-workers for some time now, but threatens to sponsor a one night rapid fire tournament just to settle the matter for once and all.

Boxers Tony Melchior, former pro, and James Clapp, or just plain Jimmy Murphy as you fight fans know him, now are laboring on the assembly line at Pullman-Standard. . . . The Stubbs' fishing trophy awarded each year to the Illinois Bell Telephone company's employee catching the largest bass, was won by B. J. French of the North Division plant, who hauled in a large mouth variety weighing 5¾ pounds. . . . Since her husband, Bru Williams, has proved his efficiency in badminton, Jo Smith, American Airlines stewardess field Supervisor, is learning to wield the long handled racket too.

Chanute Field Wants to Play Industrial Quintets.

Lt. H. Burns of Chanute field has passed along the word he would like to book some good industrial basketball teams to appear at the army post this winter. . . . It is understood unofficially these teams will be well paid for their visit. . . . Breaking the monopoly of Dixie teams represented in the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad bowling league has been a tough task but the Silent Knights, paced by W. J. Dugan, clerk in the office of the president, seems to have discovered the right combination and now rest only four games from the leaders. . . . Gladys Nelson of the Illinois Tool Works is being referred to these days as the shoeless bowler of the plant's girls' league. . . . Harry Kuhr, chronicler of the Sports Notebook for the plant publication, The Topics, is conducting a campaign for an extra shoe coupon for her.

Government Expenditures, 1914-1922

Americans in 1914 were complaining about the high cost of government, but by any subsequent standard Uncle Sam's spending before the first war was only peanuts. Sixty million dollars a month paid for everything in 1914, and there was no increase to speak of until mid-1916 when preparedness became a watchword. Even then (as now appears) federal finance was small change stuff, and as late as May, 1917, the month after we declared war, the Secretary of the Treasury paid out only 125 million. The billion a month rate was achieved in April, 1918, and the peak, just under 2 billions, came in December, the month after the Armistice.

The cut-back was fast and furious. Bills in January, 1919, were below a billion and a half, and down to a half billion monthly by the end of the year. Spending was at the 400 million rate in 1921, and was whittled down to the 275 monthly scale in 1922.

WAR CONTRACT CANCELLATION LAW IS URGED

Chicago Business Asks Uniformity.

Legislation to provide for settlement of all fixed price contracts terminated by the government during or after the war by negotiation between contractors and the contracting government officials was urged yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Otherwise, it warned thousands of Chicago area companies engaged in war production face serious difficulties.

Ten recommendations made in the association statement sent to congress and to government officials follow:

1. Establish one uniform procedure to be used by all government agencies in the settlement of canceled war contracts.

Asks Grant of Authority.

2. Give the contracting government officer and his authorized agents, including prime or subcontractors, authority without limitation as to time to negotiate settlement of canceled war contracts. Settlements should be based on reasonably definite criteria and should be final except in cases of fraud.

3. Establish the subcontractor's right to negotiate with the government contracting officer in cases of controversy with the prime contractor.

4. Provide a fixed formula plan of settlement for prime contractors and subcontractors when an agreement cannot be reached on a negotiated basis.

Could Employ Experts.

5. Empower the contracting officer to utilize experts and auditors for inspection and review purposes to protect government interests.

6. Provide for immediate substantial, or even full, payments to prime contractors, and the subsequent payment of subcontractors' claims by prime contractors on the same basis.

7. Authorize the contracting officer to effect a rapid liquidation of inventories and equipment by contractors and subcontractors under his direction.

8. Protect the contracting officer and his authorized agents, including prime and subcontractors, against personal liability except in cases of fraud.

9. Include provisions which would reaffirm the contractor's or subcontractor's recourse to court procedure to establish his claims.

Validations Are Sought.

10. Validate the various instruments of procurement, such as letters of intent, technically imperfect contracts, and oral contracts made in good faith.

"Recent statements to the effect that war contracts canceled during this war already exceed 7 billion dollars clearly indicate the tremendous volume of settlement work to be handled between now and "V" day and during the subsequent period," the association said.

"If all canceled contract claims are to be processed or approved by the general accounting office, as proposed by the controler general, the man hour increase in the work load might conceivably be of such proportions that final settlement of individual contracts would extend for years."

ASK AUTO PARTS ORDERS BY JAN. 1 FOR EARLY 1944

The products include crankshafts, transmissions, pumps, generators, axles, and other items needed for military trucks, landing craft, combat vehicles, and other "must" elements of the munitions program.

Debt Cut Held Aid to States' Post-War Role

State and local governments will enter the post-war period in better financial condition than will the federal government and as a result will be in a favorable position to direct any programs to obtain full peace time employment, John E. Burton, director of the budget for the state of New York, said yesterday.

The position of the states "in our federal form of government" is one vital matter which must be resolved, Burton told the 36th annual conference of the National Tax association in the Palmer House. Federal, state, and local relations will come to a head under conditions that will force an enduring decision, he said.

"On one hand, we will find more powerful than ever financial inducements to the states to acquiesce further to the national government," Burton declared. "We now have our federal social security system, with such further expansions as may be made before the termination of the war.

Many Federal Systems.

"We have our federal maternity benefits for the wives of service men. We have our farm benefit systems. We have the federal employment service—temporarily borrowed from the states. We have our federal power projects, and a variety of subsidies to state and local governments.

"On top of existing forms of federal financial assistance, we will have Beveridge plans, blueprints for rebuilding our cities from the ground up with federal assistance, super power projects and proposals for subsidies to our common school systems. It would be the line of least resistance for our states and localities to accept passively the federal programs of allotments and administration.

"On the other hand, we will find the improved financial position of the state and local governments. We will find administrators in the state and local fields who can provide a united generalship to strengthen their places in the halls of government."

States Show Improvement.

The financial strength of the states has improved within recent years, he said. The federal debt has grown enormously, but significant decreases have occurred in state debt. Tax collections have improved and "states now wonder how to protect their surpluses from spending raids," he said. Many fields of taxation will swell revenues even further after the war.

"The states, therefore, will be in a favorable position for accepting important responsibilities. It will be their duty, because of that position, to contribute their utmost toward the success of the post-war period," Burton said.

"Many local officers feel that continued acquisition of property by the federal government is placing their own revenue structures in a precarious condition," Albert W. Noonan, executive secretary of the National Association of Assessing Officers, said. He said the large acreage purchased by various government departments was largely tax exempt, altho Defense Plant corporation real estate is subject to local taxation by act of congress.

GLOBE COMPANY GETS 'M' AWARD FOR SHIP BEAMS

The Globe company, 4000 Princeton avenue, manufacturer of more than 800 machines and devices used in the meat packing industry, yesterday received the United States Maritime commission's "M" award for production of completely fabricated hatch beams which replace ordinary "I" beams and save 10 tons of steel on every Liberty ship in which they are used. Since the first of the beams was turned out in March, enough have been delivered for more than 700 ships.

Presentation of the award was made by Thomas M. Woodward, a member of the commission. W. E. Spofford, regional director of construction in the Great Lakes area presented merit badges to employes.

Distillery Sale Terms Related by Allied Mills

Allied Mills, Inc., would receive $17,750,000 plus a dividend of $4,650,000 and a debt repayment of $4,600,000 in connection with the sale of the Century Distilling company, wholly owned liquor manufacturer, to the National Distillers Products corporation under the terms of a transaction to be voted upon by Allied Mills stockholders on Dec. 8, J. B. DeHaven, president, yesterday informed stockholders.

The sales contract provides that prior to the sale Century Distilling would pay Allied Mills the dividend and later would pay its indebtedness to Allied Mills, which thus would receive a total of approximately 27 million dollars.

Nets 22.4 Million After Tax.

DeHaven said it is estimated that Allied Mills would be subject to federal income taxes of approximately $4,600,000 on the transaction, leaving net cash proceeds of approximately $22,400,000. Century's annual earnings have averaged $574,484 for the last three years, De Haven said.

"Due to present unsettled conditions resulting from the war, priorities, allocations of material, labor conditions, governmental regulations and restrictions and the many other well known existing factors, it is impossible to determine at this time the disposition of the cash to be realized from this transaction, with the exception that the present outstanding long-term indebtedness of Allied Mills in the amount of $1,226,667 will be retired," DeHaven said.

Plans New Feed Program.

He also said that the company has under consideration a program for its live stock feed and soy bean business, which it is believed should be profitable. This program was interrupted by the war, but he believes that 5 to 6 million dollars of the funds obtained by the sale could be used on this expansion.

DeHaven said no definite commitments can be made as to future dividend policy, but it is the present intention of the management not to pay any special dividend now but rather to distribute a larger proportion of annual earnings as dividends than was the policy in the past.

Atwood Opposes Sale.

A proxy statement accompanying the notice to stockholders said Harry G. Atwood, son of the late H. G. Atwood, who long headed Allied Mills, is opposed to the sale of Century to National Distillers. Among the reasons for his opposition Atwood said that the large amount of whisky held by the company is an excellent inflation hedge and that the feed by-product of the distillery increases the profits that Allied makes on its feed business.

The management in reply to Atwood said that the increase in value of whisky held is more than offset by the value of whisky which must be withdrawn each month to keep alive the two leading brands of Century. It said the management could buy its feed requirements from other sources just as profitably as from Century.

Richard Norian, civilian employe of the Chicago ordnance district, yesterday was awarded $250 for submitting a suggestion which has already saved the government $500,000 and it is estimated will save it a total of 5 million dollars annually. Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, district chief, announced the award, which is the maximum possible under civilian personnel regulations.

Norian suggested a way to salvage and reuse fiberboard partitions and pads used in shipping metal ammunition parts, thereby conserving tons of vital woodpulp packaging materials. Gen. Hammond said the idea has already been recommended to the office of chief of ordnance in Washington for adoption on a nation-wide basis.

Under the old system the fiberboard partitions—somewhat similar to "egg crate" partitions—were sold as scrap after being used once. Norian found they were mostly undamaged and devised a means for continuing them in use. So instead of being sold for $25 a ton as scrap they brought $400 a ton as a virtually new article that could be reused up to six times.

Heavy Buying Forces Bread Grains Higher

Buying of wheat by millers, distillers, and feed manufacturers, which began earlier in the week, carried bread cereal prices to 18 year highs yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. All deliveries of wheat and rye, and July oats, shared in the rise. Despite liberal profit taking, wheat closed ⅞ to 1¼ cents higher, and rye 1¼ to 1⅜ cents. Oats finished ⅝ cent lower to ¾ cent higher, and barley rose ½ to ¾ cent.

Buying of wheat futures by cash interests, said to have been to remove hedges, provided the background for the upturn. Advances in outside markets were about in line with those in Chicago.

Expectations that the office of price administration would announce a ceiling program on major grains over the week-end led to evening up of open market interest by commission house traders. December wheat sold at $1.62⅝ a bushel, within 3¼ cents of full parity, and cash wheat was quoted at a premium of 3 cents or more above December.

U. S. Boosts Meat Buying to Aid Prices

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

The government is expanding its meat buying program rapidly in an effort to bolster sagging live stock prices and avoid a bottleneck in meat storage plants, Chicago stock yards' sources disclosed yesterday. Lend-lease buying is the heaviest since July.

The success of the program to avert a glut in packing plants will depend chiefly on the ability of the lend-lease group to ship supplies out of the country and the facilities for handling frozen meats at ports abroad, packers said. If the government fails to find immediate outlet for a big volume in coming weeks, the accumulation of meat in packing plants will be just as large with increased lend-lease buying as without it.

Slash in Point Values Urged.

A sharp cut in the rationing point values to permit consumers to increase purchases would be more effective in maintaining a uniform flow of meat thru packing plants than anything the government could do, they said. The threat of a huge surplus of pork from the record marketing of hogs prompted the government to take the advice of industry men to reduce the point value of some kinds of pork last week.

Beef buying by lend-lease authorities this month has reached the largest volume since last February, altho tonnage is small compared with purchases of other meats. Pork, lard, and lamb buying is the heaviest in four months. Mutton purchases are setting new records.

Weekly buying of pork exceeds 50 million pounds, against less than 5 million pounds a month ago when lend-lease purchases were reduced to conserve supplies for the army and navy during a pork shortage caused when farmers held back supples after a ceiling was imposed on hogs.

Lamb Buying Rises Most.

Increases in other kinds of meat over purchases a month ago ranged from 34 per cent to more than 1,000 per cent. The top rate of gain was in lamb, in which lend-lease buying runs almost 2 million pounds weekly, compared with 112,000 pounds a month ago.

Live stock prices dropped further last week. The six day average for steers, hogs, and lambs was $13.80 a hundred pounds in the Chicago yards, lowest since May, 1942, and $2.15 below the 1943 peak in March. The average a year ago was $14.45.

82 Chicago Area Firms Get 110 New War Orders

Eighty-two Chicago area companies last week received a total of 110 new prime war contracts amounting to $3,015,000, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, announced yesterday. Since the beginning of the war program, 13,597 prime contracts have been awarded to 2,174 Chicago area companies.

PLANTS AWAIT 'GO' FOR SHIFT TO APPLIANCES

Report Civilians' Needs Increasing.

Radios, washing machines, refrigerators, and all the other electrical devices of peace time can be returned to dealers' salesrooms speedily when Washington officials give the signal for resuming civilian production, Chicago manufacturers said yesterday.

Arthur D. Whiteside.

However, Arthur D. Whiteside, chief of the office of civilian requirements, a division of the war production board, said in Washington that there was little hope of any early resumption of production of consumer goods.

Specialty manufacturers in Chicago estimated it would take only two to six months, depending on the products, to convert plants from war to consumer goods production.

Dovetails with Cancellation.

Company spokesmen said the resumption of civilian production has become increasingly desirable with the cancellation of more contracts for munitions and the growing shortage of manufactured goods available to civilians.

John M. Wicht, president of the American Washer and Ironer Manufacturers' association, said the need for civilian production was becoming acute from a national hygiene standpoint. He and others in the industry expressed the hope steel and other necessary raw materials would be made available as soon as the progress of the war permits.

Radios, washers, toasters, irons, and other electric devices are commanding high prices in the second hand stores, and many in person-to-person sales have brought higher prices than when they were new. Brand new devices—when available—are under federal ceiling price regulations.

Irons Considered Possible.

The OCR has been making studies as to what goods could be produced for civilian consumption. Whiteside said that production of electric irons—previously estimated to total about 1 to 2 million—was within the realm of possibility.

High ranking army officers were reported to be opposing a program for the increased production of civilian goods on the theory that even tho the raw materials were available, national morale would be injured. They have been represented as apprehensive that national will to win the war would suffer a letdown if consumers found large quantities of goods available in stores.

A Zenith Radio corporation official said that this big Chicago manufacturer could swing into large scale civilian production within two months, requiring no more time than normally needed when changing models. Other companies making radio and radar equipment exclusively would be able to convert with equal speed, they said.

Could Act Quickly.

Electric Household Utilities corporation would be able to assemble washers almost overnight. It was reported to be the only company in the industry with inventories of washer parts.

Manufacturers of various electrical devices assumed the government would not permit any unfair competitive advantages in the release of steel for civilian production, but would allocate raw materials on the basis comparable to pre-war requirements.

Sale of Illinois Bankers Life Stock Ordered

Deceased former officials of the Illinois Bankers Life Assurance company of Monmouth, Ill., were criticized severely yesterday by Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner when he issued a decree ordering the 2,000 shares of stock held by their estates turned over to a trustee for sale, the proceeds to be distributed among the policy holders of the original company.

The court also entered a judgment for $699,678 against the estate of the late Hugh T. Martin, president of the assurance company, and ordered the estate of the late William H. Woods, president of the original company, to return the sum of $160,000 with interest at 5 per cent.

Judge Miner appointed as trustee Charles O. Rundall, former president of the Illinois Bar association, who was directed to set the sale for Dec. 21.

Ends Long Litigation.

The decree ended litigation extending over several months. The suit involved the recovery by the company and policy holders of the stock held by the estates of Martin, amounting to 1,600 shares, and the late Arthur T. Sawyer, treasurer, amounting to 400 shares.

Testimony and evidence in the case recounted bribes and financial manipulations by which Martin gained control of the company thru a plan evolved in 1929.

"This decree brings to a close as nefarious a conspiracy as was ever revealed in a court of equity," said Judge Miner. "Its fraudulent objective was to steal the assets and good will of the Illinois Bankers Life association [the predecessor company] with over 109 million dollars of insurance in force. This perfidious scheme was conceived and perpetrated by faithless officers and directors of the company, who were entrusted with its management by the 72,000 policy holders scattered all over the United States."

City Bank to Hold Stock.

Judge Miner directed the Chicago City Bank and Trust company to continue to hold the 1,600 shares of Martin stock, which it has as trustee, under the supervision of the court.

"It is the purpose of this court to continue and retain the present management of the company, including its acting officers and directors, until the further order of this court," Judge Miner said. "The company has been ably, efficiently, honestly, and profitably managed since Oct. 3, 1941, and the bank has faithfully performed all its duties as trustee."

WLB'S FORMULA CUTS PIECEWORK COAL MINE RATE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—The war labor board today issued a formula for computing overtime pay for piece workers and outside employes in the nation's coal mines which figures out 30 cents less per week than a method proposed by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior.

William H. Davis, WLB chairman, said the weekly "take-home earnings" of a miner would be $57.07 for six days under the WLB formula, which went to Ickes for study.

Two weeks ago the board approved the government's wage agreement with the miners but asked Ickes, as federal boss of the mines, to resubmit a pay formula, which he did, leaving as unsettled points in that agreement the application of increased earnings to piece workers and outside employes.

A spokesman for the United Mine Workers said the union scale committee would examine the board's formula.

OCTOBER ARMS OUTPUT SOARS, SAYS WPB HEAD

Gain Biggest Since April's Record.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Arms production in October scored its biggest gain since April, Donald M. Nelson reported today. Measured by dollar value, October production rose 5 per cent over September.

"Man power, occasional shortages of material, and design changes gave less trouble than in recent months," the war production board chairman said in his 16th monthly report.

"Better management, better effort by labor, better trained workers—in a word, 'know how'—can be seen clearly in last month's performance."

Gun Output Stable.

Altho overall production showed substantial gains, there was only a 1 per cent rise in gun output, which is a stable program, and there was a decline in combat and motor vehicles which Nelson said is "according to plan."

The expanding programs—those getting the most pressure for reasons of military strategy—showed these production tallies:

Aircraft, up 10 per cent in number, 9 per cent in weight and 10 per cent in value with a total of 8,362 as previously announced. Ships, up 5 per cent [in terms of construction put in place]. Ammunition, up 11 per cent. Communication equipment, including radar, up 9 per cent.

The WPB munitions index gained 29 points over September, the best showing since April's 30 points over March. The index, which takes arms production in the pre-Pearl Harbor month of November, 1941, as 100, now stands at 648. In other words, armament output is nearly 6½ times as large as when the country went to war.

Revise September Figures.

The index revealed that September production was better than was reported a month ago. Whereas the last report showed only a 1 point gain in September over August, figures revised on the basis of later reports showed a 9 point climb.

Of the four major "bottleneck items" now worrying WPB—landing craft, trucks, electronics and heavy-duty tires — only two were mentioned in the index. The automotive vehicle and tractor program advanced 6 per cent, while "ground electronic equipment" and "airborne signal equipment" both moved ahead of September.

Landing craft production was not reported, presumably for reasons of military security, and heavy-duty truck tire production has never been covered in the monthly reports altho it is a vital part of the military vehicle and aircraft programs.

Tanker deliveries jumped to 35, 13 more than in September, while cargo vessels gained 6 per cent and combat and other vessels 4 per cent. Combat vehicles dropped off as planned, declining 11 per cent.

STOCK MARKET RISES AGAIN IN ACTIVE TRADING

Late Profit Taking Cuts Some Advances.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—The stock market today made its third successive advance in relatively broad and active dealings for a short session. Many rails, utilities, and industrials added fractions to a point or so to Friday's sharp upswing. A little profit taking at the end trimmed some prices, but many leaders closed at or near the best levels.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.3 of a point at 48.6, and for the week held an advance of 0.6. Transfers totaled 481,976 shares, largest for a Saturday since Sept. 18.

Among the gainers were Goodyear, Goodrich, Chrysler, United States Steel, Western Union "A," Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Texas company, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Pepsi-Cola, Philip Morris, du Pont, Oppenheim Collins, American Cable and Radio, International Telephone, and United corporation preferred.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE.

Prices advanced again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange on volume of 21,000 shares. Commonwealth Edison, with a turnover of 4,750 shares, was the volume leader, closing unchanged at 25. Other active issues included Chicago corporation, up ⅛; Libby, McNeill & Libby, up ⅜; Midland United preferred, down ⅛, and Four Wheel Drive, down ½.

RAIL BONDS CLIMB.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Rails today extended their gains in the bond market, a long list of secondary issues climbing major fractions to nearly two points. Heavy demand among the secondary liens, chiefly of western roads, boosted volume to $6,055,100, face value, nearly double the $3,209,100 a week ago and the largest for a Saturday since Sept. 18.

RAILROAD BONDS.

During the stock market's sharp sell-off recently, prices of speculative bonds tumbled almost precipitously. This was notably true in the case of defaulted and reorganization railroad bonds, speculative favorites for many months because of the war boom prosperity of rail carriers.

The vulnerability of speculative railroad bonds indicates the desirability of reëxamining their status. Patently, many of these bonds are "war babies," and when the railroad traffic and earnings lose the benefit of the war boom, the attractiveness of the bonds will fade rapidly.

A fundamental factor in the wide rise in prices of the lower grade rail bonds over a period of many months has been the fact that the carriers have taken advantage of improved earnings to buy in the bonds at a huge discount. When earnings recede this support can be expected to disappear, and with it the support from speculators who have bought in the expectation of selling to the railroads or others at a higher price.

Railroad managements have not been disposed to bid up indefinitely the prices on junior bonds. One railroad asked for tenders at a price less than 50 per cent of par altho the current market was higher. Obviously the management regarded the junior bonds over-priced at the market value and expected to be able to buy them at a lower figure at some time in the future.

Not all low-priced junior railroad bonds deserve to be listed in the same speculative category. Some issues and companies will emerge from reorganization materially stronger, or will succeed in reëstablishing a strong financial structure out of war time earnings. The problem for the investor is one of accurate discrimination.

Just six houses are being offered at only $7,250 each, but we reserve the right to restrict sales at this price to the kind of families that will be good neighbors of the other residents on Victory-Drive. PUBLIC AUCTION at 2 P. M. on the premises at No. 1 set of buildings by

J. Clinton Bowden

Nationally known land auctioneer of Oak Park, Illinois. This superior property is situated 67 miles west of Chicago Loop, served by the Milwaukee railroad's main line to Omaha, which bisects land equally from east to west. Also, State Highway Route No. 72 runs full width of property. Adjacent to village is the site of the Kirkland Feeding Yards, a railroad owned yard used in the feeding and grazing operations connected with the feeding in transit of western live stock en route to the Chicago market. Two large grain elevators also serve this community for the disposition of grains raised on the highly productive farms in the surrounding territory. The south fork of the Kishwaukee river winds through the full length of the property and is fed by five creeks, forming ideal watering facilities for live stock, which is an additional revenue producer in connection with grazing of transient live stock. THIS WONDERFUL PRODUCING SOIL IS OWNED by the distinguished gentleman, JOHN MacQUEEN, of KIRKLAND, ILLINOIS. His advanced years is the only reason that this attractive farm land and grazing ground is being offered to the public.

SUPERIOR SOIL IN EVERY RESPECT. Its location is perfect. Soil is deep and black with a subsoil that cannot be beaten. Potash, phosphoric acid, nitrogen, and humus are in abundance. Soil is level with remarkable drainage. Many thousand tons of good manure has been spread upon the land yearly. More than 100 bushels of corn has been produced per acre for years, 125 bushels per acre this year.

WELL PLANNED BUILDINGS which have been kept in good condition, location of which is just about ideal. NOTICE, this auction should be well attended. It really presents a marvelous opportunity. If the purchaser should want to dispose of one-half or two-thirds of this layout, he certainly could at a much greater price than he paid for the entirety. It's splendid that the owner of this valuable soil has placed before the public the greatest of all investments, good old Mother Earth.

SYNOPSIS OF TERMS: 15% day of Auction, balance and final settlement on or before 60 days. Owner will take back a 50% mortgage. Open for inspection every day. INFORMATION: J. Clinton Bowden, Auctioneer, Box 386, Oak Park, Ill. Phone Forest 2017. Chicago office, Central 4069. Or phone Mr. James D. Edwards, Kirkland, Ill. Phone 11.

Broken lines carry comparative distances between Honolulu and the Philippines, and Lae (New Guinea) and the Philippines.

This new map of the world, showing among other features the American bases outside continental United States which should be retained by this country after the war, provides a study of the geographic problems to be confronted in the conquest of Japan. Here it can be seen, as explained in the accompanying article, how the most logical road to Tokio would follow General MacArthur's route from New Guinea, thru the Philippines, to the ultimate goal.

By CLAY GOWRAN

SINCE THE FIRST Japanese dive bomber roared down out of the sun to begin the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor on that sleepy Sunday morning of Dec. 7, 1941, there has been one thought uppermost in the minds of Americans. They have not been swerved from it by the turmoil and intrigue of the war in Africa and Italy. They have held true to it thru the months of political wrangling and trading for power which have characterized Washington and London in this war time.

That thought revolves around these questions: "How can we best pay back the Japs? . . . How can we smash their hold on the island empire from which comes their life blood? . . . How can we make them squirm to the tramp of our armies in the streets of Tokio, in the halls of the Japanese diet, in the sanctified corridors of the imperial palace?"

America has waited almost two years. But now the end of the tragicomic opera of Italy is in sight, and the powerful ground and air forces slowly tightening around Hitler's domain portend its certain doom. A large part of Britain's strong fleet should be free for duty in the Pacific, reënforced perhaps by some units of the recently surrendered Italian navy. The time has come to begin in deadly earnest the drive which will end on Hirohito's throne.

Perhaps it is best at this point to emphasize that in simplest terms the strategy of warfare is little different from the strategy of the football gridiron. There never has been a successful football team which relied upon one man to carry the ball while the other 10 sat back and did nothing. Each of those 10 men has a specific job to do. They either draw opposing players away from the ball carrier by deception, or else they take those players out of the play by physical force. That is the way we will get at Japan. One allied force will initiate and carry thru the principal drive against Tokio. The others will, by deception and side offensives, seek to contain enemy forces facing them and thus prevent the Japanese from bringing too great a concentration of strength against the ball carrier.

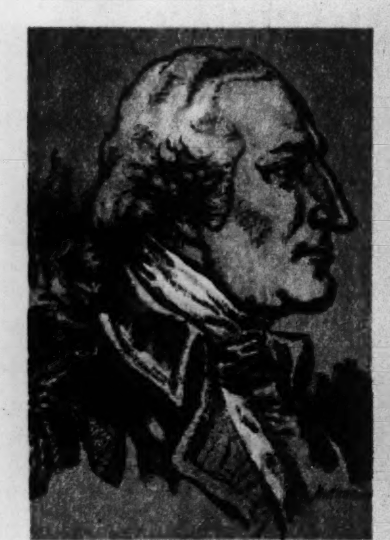
By JOHN A. MENAUGH



BENEDICT ARNOLD

GEN. GEORGE MONK and his accomplices succeeded in 1660 in selling out the English commonwealth which had been formed out of the civil wars. Thru their double dealing the old monarchy was restored, and for it they were handsomely rewarded.

A similar plot, or rather a series of plots, was concocted in America during our Revolutionary war, the object being to sell the former colonies back to the British king. But these conspiracies, in which the traitor Benedict Arnold was the most conspicuous figure, failed because the spirit of liberty and justice in America was too strong to be overcome by the venal schemes of traitorous scoundrels.

The story of Arnold and his unsuccessful attempt to deliver for a price the American stronghold at West Point on the Hudson river to the British has been told many times, and all who have read our history are familiar with it. The lesser figures in the Arnold plot and other traitors to the American cause during the War of Independence, however, have been given little attention by writers, presumably from the fact that they accomplished so little.

Within only the last two years has come to public attention the whole story of how America's traitors tried to betray their country while it was fighting for independence. In his "Secret History of the American Revolution" Carl Van Doren reveals the conspiracies of Arnold and others, as detailed in the secret service papers of the British army headquarters in America, now in possession of the University of Michigan.

He deals at length with the Arnold plot and those who figured in it. He also tells the stories of other double dealers such as Benjamin Church, Metcalf Bowler, William Heron, Edward Fox, William Rankin.

It was thru one Joseph Stansbury of Philadelphia that Arnold first got in communication with Gen. Henry Clinton, the British commander in New York, with the object of selling his services to the British. Some time about a month after he had married Margaret (Peggy) Shippen, daughter of Edward Shippen of Philadelphia, and while he was in a state of bitter agitation over court martial charges of misconduct that had been preferred against him, Arnold, commander of the continental troops in Philadelphia, sent for Stansbury. After swearing the man to secrecy, he made known his purpose either to join the British army at once or coöperate with it.

Stansbury went to New York to offer Arnold's services to Clinton. There he met Clinton's adjutant general, Maj. John André. The meeting was at the home of Jonathan Odell, a loyalist. Stanbury's message from Arnold took André by surprise. He consulted with Clinton and later gave written instructions to Stansbury, who had to hurry back to Philadelphia for fear he would soon be missed there and suspected.

"On our part we meet Monk's overtures with full reliance on his honorable intentions and disclose to him with the strongest assurances of our sincerity, that no thought is entertained of abandoning the point we have in view. That on the contrary powerful means are expected for accomplishing our end."

The foregoing lines are from the letter from André to Stansbury, dated May 10, 1779. The reader may wonder how the name of Monk came into this. Arnold, it appears, saw in himself a parallel to the parliament's trusted military leader, Gen. Monk, whose plot had restored the monarchy in England more than a century before. The traitorous American therefore alluded to himself as Monk in his early negotiations with Clinton.

In closing his letter André wrote that even in case of failure of the conspiracy the British would be generous to Arnold. It was arranged between André and Stansbury that their correspondence should be by code. Each would have a copy of the same book and each word in their letters would be represented by three figures, the number of the page of the book, the number of the line on the page, and the number of the word in the line. A copy of the draft of André's letter to Stansbury is said by the historian Van Doren to be the earliest essential document of the Arnold plot. In the letter André started to write the name Arnold, but struck it out and wrote in the name Monk.

This was the beginning of 16 months of secret negotiations between Arnold and the British commander in New York. A number of letters were exchanged between Stansbury and André, André and Arnold, Odell and Stansbury, and even between André and Peggy Arnold, the general's bride. André had known Mrs. Arnold when she was Miss Shippen and the British were in occupation of Philadelphia. Van Doren says there was no doubt Mrs. Arnold was aware of the conspiracy from the start.

As the plot progressed Arnold mentioned the price of his treason. He wanted in British money the equivalent of $50,000. He wanted this whether his scheme succeeded or not.

First referred to in the secret communications as Monk, Arnold's fictitious name in the letters differed from time to time; near the beginning he was Mr. A. G., then he was Mr. Moore, and finally Gustavus.

Some time in July, 1780, as the treasonable interchange was continuing, Arnold became suspicious of Stansbury and the loyalist Odell. He then acquired as his intermediary Samuel Wallis, who had been in Philadelphia during the British occupation. This man was a cunning double dealer.

Having been rebuked in the meantime by Gen. Washington as a result of the findings of the court martial early in the year, Arnold now was thoroly embittered. He hit upon a plan in which he could be of definite service to the British and earn the rewards that he desired to bolster up his fading fortunes. Hitherto his ideas of assisting the enemy had been vague. He conceived the plan of betraying some important military post to the enemy, and with this in view he obtained from Washington in August (1780) the command of West Point, the key to the Hudson valley.

Arnold's price for treason at this stage went up to 20,000 pounds sterling, the equivalent of about $100,000. For delivering West Point to the enemy he thought the price none too high. He also asked $5,000 for his agent, Wallis. It appears that at this time he turned back to Stansbury to act as his intermediary on one occasion.

Clinton's final answer to Arnold's proposal was that if the British could possess thru the traitor's means the post at West Point, along with 3,000 troops and all the artillery, munitions, and stores, the sum of 20,000 English pounds might be paid for the betrayal. As to an absolute promise of half that amount in the event that the plot miscarried the British commander would not commit himself.

Arnold at West Point, in seeking other secret agents, renewed a connection with one Joshua Hett Smith, who dwelt in a country house on the west bank of the Hudson, not far from King's Ferry.

Going up the Hudson on the British sloop of war Vulture, Major André on the night of Sept. 21 (1780) was taken ashore by Smith. André found Arnold waiting in a wood near the shore, and the two conferred until dawn. When Smith refused to carry the British officer back to the Vulture in daylight the two conspirators went to an upstairs room in Smith's house, where Arnold handed over to the enemy officer the plans of West Point.

The plot might not have failed. It was the bombardment of the British vessel by an American gun at Verplanck's Point near by that drove the ship down stream, and made it necessary for André to go back to New York by land. The capture of André just north of Tarrytown, on the east bank, led to the exposure of the plot.

André was hanged as a spy on Oct. 2, but before that America knew all about the perfidy of Arnold, for he had fled from West Point to the protection of the British a week before. Instead of obtaining a major general's commission in the British army, which he had hoped for, the traitor was made a brigadier general of provincial auxiliaries. The money that he got out of his act of treason amounted to little more than $30,000. He was employed in a British expedition that burned Richmond, Va., and in an attack on New London, Conn. Toward the last of 1781 he went to England, where he died June 14, 1801. A son, James Robertson Arnold, became a lieutenant general in the British army.

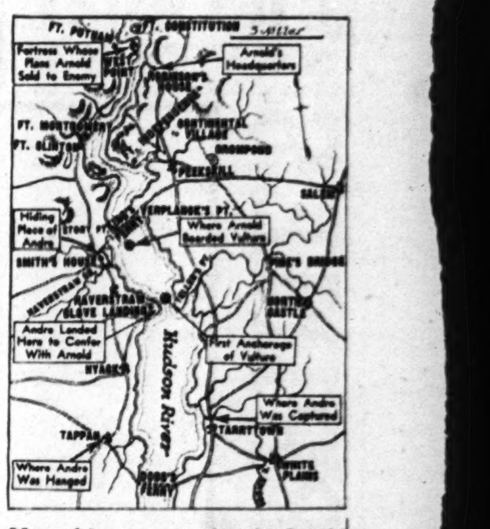
Major Andre

Mrs. Arnold

Stansbury, Arnold's original go-between in his negotiations with the enemy, was suspected and arrested. The American authorities, however, were unable to prove any charges against him, except that he had been engaged in trading with the enemy. Allowed to leave Philadelphia and enter the British lines early in 1781, he was rewarded by Clinton to the meager extent of $2 a day for his services. Stansbury later went to England and put in a claim for $5,000, but the claim was not allowed. He returned to America and spent his last days in New York.

Wallis was so clever that he never was suspected by patriotic Americans. He remained in Philadelphia until 1782, when he returned to his former home near Muncy, Pa.

Odell, the tory who figured in the Arnold conspiracy, went to England 1783. He was made registrar and clerk of the province of New Brunswick, Canada, at $5,000 a year, a position he held for 28 years. One of his messengers, a man named John Rattoon, never was suspected, and lived out his life in South Amboy, N. J.



Map of important points in Arnold-Andre affair.

Smith, in whose home near West Point Arnold and André conferred, was tried by court martial and released. Later, as a suspected tory, he was jailed in Goshen, N. Y., but he escaped to New York City, where Clinton paid him a dollar a day for his services. He went to England in 1783, but returned to America, where he died in 1818.

Benjamin Church, a Boston physician, was a member of the provincial congress of Massachusetts and of the colony's committee of safety. Respected by the leading patriots of the community, he actually was a paid informer. For six weeks before the battles of Lexington and Concord he had been sending letters to the British governor, Gen. Thomas Gage, revealing American secrets. He reported to Gage the American plan to fortify Bunker hill. Trapped in his double dealing, he was committed to jail in Norwich, Conn.

Metcalf Bowler, former speaker of the Rhode Island assembly and chief justice of that state, was a signer of Rhode Island's declaration of independence in July, 1776. From time to time during the war he sent Clinton secret information for which the British general paid him. His treasonable services did not come to light until about 150 years after they were performed.

William Heron, a member of the Connecticut assembly and outwardly an ardent patriot, figured in a small way in the Arnold conspiracy, as a bearer of a letter from the American general. On arriving in New York with this letter, which incidentally he did not deliver to the person for whom it was intended, Major André, he came to terms with the British secret service and became its spy. He took advantage of his friendship with an American general, Samuel Parsons, and obtained money from the British on the baseless promise that he could persuade Parsons to switch his allegiance to the British.

After the war Heron continued to live in Connecticut and served in the assembly there several times between 1784 and 1796 without being suspected of having been a double dealer.

Edward Fox, clerk of the continental treasury, was taken prisoner by the British in August, 1779, and carried to Long Island. There he offered to procure information for the British and was given payment by them in advance. After three weeks of captivity, Fox was released and made his way back to Philadelphia. To this day it is uncertain whether Fox was a spy for the British or for the Americans, or merely a sly scoundrel willing to take bribes from both. He continued thru the Revolution as treasury clerk and later became treasury commissioner.

William Rankin, a colonel of militia in York county, Pennsylvania, undertook to organize a tory uprising against the American patriots of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware. He was sent by the British on a futile mission into Virginia. His conniving accomplished nothing, but he remained with the British in New York until their evacuation in 1783, when he went to England. The British granted him a pension of $600 a year, and allowed his claim of about $12,000 for property confiscated by the Americans.

ENIGMA!

Are teeth less bright, are gums tougher, in Chicago than in Portland, Oregon or Portland, Maine?

No crystal ball is needed to answer this question. Teeth and gums here are obviously no different from those anywhere else in the country.

The tougher question is: Why, with sales of Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brushes soaring on the East Coast and West, do they lag behind in this city? Certainly, the Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush with PROLON bristles is well known here. It has been a great favorite for years, nationally advertised longer than any other.

What's the answer? Our guess is that many people miss the benefits of regular brushing with a Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush, because they forget to ask for it by name! So next time you buy, if you want to be sure of a really fine, first-quality tooth brush, ask by name for Pro-phy-lac-tic Tooth Brush. Here's why:

We guarantee that no brush at any price has finer or more costly duPont bristles. We guarantee that it is the only brush with gentler, round ends on each bristle. And, in writing, we guarantee the brush for six months of service, or a new one free.

There are two types of the Bonded Pro-phy-lac-tic. The regular (illustrated below) has the famous tuft to help clean the back teeth better. The 2-Row Professional has the same round-end PROLON bristle, but the brushing head is only one inch long, professionally compact. Get the shape that suits you best. Just be sure to ask by name for the Bonded Pro-phy-lac-tic.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Bennington, Vt.

IT IS QUITE probable that nowhere in the country are the available resources of land and woman student power being utilized with such interesting efficiency as at Bennington college, where a farm project, now in its second year, has made a college community of 400 persons largely self-supporting so far as food is concerned.

Almost every one of the 290 students at Bennington farms arduously for at least five hours a week. The school calendar has been revised so that the students are in residence in the community during the spring, summer, and autumn months. The college is closed for only three weeks between semesters in August and for close to four months in winter, a schedule that effects a goodly saving of fuel, permits the students to engage in defense or field work for a long period.

Bennington's farm got under way as a serious project in 1942 with the science faculty as supervisors and the students as enthusiastic volunteer laborers. With the acquisition of an adjoining estate the college had acquired 40 acres of land suitable for crops and forage, in addition to some equipment, most of it in need of repair. In all, the farm area of the college now comprises a hundred acres.

When students returned to college in the spring of 1942 a huge quick-freeze unit had been erected, soil had been analyzed and seed and fertilizer purchased; students were set to work at starting some 14,000 seedlings. Back-breaking days were devoted to cleaning up.

The construction of a storage cellar for root vegetables turned out to be the most staggering task assumed by the volunteers. In the planning stage it had seemed easy enough, but the actual digging of a 9 foot hole 42 by 22 feet, in what proved to be a surface of New England rocks firmly anchored in hard clay, was a prodigious undertaking. It is no wonder that Bennington girls are inclined to genuflect when they pass their root cellar.

This spring when the students returned after the nonresident term that is a vital part of the Bennington program of study integrated with work they found that plans had been laid for bigger and better farming. They planted 25 acres of vegetables. They also planted even more acreage of corn, oats, and soybeans for animal fodder; this year Bennington girls are raising pigs and steers for slaughter.

Bennington is easily accessible to New York by train, but it is in most respects an isolated little community close by the Green mountains, a country college in every sense of the word. Girls dress for utility from morning until night, usually in blue levis and men's shirts, and they can and do make the jump from the potato patch to the library with no change of costume.

Besides the food they raised which already has been used in the dining halls—where Bennington girls also do the serving nowadays—the college community can report impressive figures on the success of its farming this year. Squads of girls this fall harvested their orchard yield of 400 bushels of apples. Almost all of their 2,400 bushels of potatoes have been stored in the root cellar. In their quick-freeze they have the tons of chickens they themselves raised, with thousands of various vegetables.

Hollywood.

AMONG its many novelties Hollywood has a one-man studio. He's a guy with an adenoidal twang known all over the world, a facial expression that resembles a coroner's jury, but that face is never seen on the screen. Yet, other than Donald Duck, he's the undisputed sheik of shorts. Folks, meet Pete Smith, M-G-M producer-commentator and a three ring circus all by himself. He's heard but not seen.

Smith at work is something, according to Anne Dunster, his secretary; and nobody knows the boss like the little woman sitting in the outer office. Yet I've known and loved the guy for years—so have you.

Any semblance to sanity in the Smith daily routine is purely accidental. In rapid succession he'll engage in hectic council with his script writers; rush to a stage to work out a complicated gag routine with the director; fly over to the music department to consult with a composer and suggest screwy sound effects (Smith was a trap drummer himself once); dive down to the projection room to look at the "rushes" of scenes shot the previous day; scurry to the wardrobe department to argue the cut of his leading lady's gown; scram to the make-up department to fuss about a comic's toupee; skin into the mechanical prop shop to try and help solve a problem such as having hamburger shoot out of a meat grinder like machine gun bullets; barge into the art director's office and battle about a set.

In between these mad maneuverings he passes on actors and actresses for parts in his new pictures, or at 15 minute intervals will barricade himself behind locked office doors to write his narration in spurts—or until called elsewhere. When things are otherwise under control he'll dash to the sound recording stage, there to commentate into a microphone—with gestures! Paradoxically, Pete admits that some of his best ideas are conceived while lying prone on his office sofa, and during the last 12 years those same ideas have resulted in the production of some 200 shorts. From the floors of the ocean to the uppermost heights of the stratosphere, from newborn babes to performing seals, the Smith cameras have captured a greater variety of material than may be credited to any other individual.

Thru Pete's portals have filtered a most diversified assortment of humanity. Scientists, athletes, animal trainers, magicians, professional pickpockets, and corporation executives have all come to submit ideas for Pete Smith Specialties. Amusing, yet almost fatal to Pete, have been some of these visits. There was the time when an enthusiastic jujitsu expert insisted on giving a demonstration with Smith as the subject. After regaining consciousness at the studio hospital Pete spent his convalescence writing a script which resulted in "Self Defense," featuring Sam Cummings," the same gent who had thoroly convinced the one-man studio of jujitsu prowess.

All Pete's pictures are previewed at Los Angeles theaters. The public is his main concern. If a gag doesn't register it's thrown out the following day. He's public servant No. 1, playing to the mob, kidding himself as he does in "Fixin' Tricks" when he says: "This requires no mental strain whatsoever. Even a movie commentator could do it!"

Looking at Hollywood with Hedda Hopper

Tho always amenable to suggestion, he won't be talked out of an idea when he's 100 per cent sold. Take the case of "Seventh Column." Its basic theme stressed the point that since Pearl Harbor Americans have suffered more deaths thru accidents than by war. He sugar-dipped the unpalatable morsel of propaganda with a thick coating of slapstick that has won wide acclaim, climaxed by an extended run engagement at New York's Music hall, where only one other noncartoon short has ever played; and that, too, was Pete Smith's "Fala, the President's Dog."

The one-man studio vacations at Palm Springs during the winter. But with him always is a portable film equipment so he can edit his latest picture.

His penchant for pills knows no bounds. Regular indulgences include pills for sleeping, pills to keep him awake; stomach pills, nerve pills, headache pills, and the whole alphabetical group of the vitamin family.

Pete demonstrates the technique of the headless man in one picture.

He has been happily married to Margie for 25 years. Their only son, Doug, is a machinist's mate in the United States navy.

When recording Pete removes his shoes so the microphone won't pick up any squeaking sounds of old brogans (he hates new ones).

Most suggestions for shorts are received by mail; 150 letters containing ideas reach his desk weekly. He replies to each one. If people are sufficiently interested to write they deserve an answer. Rarely, however, is any material developed thru this source. The ideas are too general.

When writing his narration Smith refuses to answer phone calls unless they're from Washington government officials. He made "Marines in the Making" and many other patriotic subjects. He naturally creates publicity and promotional angles for all his shorts. This is a throwback to the earlier days when Pete press-agented many celebrities to fame, including Caruso, Doug Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Bill Hart, Marie Dressler, Garbo, John Gilbert, and myself. He was the first I'd ever had. While publicity director for M-G-M he arranged the flight of Leo the Lion. The plane made a forced landing on the Arizona desert, but the stunt garnered plenty of space.

Much of Pete's success may be attributed to his uncanny sense of knowing what the public wants. He maintains a regular correspondence with theater men who keep him posted on likes and dislikes of their patrons. These theater boys pull no punches. They're Pete's severest critics—also his pals. And what awards! Academy Oscars, plaques, medals, cups, trophies of every description litter his office in such profusion as to make entrance difficult.

Recently on an air trip east the pilot saw Pete's name on the passenger list. He introduced himself and asked Pete if he'd talk to his wife, who was meeting him in Chicago. "Just talk to her." Pete's a shy kind of bird, but he talked. And after a sentence or two she exclaimed: "You're Pete Smith—my favorite movie star!" And with that planted a kiss on his puss—and he darned near died of embarrassment!

He's the man who's heard but not seen and has made a fortune out of it. He hasn't a face to launch a thousand ships, but but his voice could.

"MUSIC IN THE AIR"

"Music in the Air" will be presented by the Chicago Theater of the Air from 8 to 9 p. m. (C.W.T.) Saturday, Nov. 27, over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network, starring Marion Claire.

TO A BROADWAY that was gaudy with blaring trumpets and grunting saxophones, "Music in the Air" came in 1932 as a quiet and pleasant surprise. Delicate music and a simple, romantic story against a Bavarian background that permitted lusty singing, bright costumes, and friendly dialect, the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II. opus brought Broadway back to the days of romantic operetta.

The reaction to Hammerstein's story was that the author had taken full advantage of his self-granted license; that if an operetta is not wholly believable, what is the difference so long as it is pretty and provides opportunity for pretty music? It was appraised an operetta to which "a daughter can take her mother without fear of a blush" and described as "a refreshing little story of rustic life."

The story opens in an old fashioned music school in the tiny Bavarian town of Edendorf, where the village choir sings songs written by the local school teacher and composed by the local music master. In the spirit of the setting, boys and girls, with knapsacks and alpenstocks, trudge gayly up snow-clad mountains. Action begins when the music master's charming daughter, Sieglinde, becomes stage-struck and with her sweetheart, Karl, walks to Munich to try her fortune in the theater. The simple couple encounter big city life and ways, see the seamy side of the stage, become involved with the successful playwright, Bruno, and Frieda, toast of the Munich stage. Tho hounded by the evils of the big city, every one is found in the right pair of arms at the final curtain.

The premier performance at the Alvin theater on Broadway in November of 1932 had Natalie Hall cast as Frieda; Katherine Carrington as Sieglinde, the lass of Edendorf; Al Shean as the old music master; Tullio Carminati as Bruno, the playwright; and Walter Slezak as Karl, the small-town bumpkin who provides humor for the piece with his German accent and his awkwardness.

WE CAPTURE VIRU!

A Tribune Correspondent Goes on a Marine Raid

In two earlier instalments Clay Gowran, Chicago Tribune correspondent in the South Pacific, has told how a gallant little band of marine raiders struggled thru the world's worst jungle to knock out the important Japanese base at Viru harbor, on New Georgia Island. ● Commanded by Lt. Col. Michael S. Currin, 32, a picturesque officer who had risen from the rank of private, the marines slogged thru waist-deep swamps, forded rivers where smaller men sometimes dropped from sight in potholes, and made their way by compass when native guides proved unreliable. In the first two days they made only 13 miles of progress. On the third day—worst of all—it took them 15 hours to struggle a scant 7 miles. ● Nightfall found them 3 miles from their objective. Ahead lay 2 miles of swamp and a mile of greasy climbing. By the unholy light of rotting jungle vegetation they mucked their exhausted way to the top of the final ridge and slept like dead men.

The raiders bury their dead on the bluffs overlooking Viru harbor a few hours after its capture. The tent in the background and the native huts are being used for medical collection stations, where the wounded were brought for treatment.

By CLAY GOWRAN

AT DAWN we moved out. The worst of the trek was behind us. Swiftly the column completed the encirclement of Viru and by 9 a. m. was driving straight toward the Japs from the west.

There was a change in the men this day. As they hiked they checked the action of their Garands and submachine guns. Cartridge bandoliers, slung far back over their shoulders during the last few days, were shifted forward to fighting position. Exhausted, sick, and hungry tho they might be, the raiders quickened their step along the narrow trail. The staring deadness disappeared from their faces. They were men who, in hours or minutes, would face the test for which they had been conditioned during long grueling months of training. The test of war.

Shortly after 9 o'clock — we were not more than two miles from Viru at the time — we heard the tremendous explosions of heavy bombs somewhere ahead and the whining roar of diving planes. Currin stopped the column and went forward to talk to Maj. Roy J. Batterton Jr., Lexington, Ky. I went with him. Batterton was the expedition's demolition expert.

"What do you think that is, Roy?" Currin asked. "There was no dive-bombing called for in our plans. Hell, this gets more confused every minute."

"Might be Jap planes attacking Walker, if the Nips at Viru learned his position," Batterton replied. "But there's no way of telling for sure out here."

"Dammit, whatever it is we've got a job to do, so let's go do it," grunted Currin. "We'll die of old age if we don't knock off that harbor soon."

We moved on, and within 20 minutes the last bomb had fallen, the planes had left. Then, so far away that it sounded like the crackling of branches, we heard a machine gun begin the battle of Viru harbor.

Walker's men had struck. By the grace of God the dive-bombers had been ours, sent out by worried commanders on the slim hope of helping us if we were facing an enemy too strong for the raiders. Walker reached the fringe of the tiny clearing on the east side of the harbor at almost the exact minute the first plane peeled off from its lazy circle and dropped like a diving hawk for the center of Viru village. On its tail came another and another, diving at intervals of only a few seconds. Giant geysers of earth and rock streamed skyward from the 2,000 pound bombs.

The Japs on the east bank were too busy getting themselves underground to become aware of Walker's men. When the bombing ended the Nips climbed from their holes, only a few yards in front of his machine guns. Those were the last foxholes they ever left.

Those planes helped us on the west side as well. When the heavy bombs tore into the village the Japs there deserted the bivouac area and poured back into the jungle to the west —towards us. Apparently they stayed there, expecting another air attack, for we met them in the jungle half an hour later.

The rain had begun again, a steady cold downpour. At a half run we moved up the trail, dense jungle on both sides of us, no signs of life. Then, from somewhere ahead of the point of the column, came the crack of a rifle. The light and vicious spang of a Jap .25.

Two men in the point were hit immediately, but long months of training saved the rest. Without thinking they fanned off into the thick underbrush. The attack began.

Nip machine guns — heavies this time—commanded the trail approaches. Snipers 50 feet up in the trees protected the gun emplacements. They were our greatest danger, those snipers, because their range of fire from the high positions enabled them to snipe at men far back in the main body of the column. Their bullets whined around us, chipping bits off the trees, making funny little plopping sounds in the mud of the trail.

That four hour battle lives in my mind as a series of kaleidoscopic flashes. I have no continuous over-all picture—things happened too fast.

At the beginning I was about 50 yards behind the point. The advance had stopped, and we were lying in the ooze at the roots of jungle trees, pressed flat on our faces. I saw Currin go by on a dead run. Peeping out, I saw him charge 50 yards up the trail, then make a running dive behind a fallen tree where Lt. Ray Luckel, Richmond, Cal., in command of the point, awaited orders.

Beside me was young Willard R. Goodson, Monroe, Mich., the runner. He nudged me as Currin rushed by.

"Now watch what happens," he said. "The old man will have us on our way in no time. We might as well take it easy while we can. Got a match?"

I handed him a match box and watched him as he rolled over onto his back, lit a cigaret, and lay smoking peacefully.

Within a few minutes the raiders spread over a 200 yard front and began the envelopment of the first machine gun nest. Soon they were only a few yards away from the gun muzzles, flattened on the ground behind stumps and fallen trees, waiting for the final push.

Sgt. Loren W. Schofield, 22, of Omaha, Neb., got tired of waiting, of listening to the chatter of the Nip guns, of hearing their bullets whining over him. When the fire ceased for a moment while the Nips changed belts Schofield jumped forward with his Browning automatic rifle, hoping to wipe out the nest before it got him. He told me about it 20 minutes later as a corpsman taped his chest.

"I'd no sooner gotten on my feet and begun to move when something hit me in the chest and slammed me flat on my back. Jeez, it was like a punch from Joe Louis. I felt no pain and couldn't figure what the hell had happened.

"When my head cleared I ducked behind a stump, then looked down at my chest. Cripes, do you know what it was? I had a grenade in the left breast pocket of my jungle suit, and a sniper's bullet had smashed right into it. The force of the bullet knocked me right on my rear, but the grenade was all right, just chipped a little and the firing handle twisted.

"The Nips still weren't fighting, so I took the grenade, moved up a few yards, and let 'em have it. There were four gunners there and it got them all. And all I got out of it was a couple of broken ribs."

By now the raiders were performing like a Knute Rockne back field. Luckel's men moved forward until a machine gun opened on them. Then they flattened out, and with their rifles and their own machine guns settled down to keep the Japs occupied.

While they held the attention of the gunners, four or five raiders from the demolition unit—the homemade bomb boys —slipped around on each side. Closing, they hurled their TNT concoctions into the nest. Then every one set out to look for a new gun position.

All of the marines were tough, but these men of the demolition squads had an extra special brand of toughness. Lying there in the mud, I watched them moving up in the driving rain. They crawled on their hands and knees. In each dirty face was stuck a lighted, carefully shielded cigaret—part of their combat equipment. Every man had a demolition bomb in each hand and across each chest was strapped a canvas bag filled with other charges. If a bullet had hit one of those sacks—well, there wouldn't have been even a dog tag left.

When a man got within throwing distance of a pillbox he touched the half inch fuse of a bomb to the cigaret, then threw the charge like a gigantic firecracker.

Later I discovered that two men of the demolition unit underwent what was probably the most peculiar experience of the entire battle. They were Privates Donzel Harker, 18, of Morgantown, W. Va., and William H. Chance, 23, Boone, Ia.

Harker and Chance were ordered forward about an hour after the fight started to knock out a pillbox well concealed in the jungle about a hundred yards to the left of the trail. Alone they crawled toward it. The Japs must have been at lunch or something, because the two raiders crawled right past it without seeing it or drawing fire—and kept on going.

"We crawled on and on until all the shooting was behind us," Harker told me. "It didn't seem right, but what the hell. Then, by golly, we came out in a little clearing, and on the other side was a big emplacement facing the sea. Inside was that damned 3 inch gun the old man told us about."

The two marines had moved past our own front line, thru the Jap front, thru the Jap rear positions, and down to where the heavy gun was emplaced.

"Boy, by that time my knees were doing a rumba," Harker continued. "We decided to get the hell out of there and right now. Turning around we crawled back, and after 20 minutes managed to get back inside our own lines without getting shot.

"O, yeah, and on the way back we bagged a sniper. He was perched in a tree with his back to us, and he never knew what hit him. He came down like a shotgunned duck."

Slowly we moved forward. The advances were sporadic. Sometimes we lay along the trail for 30 minutes at a time; then the order would be whispered back down the line, "Moving up, let's go, moving up." We were fighting an unseen enemy. We never saw a Jap, but their bullets whined and echoed over our heads.

I always had imagined the roar of the guns never ceased once a battle had started. But it was not like that at all. This fight for Viru, one of the most vicious in the New Georgia campaign, really was a series of little battles lasting from a minute to 15 at the most, with long periods of silence between.

A machine gun would open fire somewhere ahead, and we would hug the ground. Other guns would take it up, and the jungle would resound with their chattering roar. The sharper crack of rifles and grenades and the heavier, duller wumph wumph of demolition bombs would punctuate the racket.

For minutes all hell would break loose over and around us. Then, so suddenly you could not believe it, the guns would stop and the jungle would be still again. Not a sound but the dripping of the rain. Not a movement to be seen anywhere. The silence of death.

It was during one of these periods when both sides were awaiting a move that Goodson showed what a good little man he was. He had left me shortly before to take a message to Currin, somewhere ahead. During the lull he decided to beat his way back.

I heard some one coming and raised my head to look. Goodson, carrying his rifle in his right hand, was moving as fast as he could while bent over.

Suddenly a Jap rifle cracked somewhere to his right. I saw the bullet bite a hole in the mud at his feet. Then another struck a tree beside him. The Michigan boy slid to a halt, swinging his rifle up as he stopped. Still crouching, he fired twice from the hip. Then he ducked behind a tree.

I was sure he had missed. I couldn't see anything in the direction he had sent his bullets. I waited, too. In a minute there was a slight rustle from one of the trees on the right of the trail. Another rustle. Then a heavy object toppled like a stone from a crotch 60 feet up. It was the Jap sniper.

"I always wanted to get me one of those bastards, and I sure nailed him, right thru the head," Goodson whispered as he flopped beside me. "How about a cigaret? I'm out."

In the next forward rush I lost contact with the man ahead of me in the column. I was going at a run, slipping and sliding in the mud, when I tore around a bend in the trail and ran into my first Jap.

With a yelp I jumped off the trail and behind a tree. I had seen a big, powerful yellow man clad in a brown-green uniform, crouched beside the trail, a rifle in his hands and his eyes staring straight into mine.

For a minute or so I lay there, wishing somebody would come with a rifle, cursing the regulation which insists that correspondents go unarmed. Then I realized nothing had happened, altho this Nip had had time to shoot 10 people.

Cautiously I sneaked around the tree until I could see ahead with one eye. He was still there, still crouching, still staring at me. Then for the first time I saw it—a little round hole centered almost directly between his eyes.

Further up the trail I passed several little groups of five to 10 Japs, huddled around their guns where grenades and demolition bombs had caught them. But none was so startling as that first one, crouching there in the mud and looking at me with still unglazed eyes.

Despite the grimness and death which enveloped us, even those four hours of bitter, vicious fighting had their moments of comedy. Comedy dabbed with blood, to be sure, but still comedy.

Pvt. 1st Class James Callahan became involved with a Jap heavy machine gun. Vainly he dived from one fallen tree to another, trying to get away from its fire, but the bullets continued to chip bark around him and throw dirt and rock into his face. He dived for another fallen tree, but unfortunately this one was not quite thick enough to shield all of the rather obese Callahan body. Hugging the ground behind the tree, his head, trunk, and legs were safe — the Jap bullet creased him across the only portion of his anatomy he had forgotten. He didn't sit down for a week afterwards, and that's one war wound he'll never show to his friends.

Then there was Pvt. Florian J. Bartoszewicz. Handling a light machine gun, he hammered away for five minutes at a concealed Jap machine gun, all to no avail. Suddenly the Jap opened up on him. One bullet creased him across the shoulder. Bartoszewicz, angered by the wound, was about to begin firing again when a second bullet hit his other shoulder.

That second wound apparently aroused the fighting blood of generations of Bartoszewiczes. Roaring curses, he seized his machine gun and ran forward, lugging tripod and all, firing as he ran. With his left hand burning to a crisp on the hot barrel, he cleaned out that nest.

Three hours after the battle started we were within a few hundred yards of the village. I was behind a mahogany tree, awaiting the order to move up again and hoping that a sniper working near-by would not see me. Beside me, his face covered with a poncho, lay a young raider dying from a bullet wound thru his head. He had been hit under this same tree a few minutes earlier.

Some one hurled himself down almost on top of me. Rolling over, I saw it was Father Paul J. Redmond of San Francisco and New Haven, Conn., the chaplain. Motioning me out of the way, he crawled in beside the marine. With his body pressed down into the mud, he fished a stole from his uniform pocket, hauled it up around his neck, and began the last rites of the Catholic church. Coolly and peacefully, there amid the machine gun and sniper fire and the mud and smell of the jungle, came the sonorous Latin words of the extreme unction:

"Per istam sanctam unctio-

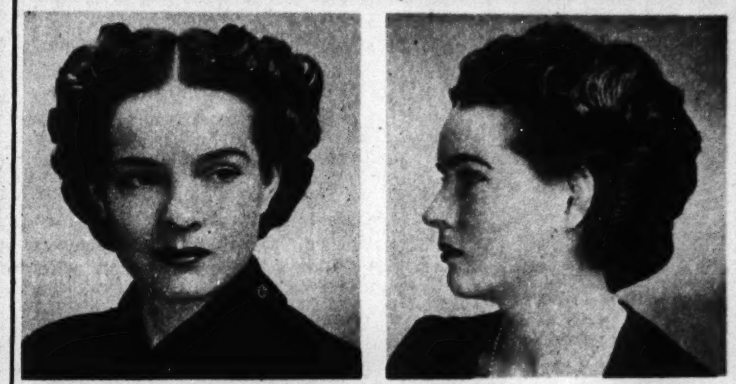
THE ARTIST

THE sketches illustrating the story of the attack and capture of Viru harbor by the 4th marine raider battalion are the work of Pvt. Frederick Douglas Greenbowe, 22 years old, a raider who served with the battalion thruout the New Georgia invasion and the Guadalcanal campaign.

Private Greenbowe, whose home is in East Orange, N. J., prepared the series of sketches from preliminary drawings he had penciled on a soiled, wet scratch pad while in the front lines during the New Georgia push. The final drawings were completed in a rest camp.

As a member of a machine gun unit Private Greenbowe took part in the initial landing on Guadalcanal Aug. 7, 1942, and fought there until he was evacuated on Sept. 12 of that year. He now is in the intelligence section of the 4th raiders, doing map and reconnaissance work. For a year prior to joining the marines in January, 1942, he studied at the Art Students' league, New York.

Combing Out Party



Three slants on simplifying the home care of hair-dos. These coiffures are designed for the busy woman.

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

AT A RECENT hat showing the relationship between hat and hair was stressed over and over again. We witnessed a smart parade of hats and coiffures and asked where we could store a hairdresser so he would be on hand daily to resuscitate the elegant coiffure.

The hair stylist retorted: "All right, Miss Donnelly, I take up your challenge. I'll show you a hair-do that is easy to comb and simple to keep in place these hectic days, just to prove you don't have to have a hairdresser in your home for daily attention you think is needed."

The pictures herewith are the hairdresser's answer to our dare.

"I think I've done my part," says the hair artist. "But if you write the story, please point out to women that having a neat, attractive head depends as much on the woman herself as upon her hairdresser. The texture of her hair doesn't matter, but her willingness to let a good hairdresser analyze the hair and design the right coiffure for it does matter a great deal."

Allow your hairdresser to do an experimental coiffure on a day when you are not going to a big party. If he feels it should be cut or thinned he will do so with discretion and ask you to come back the next day to see how the hair-do "jelled." He may advise more cutting and shaping. If so, trust him. He knows by this time.

If you are a busy woman you ought to be able to have a pretty hair-do by three minutes' attention every morning. The coiffures shown here are designed to be brushed out and arranged with "accent" rolls at either side to give form.

nem indulgeat tibi Dominus quidquid delequisti."

While he was intoning the soft rolling words of the death chant the rattle of the guns died away and the jungle became still. Somewhere a small tropical bird gave a frightened cry. The silence was a blanket.

Then, 75 yards ahead, there came a muffled howling, beginning on the margin of sound and growing louder and louder. It had a queer, subhuman quality; the mouthings of mad things preparing for slaughter. It was the Japanese working themselves into a fanatical frenzy for a final desperate attempt to stop the raiders.

For three minutes they howled and shrieked, and all the while the guns were still. Then, at the climax, they charged.

The staccato chatter of one of our guns began, then another, and another, and another, swelling into a clamoring rush of sound as the marine gunners smashed lead into the onrushing Japanese. For 30 seconds the guns roared unceasingly; then the firing stopped. The howling began again, but this time it was different. It was the screams and groans of men mortally torn and ripped by the American guns.

In those 30 seconds the backbone of Japanese resistance was broken. The next hour was a mopping up operation—cleaning Japs out of coral caves, finding and killing isolated snipers, now and then flushing a lone, frightened rifleman from his jungle hiding place. Half a dozen or so Japanese chose to plunge to their death from the 150 foot cliffs of the harbor rather than face the raiders' guns and bombs. That was all right with the marines; it saved ammunition.

When the last Jap had been killed we turned our attention to their bivouac area. It was smashed and gutted from the morning bombing. There were craters 40 feet across and 25 feet deep. But we did find what we were looking for—food and water.

Sitting there on the earthen floors of the little thatched huts, we gulped down Japanese tinned salmon and clear cold water. I know this sounds coarse and brutal, crouching there and stuffing ourselves with captured food while our enemies lay dead around us. But it did not hurt them any, and we had been without real food for four days.

That night we brought in our dead from the mud and slime of the trail. There on that high bluff overlooking the little harbor the marines who died in the final attack on Viru were laid in shallow graves in a tiny clearing amid the coconut palms. It was a fitting resting place for marines, who since the founding of their corps have given their lives in the lonely, forgotten places of the world.

Colonel Currin, Major Batterton, and the rest of us stood there in the growing darkness of that forsaken little spot as the thin, worn bodies of our friends were wrapped in ponchos and lowered into graves. Father Redmond was dirty and unshaven, and his eyes were red and tired as he stood there in the coming night, reading the burial service by flashlight. But his words were strong, and they transformed the little clearing into a special kind of church as he spoke them:

"I am the resurrection and the life; he who believeth in Me, altho he be dead, shall live; and every one who liveth and believeth in Me shall not die forever.

"You men who have given your lives here in the jungles of Viru were of all races and religions. But you were comrades in life, and here in this spot you shall remain comrades. May you rest in peace; you have served your country well. God bless you."

Rifles which a few hours earlier had dealt death to the Japanese roared over the graves of the dead. United States marines once again had the situation well in hand.

ROLL OUT THE MEAT!

By MARY MEADE

MEAT biscuit roll is an interesting dish and one which will stretch your supply of fresh meat or help you to use left-overs. It consists of baking powder biscuit dough into which a meat filling is tucked, jelly roll fashion.

To make the meat roll with ground fresh beef, use this recipe:

MEAT ROLL WITH CREAMED VEGETABLES

(Serves six)

1½ tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon fat
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups medium white sauce
1 recipe biscuit dough
3½ cups canned or cooked vegetables

Melt fat in skillet; add meat, onion, and green pepper. Brown meat thoroly. Add 1 teaspoon salt; stir well and cool. Combine ½ cup of white sauce with meat mixture.

Roll out biscuit dough on floured board to a rectangle about ⅛ inch thick. Spread cooled meat mixture over dough and roll up as for jelly roll. Cut roll in 1 inch slices. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, about 18 minutes, or until golden brown. Add cooked vegetables to remaining 2 cups of white sauce and serve hot over baked meat rolls.

To make the medium white sauce, in case you've forgotten the proportions: Blend 5 tablespoons margarine, 5 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Add 2½ cups milk gradually and stir over low heat until smooth and thickened. Liquid from canned or cooked vegetables may be used in place of part of milk.

To make the biscuit dough, if you haven't a recipe handy, sift 2 cups bread flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt. Cut in ¼ cup lard or shortening and add ⅝ cup milk, or enough to enable you to mix a stiff dough.

In addition to the meat rolls and vegetables, serve a crisp salad for dinner, and make the dessert with fresh pears.

SPICED PEAR PUDDING

(Six to eight servings)

1 tablespoon plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups hot water
½ cup sugar
4 fresh pears, pared and halved
1 inch strip lemon rind
1 stick cinnamon
1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add sugar, cinnamon, and lemon to hot water and drop in pear halves. Simmer until fruit is tender. Remove pears, cinnamon, and lemon. Add gelatin to hot sirup and stir until dissolved. Cool until mixture begins to thicken. Beat with rotary beater until frothy, then fold in stiffly beaten egg white to which 2 tablespoons sugar has been added. Pile into sherbet glasses on top of pear halves, or cut pear halves in slices and arrange on top of pudding. Garnish with maraschino cherries. Chill until ready to serve.

If canned pears are used in this recipe, simmer pears 5 minutes in pear juice to which cinnamon and lemon have been added. Add water, if necessary, to make 1⅓ cups liquid.

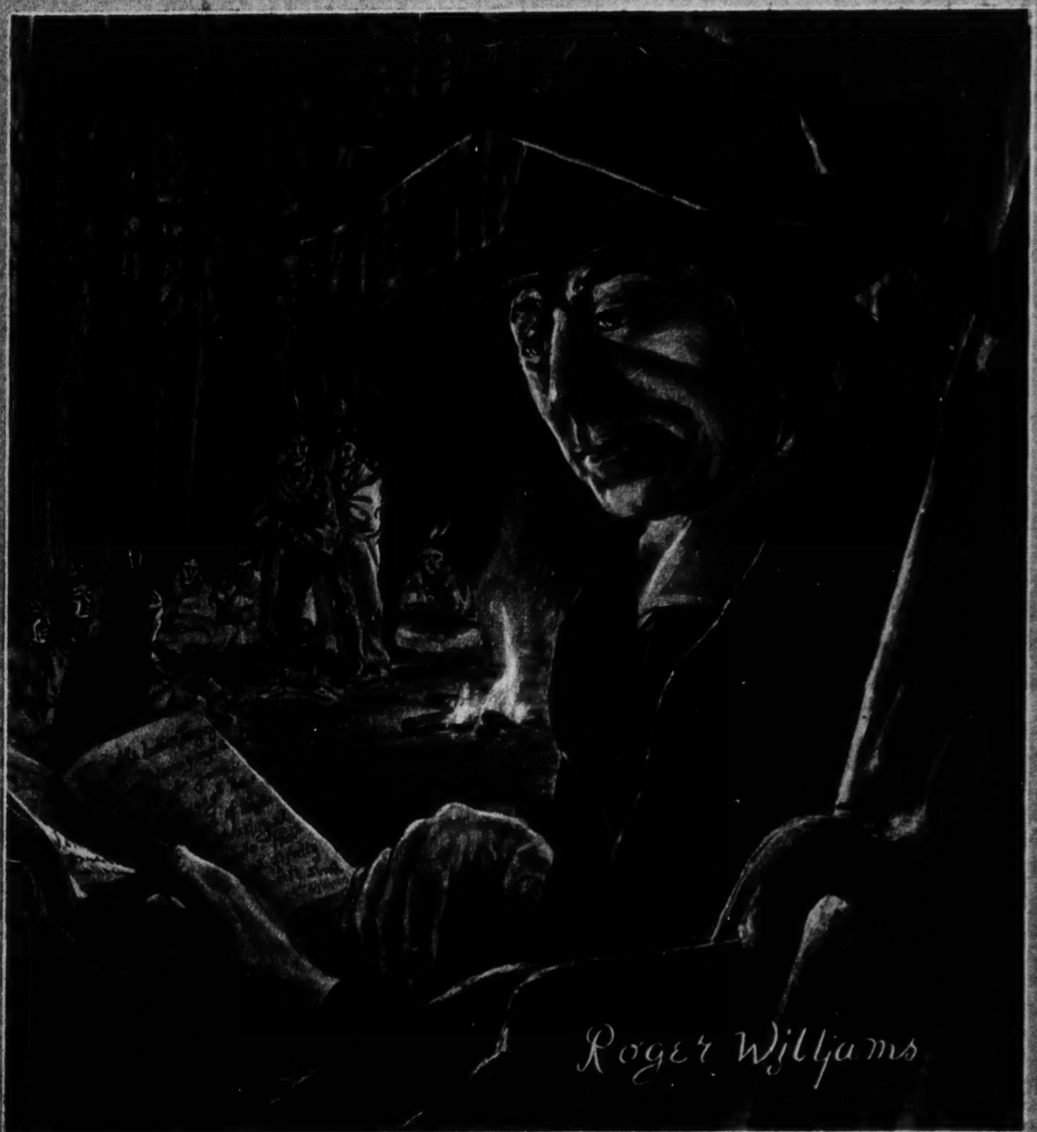
ROMANTIC FIGURES of AMERICAN HISTORY



The dramatic illustration above, by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vamak, is another of the series appearing currently in this section with biographical sketches. Watch for this feature every Sunday.

PIONEER EXPONENT of religious liberty, friend of the Indians, and founder of the colony of Rhode Island, Roger Williams was one of the outstanding figures of early American history.

Independent in thought and speech, he was the first or among the first in America to rebel against regimentation. It was the spirit of freedom and justice such as he displayed that many years later flared into the Revolutionary war, which brought America its independence.

He was born in London about the year 1604, the son of a tailor. Educated at Pembroke college, Cambridge university, he received his degree in 1627, and, after taking up theology as a career, he sailed for Boston, Mass., in 1631. As assistant pastor and teacher at Salem, in the Massachusetts colony, he incurred the displeasure of the colony authorities by insisting, among other things, that the civil power of a state properly could have no jurisdiction over men's consciences and that the king's patent conveyed no just title to the colonists' lands, which should be purchased, he believed, from the Indians, their rightful owners.

In July, 1635, he was tried for the expression of these opinions by the Massachusetts general court, and in the following October, because he had not recanted in the meantime, he was ordered expelled from the colony. When an attempt was made to arrest him in July, 1636, and send him back to England, he escaped and proceeded alone to Manton's Neck. There in the following June he, with four companions who had joined him, founded the first settlement of Rhode Island, which he called Providence.

From the Indian sachems Canonicus and Miantonomo he bought the land upon which the settlement was made. Thoroly trusted by the Indians of that region, whose language he had learned, he induced the Narragansett tribes to ally themselves with the Massachusetts colonists in the Pequot war, thus returning good for evil to those who had driven him out.

The Providence settlement was founded on the basis of complete religious tolerance, and it soon afforded a refuge to a number who had been persecuted for their beliefs. Among these were a group of Anabaptists, one of whom baptized Williams. He in turn baptized others, thus setting up what is considered to have been the first Baptist church in America. Preserving his connection with this church for only a few months, Williams withdrew from it and thereafter was known as a "seeker" or independent.

On returning to England in 1643 he obtained a charter for "the Providence Plantations in the Narragansett Bay." In 1646, back in America, he moved from the Providence settlement to a place which later came to be known as Wickford, R. I. He was president or governor of the Rhode Island settlements from 1654 to 1657 and assistant in several subsequent years. In 1651 he went back to England again to obtain a more explicit colonial charter. It was while in England on this occasion that he made friends with a number of distinguished Puritans, including Cromwell and Milton. He died in Providence some time in March, 1684.

THE GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER Presents ALICE FAYE in "THE GANG'S ALL HERE"

1 Sgt. Andy Mason Jr. (James Ellison) has just discovered Eadie Allen, dancer in the line at a New York night club. Altho his fiancee's father, Peyton Potter (Edward Everett Horton), is there with Andy's father (Eugene Pallette), Andy hunts up Eadie.

3 In fact, he makes a date with Eadie (Alice Faye) to see him depart that night. He's bound overseas. He tells her he's Sergeant Casey, from a small town, then kisses her good-by.

4 Months go by, and Andy returns, a hero. In his honor Mr. Mason throws a large party, hiring all the club entertainers, including Eadie, to perform. Vivian is pinch-hitting in a dance team, and likes Eadie. Another entertainer is Dorita (Carmen Miranda).

5 Eadie is amazed to see Vivian embrace Andy. Then Dorita tells her the truth. Altho Andy tries to explain his reason for hiding his identity—that he really loves her—Eadie is angry.

6 But when she goes to her dressing room she overhears Vivian say that she's going to dance professionally and plans to break her engagement to Andy. Overjoyed, Eadie rushes to him and confesses her love. It's a great finale for the show. (THE END)

Now used in the treatment of burn casualties on Allied battle fronts and in American war industries.

REVISED APRIL 1943
TREATMENT OF BURNS AND PREVENTION OF WOUND INFECTIONS
MEDICAL DIVISION
U. S. OFFICE OF CIVILIAN DEFENSE
Washington, D. C.

Now officially recommended in the first aid treatment of burns by the United States Office of Civilian Defense.

REMARKABLY EFFECTIVE FIRST AID FOR BURNS REPORTED TO MEDICAL PROFESSION

OUT of experience with the most terrible burns in the war and recent civilian disasters has come widespread recognition of one of the simplest, most effective first aid treatments for burns ever reported to the medical profession. The substance used on the burned surfaces is Petrolatum—better known to millions as 'Vaseline' Petroleum Jelly.

Petrolatum is not only being used by physicians as part of the treatment* in the most serious of burn injuries, but is now also officially recommended by the Medical Division of the Office of Civilian Defense. Reports of its use in minor burns in war industries also show more rapid recovery than with any other type of treatment observed.

This is important news to every home in America, to every family with a war worker, to every mother of small children. If you do not have a jar or tube of 'Vaseline' Petroleum Jelly in your medicine cabinet, it will pay you to get one and keep it always on hand. And when you buy, look for the trademark VASELINE . . . It is your guarantee of absolute purity.

FIRST AID TREATMENT OF EVERYDAY BURNS IN YOUR HOME

Bandage firmly—but not too tightly.

Call your physician immediately if the burn is deep or covers a wide area.

*NOTE: The treatment of serious burns often involves the use of blood plasma, sulfa and other drugs. 'Vaseline' Petroleum Jelly is a valuable first aid treatment to give immediate relief and protection to the burned area.

"Loves Me, Loves Me Not"

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer.")

"HE LOVES me, he loves me not"—he's got you wondering; you'd like to know, but the daisies won't talk, and even his best friends won't tell you. Joe may call you every night in the week and never miss asking for a date for Saturday night; last week he sent you flowers for your birthday, and last night he came mighty close to asking you to wear his class ring—but still you aren't sure. You can't help wondering if this grand rush is just part of his line; if you're just tiding him over till the right thing comes along, or if your coosome twosome arrangement is something that will be good for Sunday, Monday, and always. Try putting the friendship to this "if" test and see whether your score adds up to a here-today-no-date-tomorrow affair or if it is really something big, bright, and wonderful.

You are really his idea of something to do: If he comes early to study hall just so he can get a seat next to yours. If he saves his nickels to play the numbers you like in the juke box. If he likes to reminisce about where you went on your first date together, what he said and what you wore. If he thinks all the gals should wear their hair parted in the middle, with a little bow on each side, just because you do. If you can make him jealous. If he doesn't mind waiting for you for half an hour after school while you do a rush history assignment in the library.

If he can tell what color your eyes are without having to look. If he tries to arrange his nights out with the fellows on the nights when you are busy, too.

You are really his idea of something to do if he can tell what color your eyes are without having to look.

If he has dropped in unexpectedly and caught you in cold cream and curlers—and he still keeps coming. If he likes to tell you about what he plans to do when he gets out of the army. If he thinks it's important that you know just what he wants to take up in college, what he plans to do with his life. And if he is all ears to hear what you have lined up in the way of careers yourself. If he thinks you wear too much lipstick and says so, not to hurt your feelings, but because "you are so pretty you really don't need to wear any!" If he always holds your hand at the movies. And if he looks as if he'd like to hold your hand in street cars, at glee club practice, and even when you're sitting on the front porch talking with your mother and dad.

If he wants to dance every dance. If he likes slow music best because you do, and if he thinks that you're the only girl in the world who belongs with "Star Dust." If he doesn't bring another couple along to double-date every time you go out. If he says, "It can't be that late already," every time you're ready to go home. If he asks what the middle initial in your signature stands for and then remembers. If he doesn't mind telling you about what a hard time he had learning to dance or how scared he was on his first formal date.

If he agrees with you about Frank Sinatra. If he remembers what dress you wore on your last date and likes you best in your old blue sweater because "it does something for your eyes." If he thinks your mother's right when she says you can't have dates on school nights. If he says to the fellows: "We haven't made our plans for next Friday. I'll ask her if she'd like to go." If he thinks you look like Ingrid Bergman.

If he tells his mother all about you. If he listens patiently while your mother tells him all about you. If he is content to have dates with you right on your own front steps—without cokes, without car, without music, and, most important, without any one else around—then you're really in!

But it's strictly no sale: If he spends half the evening telling you about the swell dates he had last week with four other girls. If he thinks you're crazy for liking chocolate cokes. If he waits till 7 o'clock in the evening to call you for a date—and doesn't sound disappointed if you already have one. If he gets angry—and says so—if your dog jumps up on his newly pressed pants.

If he wears yellow bow ties and rolls up the cuffs of his trousers, even tho he knows you don't like it. If he thinks your little sister looks queer with braces on her teeth and remembers to tell you about it. If he suggests going home before you do. If he insists on going to a Dorothy Lamour movie when you were all set to see Mickey Rooney. If he thinks you have a silly giggle.

If he says he thinks your girl friend is pretty and then asks where she lives. If he keeps you waiting and then is annoyed when he has to wait for you. If he only sends you a card at Christmas. If he stares over your head while you're dancing and comments on the other smooth girls on the floor. If he says vehemently and often that he never wants to go steady.

If he breaks dates casually and doesn't even bother to think up good excuses. If he likes to dance with other girls because he thinks you aren't very good at jitterbugging. If he forgets he was supposed to meet you after school and leaves you to walk home by yourself.

If he forgets all those things, you'd better forget him, too. Because this time next month it will probably be all over anyway. Time for you to start looking around for another boy and hoping for better luck next love.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

Balanced lighting can be obtained outdoors in bright sunlight by using a reflector to lighten up the shadows on the subject. In this picture the white sweater acts as the reflector.

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

EVEN THE sparsest of lighting equipment will enable you to make good indoor pictures if you use it to best advantage. Flash bulb and flood lamp shortages can be overcome if you plan your pictures to make use of ordinary lamps. Two lights in reflectors are all you need for most indoor shots of people, and in a pinch you can do very well with a pair of 100 watt bulbs.

Reflectors give you much more useful light where you need it and should always be used—especially when you are forced to employ weaker illumination. The trick of making good pictures with ordinary light bulbs is to plan your setup so that only a small area will be included. Then move your lights in close so that they illuminate this area as brightly as possible. With any subjects except small children a short time exposure can be used. This will permit you to get acceptable negatives at any aperture down to f:8 or so if you load up with fast panchromatic film.

Shadows make the picture as well as lighted areas, and by watching them carefully as you arrange your setup you can tell just what effect to expect. A good place to start is with a single lamp in a reflector, held near your camera. Don't fasten it—hold it in your hand so that you can move it about and watch the effect. If you place your light so that it strikes the subject at about a 45 degree angle, with the shadow of the tip of the nose near the corner of the mouth, you will have the familiar three-quarter lighting which often is used by painters as well as photographers.

Under most conditions it is advisable to have a secondary light to relieve the dark shadows. It can be placed near the camera, where it will cover the subject with a uniform minimum illumination that is highlighted by the main lamp.

Watch out that the secondary lamp doesn't outshine your main one, or you will get very drab results. A third one sometimes is desirable, however, especially when it is important to get good separation between subject and background.

Chemistry Combats Thirst

Reporters taste sea water made drinkable by navy's new filter process.

Pharmacist's Mate Joseph H. Shaner demonstrates the compact filter bag device. He is squeezing chemical into sea water.

Shaner drinks the refined sea water. The device he is holding is a two sack version. An experienced operator can produce good water in less than 30 minutes.

By DELOS AVERY

WHEREVER there is a soldier there must be water or the soldier will die, and it will not take long.

Wherever there is a mechanized army there must be much more water or the army cannot move far.

And wherever there are fighting men marooned at sea in lifeboats or rafts, the way Eddie Rickenbacker and his companions were, if such men are to survive there must be either luck enough to catch some rain and drink it, as Rickenbacker did, or a supply of stored fresh water, or a means of making sea water drinkable.

These problems have been solved by the technical specialists who march or sail with the land and sea forces of America's far-flung expeditions of war.

Take the case of the Rickenbacker men, who were able to live thru their frightful experience only because when they prayed for rain their prayer was answered. Their risk would be smaller today if their rafts were provided with equipment recently perfected by Capt. William L. Mann of the naval medical research institute at Bethesda, Md. It is a pocket size lifesaver consisting of three plastic bags and two chemicals described as "black and white"—which is the only description you'll get until the war secrets are published. It makes sea water drinkable by removing the sodium chloride (common salt) and the magnesium chloride. Enough to make a 20 day supply for the occupants of a raft can easily be carried.

Or take the case of a soldier caught far from his base in a tropical jungle on one of the South Pacific islands. He has his flask, which used to be aluminum but is now likely to be plastic. He also has a little packet of tablets that look like aspirin and whose function is to remove the deadliness of the water that may be found in a stagnant mud puddle.

He fills his flask with the nauseous stuff, dissolves a few of the tablets in it, and then—being far thirstier than the average civilian ever was—he drinks.

An' 'e guv me 'arf a pint o' water green;
It was crawlin' and it stunk,
But of all the drinks I've drunk
I'm gratefulest to one from Gunga
Din.

But what our jungle soldier drinks, while it tastes as bad and smells as bad as the deadly stuff from Din's goatskin bag, won't kill him. It will save his life.

The water supply troops, whose business is to work miracles when miracles are needed, were with the men who made the Alaska highway. They are with MacArthur's men. They are in the Aleutians. They went thru North Africa, and there—thanks to the fact that time was available for advance planning—they were able to achieve a really classic result.

There are few running streams in North Africa, and when you see what looks like a little lake it is likely to be nothing but a mirage. The country is so arid that even the native population must sometimes depend on melons and grapes to help slake thirst.

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

But the army men knew all this before they got there. They had made exhaustive studies. They knew what the supply was and what must be done to supplement it. They figured just how much water a soldier must have under various military conditions and just how much more there must be for water-cooled motors and water-cooled guns. And they took with them the tools they needed.

Did you know that a jeep can get along on one pint of water a day—in cool weather at sea level, when the load and the speed are not too great and when there is no hill climbing and no hub-deep sand to plow thru? And did you know that the same jeep must have from five to 15 gallons a day when its operating conditions are bad?

The army specialists had to have that kind of information, and it had to be reliable, not only for jeeps but for heavy trucks, for tanks, for all the rest of the mechanical equipment.

They also had to know that a front line soldier can fight on a quart of water a day, but not for many days and not when the air he breathes is half dust and not when he is depending on dehydrated rations—ration K—for his nourishment.

That is emergency requirement up front. Behind the front, where men have to make up for front line deficiencies by using more, there must be more.

If there is a gallon a day per man it will suffice, used sparingly, for drinking, cooking, and brushing teeth. If there are two gallons a day per man the soldier can indulge in the luxury of washing his socks and underwear, but not too often. And back in the base camp, if the supply is five to 15 gallons a day, even a shower bath is possible. To understand what these restrictions mean it is enough to remember that the average civilian living in an American city, where he just turns on the faucet and takes what he pleases, consumes—partly by use and partly by waste—more than 125 gallons a day.

The problem of the water supply boys in North Africa was to provide enough, and very little more. They figured that for a field army of 250,000 men with motorized equipment the minimum requirement would be 5,000,000 gallons a day, and that to be on the safe side there ought to be 8,000,000 a day. And these figures must be in addition to the normal and not quite sufficient sources used up by the native population.

Where to get 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 gallons a day of new water in a desert country?

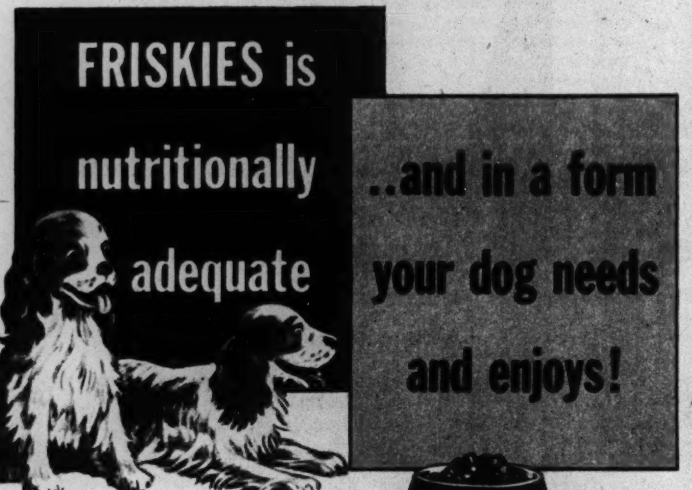
One device used by the water supply specialists is a drive-point well rig which two men can operate. In a few hours, if the apparatus does not encounter rock or some other obstruction, it can tap a water supply as deep as 50 feet. A more elaborate and ponderous outfit can tap a much deeper source, but that will take days, sometimes weeks.

Quicker supplies, not so tasty, are obtained from the rare and extremely shallow streams. These are badly polluted in most instances, but the water from them is made safe by purifying with chemicals. One purifying unit which is called portable because it can travel in a light truck will pump its supply from a stream 1 foot wide and 2 inches deep. It is pumped into tanks, where chemicals are added to coagulate and precipitate the solids. With the solids thus removed, the remaining liquid after 24 hours or more goes thru filters and is treated with additional purifying agents.

What comes out tastes and smells worse than Chicago's water ever did, but the soldier accepts it eagerly, and it does not make him sick.



FRISKIES is nutritionally adequate
..and in a form your dog needs and enjoys!

There's sound nutrition plus taste appeal for your dog in Friskies Cubes. For Friskies comes in the solid food form best suited to his natural digestion and appetite.

You see, food that enters a dog's stomach in large, solid pieces remains there long enough so your dog gets the most nutrition from every morsel. This fact determines the size, shape and consistency of Friskies.

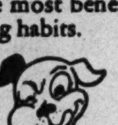
HOW TO START YOUR DOG ON FRISKIES CUBES

First, give him a few cubes of Friskies from your hand, so he learns their appealing flavor.

Next, mix a little Friskies, just as it comes from the package, with his accustomed food.

And Finally, increase the amount of Friskies in your dog's regular feedings, at the same time reducing the amount of his former food until Friskies is the major item in his daily diet. Your dog will eat Friskies eagerly if you follow these simple rules to accustom him to Friskies. If now and then he does not eat Friskies readily, remove his dish and try later. Remember, just as children must be taught to eat the most beneficial foods, so dogs must be trained to new eating habits.

CLEAN, CONVENIENT
...AND VERY THRIFTY!



There's no fuss, no bother when you feed your dog Friskies. It's clean, convenient, ready to use right from the package. Mighty economical, too—because Friskies is solid food, all food. Not an ounce of waste.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

WHEN ONE sits at a desk that is the terminus of a busy route of correspondence from dog owners and reads letters about dogs that misbehave in the home or on the street, he can't help but wish for the day that sees the seller of every puppy enroll the buyer in a short course that teaches the importance of training as the guide to 100 per cent enjoyment of a canine pet.

It's only natural for the owner of an unmanageable dog to want a quick short-cut to good behavior on the part of the house pet. Unfortunately, there is no such short-cut. Moreover, it's a real job to convince such an owner that the way to stop that unnecessary barking is not by means of whippings, but by first getting control over the dog. Control involves respect on the part of the dog for the owner's wishes and commands. There is only one way to instill that respect for commands in any dog. That's by teaching him such respect. Teaching, translated into dog language, means in this instance training. It's hard to convince the average owner that the way to cure that lovable, boisterous dog (which won't mind) of its habit of barking is to throw away the folded newspaper, stop the business of swatting him, and go 'way back to the kindergarten stuff in training and good manners. And, unfortunately, such a routine takes time. The owner wants a quick cure!

What happens in a training course is this: You train that dog to mind by means of a simple daily routine which you can see demonstrated in any kennel or in any amateur training class. The dog begins to realize that the owner is the boss. Sure, he can have fun, and he can play with the boss. There are times for play, but when he hears that command "come here" or "sit" or "quiet," his first reaction is to mind, because training has instilled in him that desire plus respect—a new kind of respect—that now enters into his love for the boss. This changed attitude of the dog toward the owner, and its response, eventually make it easy for the animal to stop unnecessary barking.

Here is what happens. After several weeks have gone by, and the owner has control of his dog, because they have rehearsed the training routines together day after day, the doorbell test comes. Without thinking the dog jumps up and barks. That's all right. A good house dog has the right to bark an alarm. But from that point on the situation is different. The dog now is under control. If he has been handled right in the home he doesn't question an order or command. The owner orders "quiet," and then he may command the dog to "come." The dog obeys, because he has been trained to mind. It's possible to take that dog to the door, make him sit down, and he'll stay there as the guest comes in. Thus by going back to the kindergarten stuff for dogs and teaching him to mind the fundamental and simplest of commands it is possible to eliminate bad habits such as excessive barking. This may look like the long way around to achieve an objective, but it's the only sure way to get an obedient dog, one with good manners.

THE ROAD TO TOKIO

main drive be made? Study of the positions of allied forces in the Pacific and Australasia in relation to their ultimate objective should make the answer obvious.

To the north is Maj. Gen. Simon B. Buckner Jr., whose forces have cleaned the Japanese out of the Aleutians. His route is the shortest of all in actual distance, with Attu only a little more than 3,000 air miles from Hokkaido, northernmost of the four big islands of Japan. But it is a route perpetually shrouded in fog and ice, where the invasion forces of the United States would face a climactic enemy as vicious as the Japanese themselves. Buckner's route is not the right one.

In his map-lined office at the rebuilt Pearl Harbor is Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, eager to smash at Japan from his Hawaiian bases. But there are 3,400 miles of ocean between Hawaii and Tokio, and there are other obstacles as well. Granted that Nimitz could successfully invade, perhaps, the lightly held Gilbert and Marshall Islands, such an operation would bring him up against the terrifically powerful bulwark of Truk, keystone of the eastern reaches of the Japanese defensive perimeter.

It has been suggested that, with twenty to thirty aircraft carriers, Nimitz might drive directly against Japan itself. It seems certain that Nimitz would shudder at such a plan, which sounds as tho it had been engendered by a bottle of whisky and a fifty cent map of the Pacific. Given such a force, Nimitz undoubtedly could bomb Japan, but an actual invasion would be impossible. He could not hope to keep a supply line open to his landing forces over more than 3,000 miles of water without way stations.

Further, it will be 1944 or later before we could muster so many carriers. Would it be wise then to put all our eggs into one basket, to risk the major portion of our Pacific surface forces on such an expedition? Success would mean only bombing damages to Japanese industry and perhaps the destruction of part of Japan's fleet. Failure might mean the loss of the major part of our own Pacific fleet, a loss which would require additional years to rectify.

In India is Lord Louis Mountbatten, now top ranking allied leader in southeastern Asia. Mountbatten's route to Japan has even more obstacles than Buckner's or Nimitz'. First, there are the steaming jungles of Burma which would be paved with allied dead before we could fight our way thru. Then would come the mighty task of cleaning out the Malay peninsula, Singapore, and Sumatra, with their pro-Japanese populations, so that his surface forces could enter the Gulf of Siam and the South China Sea. Then the long, hard struggle up the coast — thru Thailand, Indo-China, and occupied China — before Mountbatten's men even would come within striking distance of Japan itself. Supply problems of this route would be the most difficult of all, losses in combat personnel probably the heaviest.

The most sensible route to Tokio is that of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. If sufficient land, sea, and air power were placed at his disposal it is certain that his road would be the fastest one to the heartland of Japan.

More important, it would be the least costly in lives. Japan, a nation of emperor-worshiping fanatics, may very well be prepared to lose ten million men on the battlefields of this war, but thinking people of the United States certainly are not willing to squander our fighting troops in such manner. Rightly, they want to put our forces into Japan by the least costly means.

MacArthur's road to Tokio certainly is no military secret. Time and again he has publicly stated his aims. Not that the Japanese needed those statements. They have the maps and a thoro knowledge of the rules of military strategy themselves, and they know which way the arrow points.

Let us turn to our front page map of the world. MacArthur now is firmly established on the north coast of New Guinea. His forces, under command of Adm. William F. Halsey, have smashed their way into Bougainville, last foothold of the Japanese in the Solomon Islands.

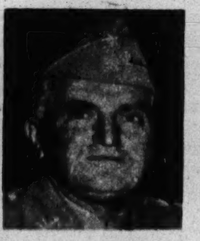
In his advance to these positions MacArthur has demonstrated his ability to outthink and outmaneuver the Japanese. In the grim, slugging offensive of the Huon peninsula, in the recent slashing amphibious operations in New Guinea and the Solomons, he has proved his right to lead the greater drive to come.

In those operations MacArthur also has proved another point. He has shown in actual combat that it is unnecessary and a needless waste of time and men to mop up the Japanese island by island, or base by base. Instead, he slashed his way thru to positions behind several of the Japanese bases; then by maintaining adequate control of the sea and air allowed them to fall by their own weight.

Lord Mountbatten

Admiral Nimitz

General MacArthur



Maj. Gen. Buckner

Admiral Halsey

The New Georgia offensive in the middle Solomons was a good example of this strategy, which dictates that a base cannot be maintained once its supply line is cut. After seizing the island of New Georgia itself, American fighting forces made no attempt to force a landing on heavily defended Kolombangara Island, a few miles to the northwest. Instead, these forces moved beyond Kolombangara to occupy Vella Lavella Island. Immediately the Japanese began the evacuation of Kolombangara.

Given strong surface and air power, MacArthur will be able to employ this same strategy on a far greater scale in the drive to come. Here is where that drive will probably lead him.

The first big leap leads to the Philippines. MacArthur now holds Finschhafen, Lae, and Salamaua on the north coast of New Guinea. His next logical move would be advances west along that coast against the Japanese bases at Wewak and Hollandia. Then would come a final smashing amphibious assault to clear the western tip of New Guinea. Based there, his forces would be more than half way up the 2,000 mile route to the Philippines.

From western New Guinea the route continues over island stepping stones—Salawati, the Moluccas, Sangihe and Talaud Islands—into the southernmost large Philippine island of Mindanao. Once in Mindanao, and with his line of supplies and reenforcements protected by fleet and airbases constructed at his island waystations, MacArthur would smash his way north thru the islands to Manila and Corregidor.

Reoccupation of the Philippines would place allied forces within less than 1,500 miles of Japan itself, with more good stepping stones for the remainder of the trip. But it also would mean much more than that, militarily and psychologically.

1. By invading the Philippines, MacArthur would successfully neutralize the importance of the tremendous naval base of Singapore, to the southwest, and the almost equally strong base of Truk, far to the east in the Caroline Islands, without being forced to attack either directly. Stated simply, he would be attaining his objective by stepping thru an open door instead of trying to pound his way thru the wall on either side of the doorway.

2. With the allied forces firmly entrenched once again in the Philippines, Japan's island empire in the East Indies for all useful purposes would be lost to the Nipponese. From bases on Mindanao our planes could strike directly into the heart of the Indies, ravaging the war industries Japan has nurtured there. From these bases in Luzon our heavy bombers would roam the South China sea, crippling or completely blocking the sea routes by which the wealth of the Indies now flows into Japan. To the east, our bombers could strike heavy blows at the Jap bases in the Palau Islands, and at Yap.

3. Psychologically, reoccupation of the Philippines would be a tremendous uplift for the morale of Americans, both fighting men and civilians. Bataan and Corregidor would be avenged; we would be in the heart of the rich empire won by treachery and deceit.

From northern Luzon it is a matter of little more than two hundred miles to the island of Formosa, and again there are small islands on the way which could be used as staging and air bases. Then MacArthur would have two choices: an amphibious drive over approximately eight hundred miles of the East China sea to Japan itself; or a move westward to the coast of China.

It seems probable that the hero of Bataan would choose the former. Such an operation again would undoubtedly use the available island stepping stones to establish an eventual beachhead on the southern shores of Kyushu, southernmost of Japan's four main islands. From there the drive would take him north thru Kyushu, across the narrow channel waters to the largest island of Honshu, heartland of the empire. There MacArthur would bring swift descent to the Rising Sun.

What would MacArthur need to do the job? His present strength, of course, is a military secret. But it is no secret that, thus far, he has been forced to struggle along on barest essentials, several American divisions reënforced by probably an equal or larger number of Australian divisions. His air force, commanded by Lt. Gen. George Kenney, has accomplished near miracles against the Japanese with a few hundred bombers and fighters. Readers will recall that "big raids" in the Pacific have been those in which 200 or 300 tons of bombs have been dropped by perhaps 150 bombers.

Think what MacArthur could do with a thousand or fifteen hundred bombers supported by perhaps two thousand fighters. If he had such a force, if he had armies totaling a million men, if he had the naval strength to go with such a force, that tortuous road to Tokio would become a highway.

But, as stated early in this article, the other players on this allied team must do their share and must have the men and material with which to do it. Offensive operations in each of these other theaters, timed with MacArthur's own moves under a plan of split second co-ordination, are absolutely necessary in order to prevent the Japanese from concentrating on MacArthur's forces.

Buckner's lot would be principally air action. Given a large bomber force — best of all, equipped with plenty of tremendously long ranged B-29 super fortresses now coming off the assembling lines—from his western Aleutian holdings he could demolish Japan's anchor base of Paramushiro in the northern Kuriles. When weather permitted, he could strike directly at Hokaido, carrying aerial terror to Japan itself.

Nimitz would have a two-fold task. First, ever increasing carrier and warship blows against Japan's island bases. Then, as MacArthur's forces begin to roll toward the Philippines, a gradual pruning of the more lightly defended bases—seizure of the Gilberts and Marshalls, capture of Wake Island, perhaps the lopping off of the eastern Caroline bases of Kusaie and the Ponape. Occupation of the last two bases would bring Truk within easy bombing range and, with sufficient air power on our side, prevent its use against MacArthur in his drive to the northwest.

Mountbatten's role would be critically important. With MacArthur advancing on the Philippines, it would be up to the former commando chief to employ his forces in such a manner that they would contain the enemy strength facing them and prevent it from moving against MacArthur. A spirited offensive in Burma would not be enough. Mountbatten would have to have sufficient air and sea strength to instill deep fear into the hearts of Japanese commanders at Singapore. That fear, if it could be made real enough by slashing naval blows at Japan's coastal bases on the eastern edge of the Malayan peninsula, perhaps by sending the new super long range bombers on repeated thrusts at Singapore itself, would force the Japanese to maintain strong sea and air strength there instead of rushing it east thru the Indies to flank MacArthur.

Tough, aggressive Adm. Halsey, now engaged in cleaning out Bougainville, the last of the Solomon Islands, would find a new and more important role as commander of MacArthur's own supporting naval units. Undoubtedly, his next task after Bougainville will be Rabaul, which must be taken before MacArthur can move freely up the coast of New Guinea. After that Halsey and his expert on amphibious operations, Rear Adm. Theodore S. Wilkinson, will find plenty to do when MacArthur jumps off from the tip of New Guinea for the drive over island stepping stones to Mindanao.

For its success, this broad scale plan demands far stronger land, sea, and air power than we have at the moment in the Pacific. It demands timing and coordination on a far greater scale than we ever have attempted before in that area. But with eventual success in the European war a certainty, that needed power should be available, and by now allied commanders should be up to the art of timing and coördination.

MacArthur is there now in New Guinea, waiting to begin the drive up that road to Tokio. For almost two years he has waited. Now the time has come.

THANKSGIVING

THANKSGIVING DAY, the purely American holiday which will be observed again thruout the nation next Thursday, Nov. 25, was first officially proclaimed by a President on Oct. 3, 1789. The text of President Washington's original proclamation follows:

"Whereas, It is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey His will, to be grateful for His benefits, and humbly to implore His protection and favor; and

"Whereas, Both houses of congress have by their joint committee requested me 'to recommend to the people of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many and signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity peaceably to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness';

"Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these states to the service of that great and glorious Being who is the beneficent author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be; that we may then all unite in rendering unto Him our sincere and humble thanks for His kind care and protection of the people of this country previous to their becoming a nation; for the signal and manifold mercies and favorable interpositions of His providence in the course and conclusion of the late war; for the great degree of tranquility, union, and plenty which we have since enjoyed; for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for our safety and happiness, and particularly the national one now lately instituted; for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed, and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge; and, in general, for all the great and various favors which He has been pleased to confer upon us.

"And also that we may then unite in most humbly offering our prayers and supplications to the great Lord and Ruler of Nations, and beseech Him to pardon our national and other transgressions; to enable us all, whether in public or private stations, to perform our several and relative duties properly and punctually; to render our national government a blessing to all the people by constantly being a government of wise, just, and constitutional laws, discreetly and faithfully executed and obeyed; to protect and guide all sovereigns and nations (especially such as have shown kindness to us), and bless them with good governments, peace, and concord; to promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue and the increase of science among them and us; and, generally, to grant unto all mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as He alone knows to be best.

"Given under my hand at the city of New York the 3d day of October, A. D. 1789.

"Go. WASHINGTON."

President Washington issued another Thanksgiving proclamation in 1795. After the close of the War of 1812 President Madison set apart a day for thanksgiving. By 1858 proclamations appointing a day of thanksgiving were issued by the governors of 25 states and two territories. In 1864 President Lincoln set aside as a day for thanksgiving a Thursday in November, and each President since has followed his example.

The day for prayer and giving thanks actually had its origin as early as 1621, when the Pilgrims at Plymouth thus appointed a time for rejoicing after harvesting their first crop. The Massachusetts Bay colony observed a thanksgiving day in 1630, and frequently thereafter until about 1680, when it became an annual holiday in the colony. The colonists of Connecticut and the Dutch in New Amsterdam (New York) also observed a thanksgiving day, and it was celebrated in American revolutionary times except in the year 1777.

MAKE THE MOST OF WALNUTS

See all the flavor, variety and extra food values they give your wartime meals.. ....point-free, too!

With so many other foods rationed or scarce, we know you'll be buying walnuts this year! So why not get all the help you can from these crisp, nutritious kernels?

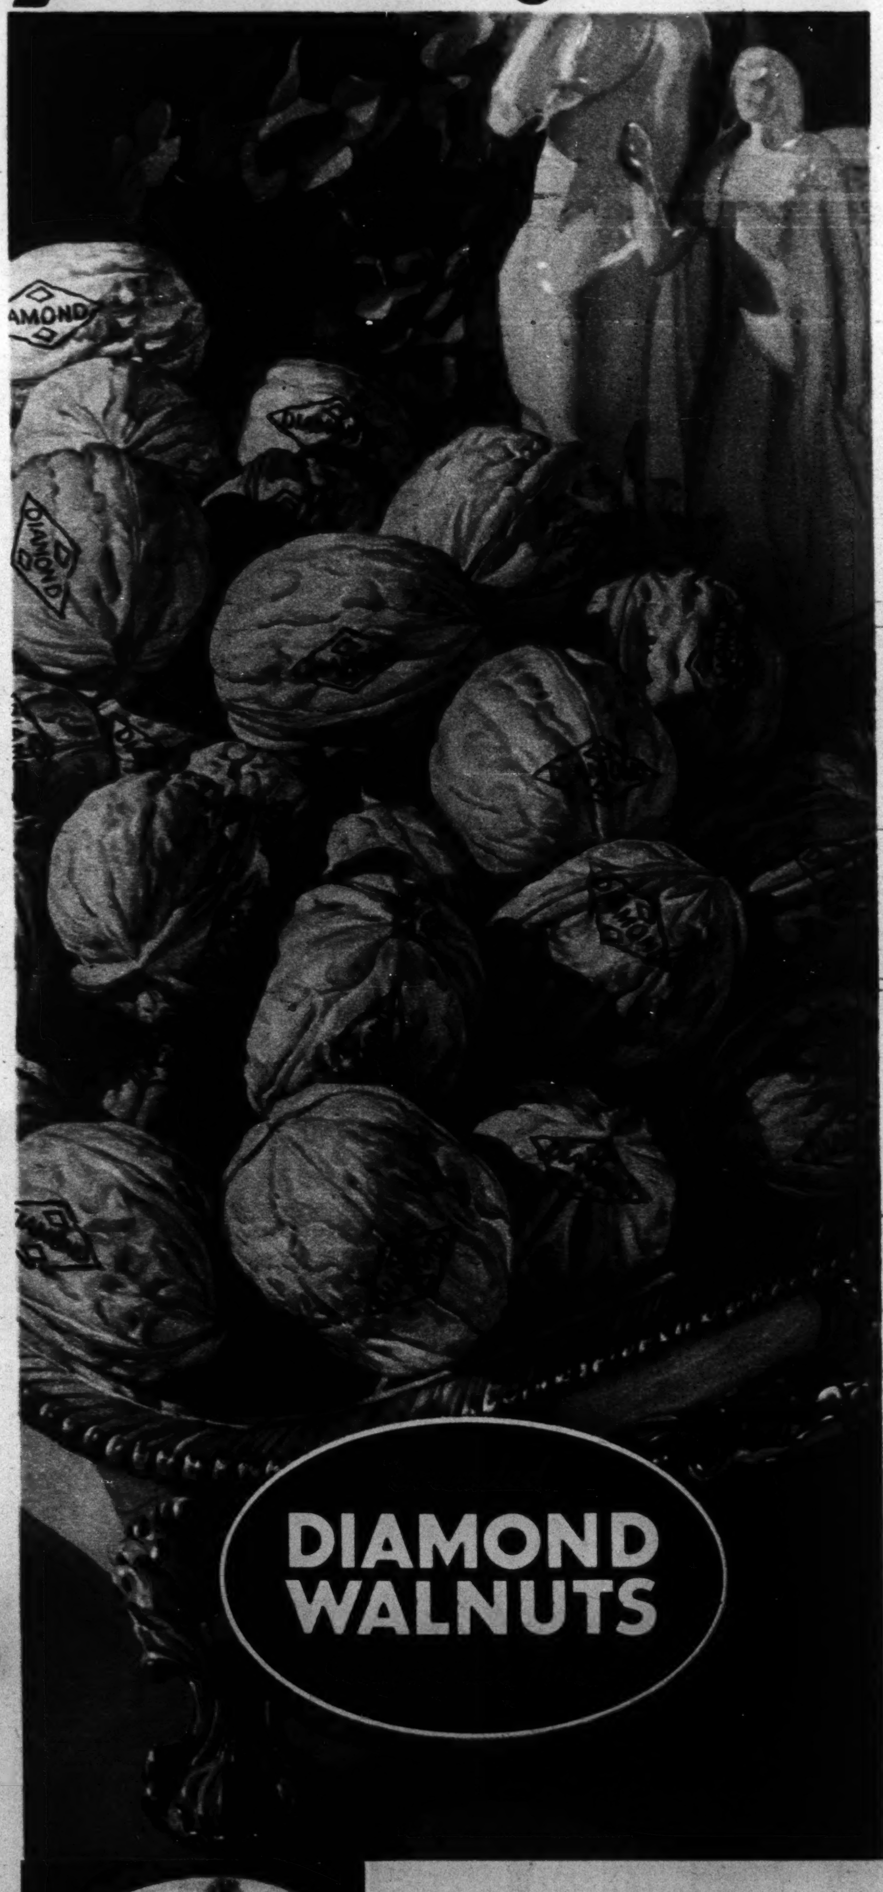
Need new "variety" ideas? Just try adding walnuts to your easy recipes! Chop 'em into salads for new flavor. Use them generously in puddings. Let walnuts put real "crunch-appeal" into muffins and coffee cake!

Want to save points? A few scraps of leftover meat, plus walnuts—there you have the makings of a marvelous, protein-rich meat loaf! And when you're short of sugar, use these golden kernels to make a skimpy cake icing look luscious, and taste like a million!

Keeping an eye on nutrition? Then do keep your eye on walnuts. Food experts have good reason for calling them walnut "meats"! Just see how closely a pound of walnut meats parallels the recommended adult diet:

	DAILY NEEDS	ONE POUND OF WALNUT KERNELS
Calories	2500-4500	3210
Proteins	60-70 gms.	78 gms.
Calcium	0.8 gms.	0.45 "
Phosphorus	0.52-1.2 "	1.70 "
Iron	.012 "	.010 "
Vitamin A	5000 I. U.	453 I. U.
Vitamin B_1	600 I. U.	517 I. U.

Another tip: You save money by insisting on "Diamonds" when you buy. They are crack-tested for quality—stamped with the "Diamond" brand only if they pass rigid tests for full shells, and plump, fresh kernels. Get more perfect kernels per pound—always buy "Diamonds"!



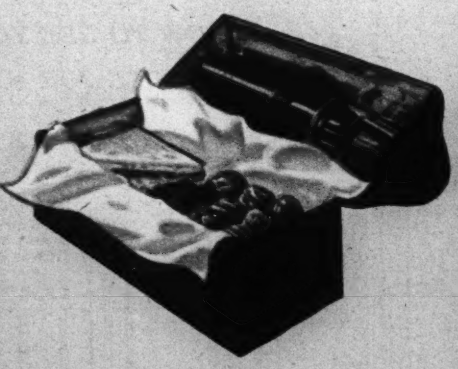
FOR MORE VARIETY, MORE NOURISHMENT, ADD WALNUTS

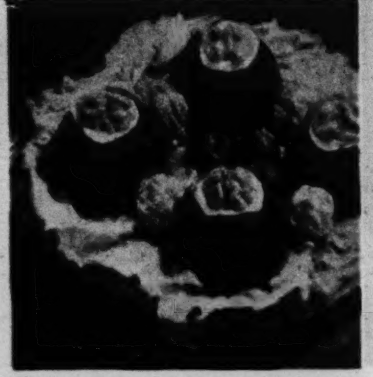
Add walnuts to main course dishes

Here's how these tasty kernels stretch meat in your menu! Use fresh-ground or leftover meat; shape it around a center stuffing of walnuts and moistened bread crumbs, and bake in medium oven. Plenty of protein, with walnuts in the makings! Add walnuts to spaghetti or vegetable casseroles, too—they supply the protein and vitamins these dishes need! And when you're up against it for something new to serve—add walnuts to old stand-bys. They'll taste grand!

Add walnuts to lunch boxes

Give all the war-workers in your family—and kids at school—extra energy with walnuts. Delicious variety, too! Mix cream cheese with chopped walnuts for dark breads. Blend chopped walnuts, raisins or other dried fruits, and mayonnaise for a different spread. Or make your sandwiches with walnut bread. And be sure to tuck in a handful of walnuts for dessert.





Add walnuts to salads, fruit cups

Amazing, the way walnuts win praise for your salads. These cinnamon apples, stuffed with cottage cheese and chopped "Diamonds," are easy. Waldorf Salad, with lots of walnuts, is always a favorite. Walnuts are just as good in gelatin salads, or to give your fruit cocktails new zest. But for best results, always use "Diamonds"! They are guaranteed top-quality, the pick of the California crop. Keep a big bowl of them handy, to use often.

Add walnuts to cakes and desserts

Here's a simple marble spice cake, thinly iced. But see how good it looks, with walnut halves on top—and how luscious it tastes, with chopped walnuts in the batter! Then try walnuts in almost any cake recipe you know, for new flavor. In cookies, too—and you'll love the crunchy crispness they give hot cakes, waffles and coffee cake! They're easy to use, cost no points—and what fun it is to serve something everybody likes!

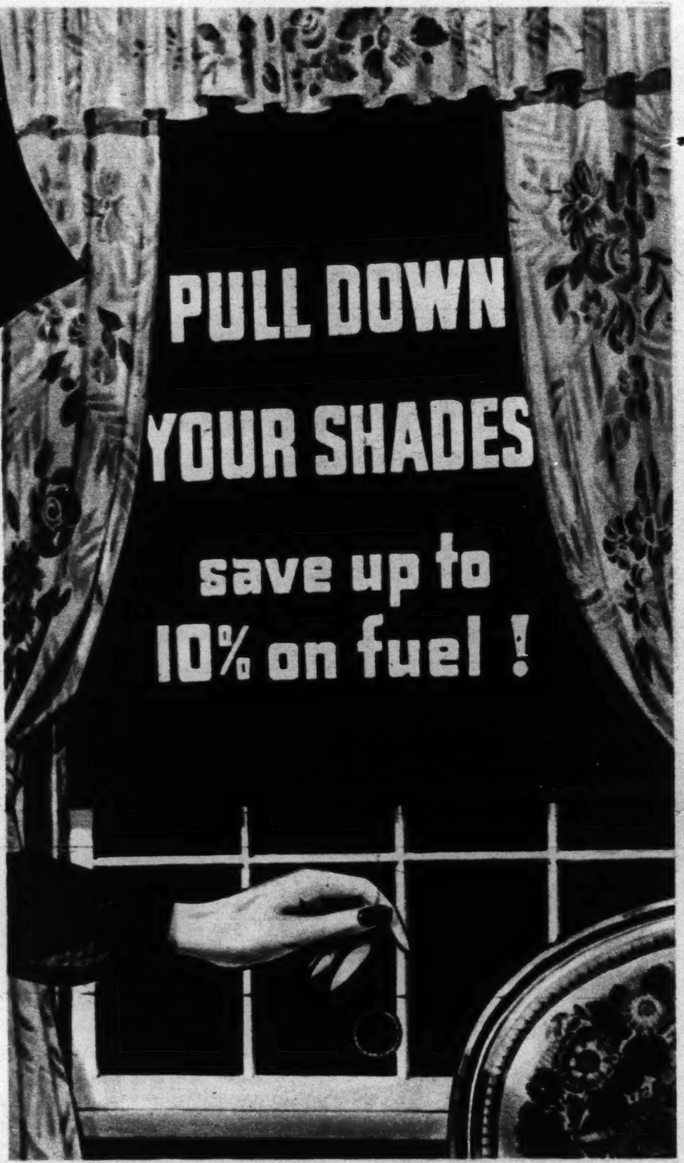
This simple act will help you have a warmer home this winter!



30% of all heat loss is through window panes!

By pulling down your cloth window shades you create an insulating dead air space between the shade and the pane. Tests made by the Armour Research Foundation show that proper use of your shades can reduce heat loss through windows by as much as one-third. As a result, you can save up to 10% on fuel and have a much warmer home. The shades are at your windows. Begin now to put them to this thrifty and patriotic use.

OTHER HELPFUL HEAT-SAVING IDEAS

Keep heating plant clean and in good repair. See that insulation is complete on steam and hot water lines. Put up storm sash and storm doors. Use weather stripping and caulking around windows and doors. Insulate roof and attic. Close doors quickly when entering or leaving the house. Put rug against bedroom doors during night. When ventilating rooms, turn off heat and close doors to keep cold air out of other parts of the house. Reduce temperature at night and when you're away from home.

2. "Proposal accepted!" Friends give her a swimming pool engagement shower à la Hollywood. Pretty Joan defies even the rays of California sunshine to dry or coarsen her delicate skin; keeps it meltingly soft and smooth à la Woodbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Price, Jr.—snapped on the Big Day

Story of a Woodbury Deb's Romance

Boy meets girl and falls—under the spell of her angel-smooth complexion, kept kissable by pampering Woodbury Facial Soap care . . . The record in pictures of the romance of lovely Joan Newcomb and Guy Price, Jr., both of California.

3. The Newlyweds work together. Guy "educates" Joan on the intricacies of Planned Housing. Barred from active service because of a college athletic injury, Guy is making a study of this important post-war problem.

4. A double-barreled Victory Gardener—patriotic Joan adds to the food supply; sells her crop for war relief. Says Joan, "Gardening is dirty work, but my skin stays clear and bright with Woodbury. It's a real skin soap."

5. "He loves me with that fresh, natural look my Facial Cocktail gives. So I pat Woodbury lather into my skin till it tingles," says Joan, "then rinse twice—hot and cold." Put your man in a marrying mood! Use Woodbury Soap—with the costly ingredient for extra mildness.

CHOCOLATE IS A FIGHTING FOOD FOR THE Home Guard TOO!

BECAUSE so much chocolate is going to our armed forces as Emergency Rations, and the Nation's supply of cocoa beans is limited, we suggest reserving the restricted home supplies for the growing children. Nestle's EverReady Cocoa is an excellent source of energy for youngsters. They love its rich chocolatey flavor. And they like a warming drink for breakfast as much as grownups do. Hot Nestle's starts the day the happy way.

Whenever your dealer is able to supply it, give that "home guard" unit at your house "fighting food" in the form of Hot Nestle's. It is ready to serve—the milk and sugar are already in it. Put three teaspoonfuls in a cup, add hot water and stir. Costs no more per cup than ordinary cocoa.

When Your Grocer Can't Supply You...

Remember—We're doing our best to distribute fairly the limited supply of Nestle's Chocolate and Ever-Ready Cocoa. But there will be times when your dealer will be without a supply. When that happens just try to remember it's not his fault. We know you will agree that our fighting forces come first.

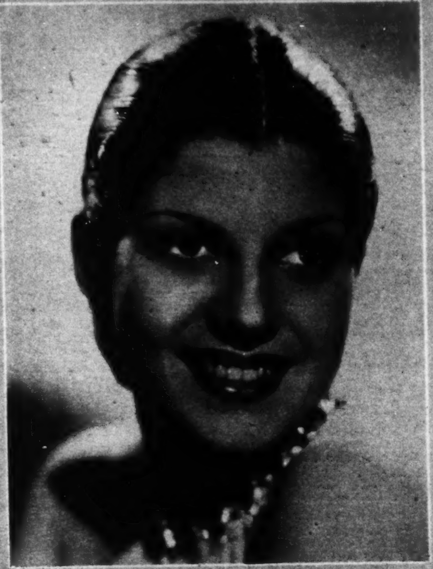
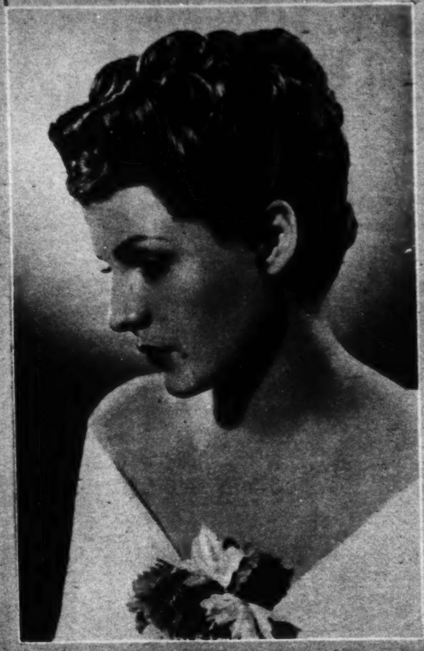
ALTERATIONS

HOLLYWOOD STARS CHANGE WITH THE YEARS
. . . III: RITA HAYWORTH.



RITA CANSINO, whom the movie world knows as Hayworth, was every inch a Latin when she broke into films in 1935. She is the dancing daughter of a dancing father, Eduardo Cansino, and therefore fourth generation star of a noted Spanish dancing family.



IN 1939, when Rita emerged as a Hollywood personality, studio makeup men tried to cast her in this classic mold. This obviously was ill-advised.

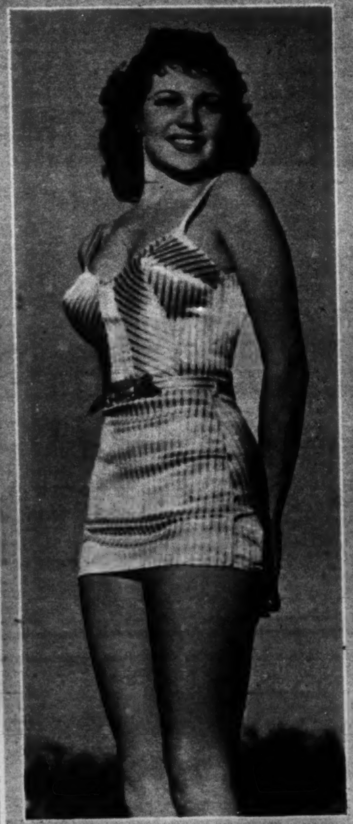
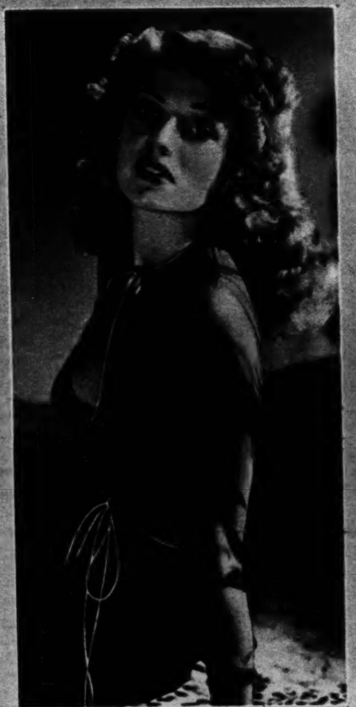
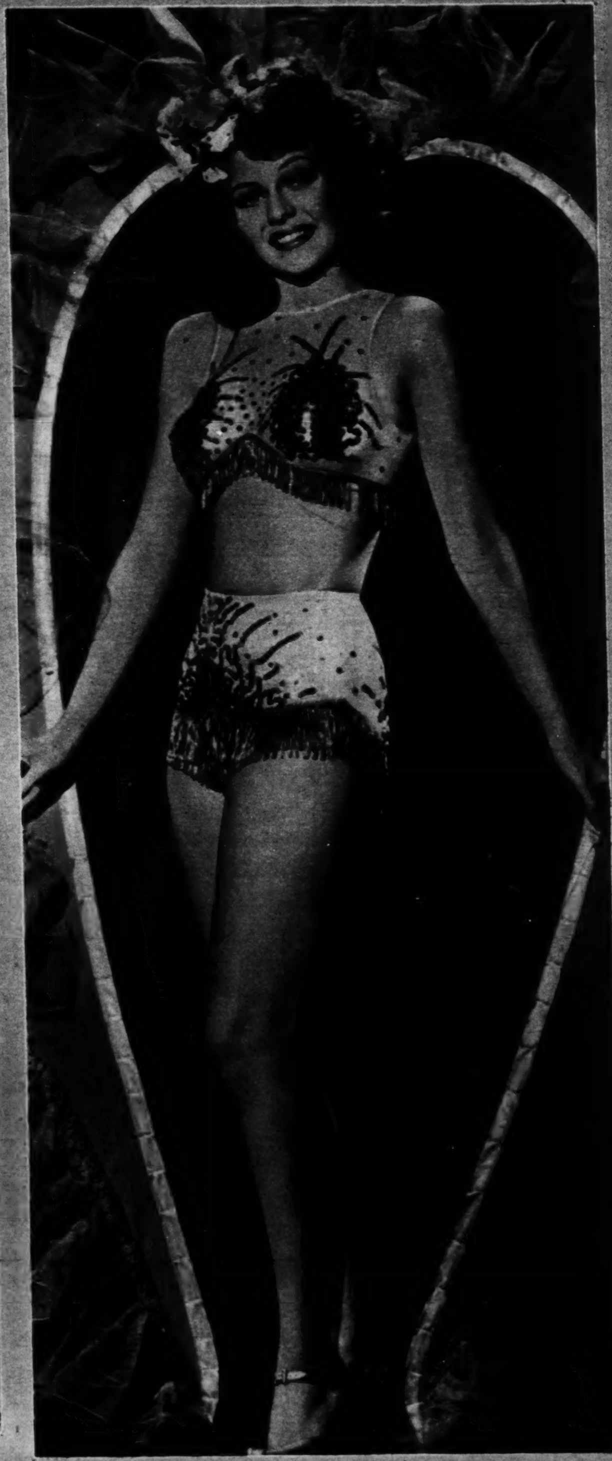
STILL IN 1940, Miss Hayworth parted her hair at the right, and this seemingly trivial operation effected a major transformation: At once she became the Rita of appealing feminine loveliness.



IN SIX MONTHS OF 1941, which found her co-starring with Fred Astaire, Rita altered her hair-do thrice, and each coiffure seemingly was more becoming than the last. This was one of the three phases.



NINETEEN FORTY-TWO, brought further transient changes, mostly the work of the hair dresser, designed to avoid monotony.



AND IN 1943, the Rita still frequently experiments with new coiffures, her facial mold remains unchanged; she now is well aware that her distinctive appeal is in her features, notably her warm, sensuous mouth.

ROSEMARIE HEAVEY has endearing Southern charm . . . a halo of golden brown hair . . . a complexion exquisitely soft and smooth. "I just trust my face to Pond's Cold Cream," she says.

She's Engaged!

SHE'S LOVELY ! SHE USES POND'S !

ADORABLE ROSEMARIE HEAVEY'S ENGAGEMENT TO PVT. LEE E. DALY, JR., unites two Baltimore families dating back to colonial times.

LIKE so many of her friends, Rosemarie is a war worker now—training with American Airlines in Washington to fit her for any job around the airport that a girl can do. "I've never worked harder, but I love it," she says.

"And am I grateful for my Pond's Cold Cream when I come off my shift at 8:00 A.M. It's wonderfully refreshing to smooth that nice cool cream over my tired, grimy face. It leaves my skin with such a clean, soft feeling."

She beauty creams her face like this:

She smooths on Pond's snowy Cold Cream, then briskly pats it over her face and throat to soften and release dirt and make-up—then tissues off well.

She "rinses" with a second Pond's creaming to help get her face extra clean and extra soft—swirling her cream-coated fingers around in little spirals—over her forehead, cheeks, nose, mouth. Tissues off again.

Do this yourself—every night, every morning and for daytime clean-ups. Watch your skin respond—feel softer, look sweeter.

It's no accident lovely engaged girls like Rosemarie, beautiful society women like Mrs. Victor du Pont III and Britain's Lady Doverdale prefer Pond's. Buy your jar today.

OFFICIAL WAR MESSAGE . . . In many areas women are urgently needed to fill men's places—in stores, offices, restaurants, utilities, laundries, community services. Check Help Wanted ads—then get advice from local U. S. Employment Service about jobs you can fill.

LEARNING TO BE A HANGAR HELPER—Rosemarie clears baggage being loaded on a plane. She will soon be ready to take over a man's job at one of the big airfields.

The TEENIE WEENIES

TEENIE WEENIE SOLDIER

TO ARMS

A BIRD flew into the Teenie Weenie village one morning and told the little people that she had seen an ear of corn lying beside a road. It was good news to the Teenie Weenies for they had not been able to get much corn and that is a very necessary food to keep them thru the winter.

"You'd better get it quick," the bird said, "or the mice and squirrels will take it."

The ear of corn lay at quite a distance from the Teenie Weenie village and the General decided that it would be quicker and much easier to hire Nick the squirrel to haul the corn home. Nick was very busy just then getting in his winter's supply of nuts and he told the General that he could not possibly help them for several days.

"Well, there's nothing to do but put a guard over the corn until Nick is ready to haul it for us," said the General. "If we don't watch it there won't be a grain left."

The General called out the Teenie Weenie army and ordered it to keep guard over the corn until Nick was free. The little men put on their uniforms, shouldered their tiny guns and marched off to the corn. They kept watch during the days and all thru the nights. Every morning and evening the guard was changed so the little soldiers could get some rest. The Cook and the Chinaman brought acorn baskets of food to the soldiers and the little men kept one of the Cook's aluminum kettles constantly filled with hot sassafras tea for the weather was very chilly.

The strange mice and squirrels kept at a safe distance when they saw the Teenie Weenie soldiers constantly marching around the ear of corn and, at the end of four days when Nick came to help the Teenie Weenies haul the corn home, not a single grain was missing. One mouse did try to grab a few grains but the Dunce promptly jabbed it in the tail with his bayonet and that was the only trouble the army had. However, if the army had not been on guard the Teenie Weenies would have lost the corn.

It was mighty hard work to shell the big ear of corn but the Teenie Weenies loosened the grains with Teenie Weenie picks and axes and slowly removed every single grain from the big cob. The grains were then loaded into a sled which the Teenie Weenies had made out of the top of a small paper box. Nick was a very strong squirrel and it was mighty easy for him to pull the sled loaded with corn. He made several trips and a couple of Teenie Weenie soldiers always marched along to guard the precious corn from mice and birds.

The General gave Nick a sled full of the corn for his work. The rest was carefully stored in the Teenie Weenie food cellar. The little people had enough corn to last them thruout the winter and a goodly supply to help feed the hungry birds during the winter when the ground was covered with snow.

IT'S OLD STUFF TO ME... WHY SHINOLA PROTECTS!

SHINE
A SHINE IS THE SIGN OF A HEALTHY SHOE
Shiny

Like the OIL in a duck's feathers, the oily waxes in SHINOLA provide "protection" for your shoes!

● When the natural oils in leather are absorbed by water, dust, and grime, shoes become stiff and dry... lose their flexibility. It is the oil in leather that helps keep shoes soft and new-looking longer.

That's where Shinola comes in. Because Shinola itself is a scientific combination of oily waxes, its use is a life-prolonging "treatment" for leather. It helps to hold in and replenish the natural oils. Shinola (liquid, paste, or cream) produces a thin, pliable, protective film of oily waxes. This film, or shine, helps repel water, dust, and grime.

The time to start caring for your shoes is when they're new. Keep them new-looking longer with Shinola. Remember: a shine is the sign of a healthy shoe!

Wartime places heavy demands upon our supplies, so if your dealer is out of a particular shade, please be patient.

SCIENCE TELLS WHY:

HE FLOATS
HE SINKS

The natural oils in his feathers throw off water ...and he floats. When these oils are removed, his feathers absorb water...and he sinks.

IT ISN'T THAT I'M SO TIRED... IT'S JUST THAT THESE SHOES HAVE STIFFENED UP SO
YOU PROBABLY PUT TOO MUCH DRESSING ON THEM
WELL, I HAVE TO COVER UP THE DIRT
WHY NOT REMOVE THE DIRT WITH SHINOLA WHITE?
SHINOLA CLEANS AS IT WHITENS. YOU JUST RUB IT ON BRISKLY... LET DRY, AND BRUSH OFF THE EXCESS. IT'S AS EASY AS PIE... AND YOUR SHOES STAY SOFT AND FLEXIBLE LONGER WITH SHINOLA

CITY'S SIGHTLESS DO BIG WAR JOB

THANKS TO GOD TO RISE FROM MANY ALTARS

Plan Union Services on North Side.

Thanksgiving, thruout north side churches, will be a day of solemn thanks to God. In family pews empty of many sons, fathers, husbands and daughters, called into service, those at home will offer prayers for their safekeeping. Congregations, going home to shorter Thanksgiving dinner menus than in other years, will give thanks for America with its freedom and means to celebrate the day.

"America Thanks God" will be the sermon subject of the Rev. John Magill of Lake View Presbyterian church as speaker at a union Thanksgiving service sponsored by the Lake View Council for Religious Action, to be held at 11 a. m. Thursday at the Anshe Emet synagogue. This will be the fourth annual joint service of 10 community churches.

Participating in the service will be the Anshe Emet congregation, the Broadway Methodist church, the Diversey Parkway Evangelical church, Emanuel congregation, Immortality Research society, the Lake View Presbyterian church, Temple Sholem congregation, Unity church, Wellington Avenue Congregational church, and Wesley Methodist church. Music will be furnished by the Anshe Emet choir.

Drive for New Building.

At the North Shore Baptist church, 5244 Lakewood avenue, the Thanksgiving service will be held at 11 a. m. today. This year's Thanksgiving will have a special meaning, said Dr. Weldon M. Wilson, pastor, in that members of the congregation today expect to complete subscriptions for the first $100,000 toward $500,000 to build a new church as soon as peace comes. In the campaign which began three weeks ago, $92,237 has been subscribed.

C. J. Howell, finance chairman of the drive, said the additional $7,000 will be pledged at this morning's service. Plans for the new church include an auditorium seating 1,200, and an educational and recreational plant to house 12 departments and provide accommodations for 1,800. With an enrollment of more than 1,000 in its Sunday school, the North Shore church has one of the largest groups in the city.

Dr. Wilson's sermon subject will be "Thanksgiving in War Time." The church quartet, under direction of Robert Macdonald, will sing. Miss Irma Cooper, a former winner of the Chicago Music Festival, will be soloist.

Service for Swedish Churches.

Seven north side Swedish churches will hold a union Thanksgiving service at 10:30 a. m. Thursday at the Ravenswood Mission Covenant church, 4900 North Damen avenue. Other churches participating in this service will be Ravenswood Immanuel Baptist, Bethany Methodist, Summerdale Evangelical Free church, Edgewater Mission Covenant, Edgewater Baptist and the 10th corps of the Salvation Army.

The Rev. Frank Anderson, pastor of the Summerdale church, will give the sermon. A quartet from the Ravenswood congregation will sing several selections.

The Ravenswood church also will hold a special service at 8 o'clock Wednesday night.

Several Thanksgiving numbers will be sung by the choir, under direction of Frank Dietz. The Rev. C. Leslie Strand will speak on "Thankfulness to God." All men and women from the congregation in service were sent Thanksgiving boxes containing baked goods, candies, and religious literature.

Light Candles for Service Men.

A Thanksgiving service will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday at St. Mark's Lutheran church, 6045 North Rockwell street. A candle will be lighted for each person from the congregation in service. Several army and navy men, home for Thanksgiving, will light the candles. Music will be furnished by the Senior and the Young People's choirs.

At a social hour, following the service, personal messages will be sent all service men and women from the church. Parents and wives will be special guests. Refreshments will be served by the service men's committee which consists of Mrs. E. E. Anderson, Mrs. Earl Swanson, and Mrs. Harry Shaw. The Rev. Royal E. Lesher is pastor of the church.

AMATEUR MAGIC GROUP MEETING ON NORTH SIDE

Purpose of the organization is to teach and interest its members in the performance of magic. It has several well known Chicago magicians on its roll call. Wives of recognized magicians included in its membership are Mrs. Werner Dornfield, Mrs. Laurie Ireland, and Mrs. Joseph Irving.

An impromptu magic show will be staged after the business session.

BY PEARL RUBINS.

That blind persons, making war goods to fit strict specifications, can be on the job with a regularity that shames the record of many war plants employing nonhandicapped person, was recognized recently when the city's first United States maritime commission gold star was awarded the Illinois Industries for the Blind.

In the last six months since the maritime "M" pennant, the primary award, was presented to the organization for excellence in producing over two million sheets and pillow cases for the nation's merchant fleet, the blind and handicapped employes have established an attendance record which is within one per cent of perfect. A survey of absenteeism thruout the country made by the bureau of labor statistics showed a percentage loss of 6.3 per cent.

Perform Whole Job.

In a four story building at 1310 Newberry avenue, blind and partially blind persons perform all the operations that change bolts of material into perfectly shaped and sewed sheets and pillow cases, and then fold them, pack them, and load the finished containers onto trucks. All of the partially blind employes have less than 2/200 vision as compared to 20/20, normal vision. Handicapped persons whose sight has not been impaired inspect the finished products.

For many employes, adults who have been blind since birth, their present jobs are the first that they have been able to obtain and their eagerness to work is largely responsible for their unusual attendance record. As one of them, John Falkenberg, 4923 Medill avenue, explained: "We appreciate work when we can get it; we've had plenty of times when we just couldn't get any." Falkenberg, a totally blind graduate of the School for the Blind, Jacksonville, Ill., turns out hemmed sheets on an average of at least 20 dozen a day.

Bested Her Fears.

One of the original trainees, Katherine Bara, 3728 South Honore street, who also is totally blind, forced herself to overcome the obstacle common to many, that of thinking she couldn't possibly operate the intricate machines. "A friend of mine who could see came up here, took one look at the sewing machine they were going to teach me to use, and nearly scared me away by telling me, 'Katherine, that machine will cut your fingers to bits,' but I knew that others could do it, and I convinced myself I could, too."

Miss Bara, now one of the most proficient of the operators who hem sheets, substituting touch for sight, has perfected a method of sewing which enables the operators to keep the ends of the sheets even. Her brother, Stanley, who also is sightless, works in another department of the plant turning the finished pillow cases right side out. Working at top speed, he handles an average of 450 cases a day.

Spritely boasting that he can "run all over the city without a bit of trouble now," Arnold Hansen, 5204 Emerald avenue, who suddenly went blind four years ago at the age of 53, told how the men with whom he works, tearing the material into manageable sizes, worked thru their lunch hours and put in a series of 10 hour days to finish part of the maritime job on time.

Praise Police, Carmen.

Eager as the totally blind employes are to work, they could not fulfill their desire without the thoughtfulness of policemen, street car conductors and kind pedestrians, Louise McChesney, who travels from 4719 Kenwood avenue via several street cars every day, pointed out. "Jim McEnery, Ed Kelly, and Joe Fleming, policemen from the Maxwell street station, always see that we get to the safety island and across the street," she added. She and her roommate, Florence Mahan, must cross the heavily traveled intersection at Roosevelt road and Halsted street, to reach the plant. "Of course, bad weather interferes, the curbs get covered with snow and landmarks are obliterated, but it doesn't interfere to the extent that we can't come to work," Miss Mahan commented.

Altho the machines used by the blind have numerous special parts to give them extra guidance, improvements are continuously being made and must be tested before they can be used to speed up production. Recently, when the shaky job of testing a new machine, equipped with an electric eye and designed to automatically stop the machine the instant the operator's finger nears the moving needle, came up, Miss Mahan, an operator who side seams pillows, volunteered for the extra job.

Wants Service Job.

Not satisfied with having a home front at the plant, Louis Stromberg, 3036 North Halsted street, a World War I. seaman who made seven trips across the Atlantic on the

RALLY DESIGNED TO MEET QUOTA IN GREASE DRIVE

Music, Drama Scheduled on OCD Program.

Housewives are lagging in the campaign to save waste fats and greases from their kitchens to aid the manufacture of ammunition. As a result of the war production board's recent statement that 144,000,000 pounds of greases are now needed to make up the 1943 deficit required for ammunition manufacturing, OCD division 6, under the direction of Lee Ross, will hold a huge rally at 8 p. m. Tuesday at Lake View High school to help stimulate the fat conservation program.

"If each of the 200,000 families residing in division 6 would save one-fourth of an ounce of kitchen fats per day, it would amount to a total of 100,000 pounds per month, as against 55,000 to 60,000 pounds now being collected—the highest poundage for any division in the Chicago area," said Grover C. Simpson, division conservation chairman.

Meat Dealers Coöperating.

"This is a little less than a tablespoonful per day and is asking very little of the housewives," Simpson added. "But a small amount of grease saved consistently each day will go a long way toward making up the existing deficit."

Meat market owners are coöperating in the campaign, he said, by accepting these kitchen fats at their markets and paying established prices for them. From the markets, fats are immediately sent to the renderers and converted into glycerine for the manufacture of explosives.

In each of the 2,078 blocks of division 6 is a conservation warden to contact housewives and solicit their coöperation in the grease campaign, Simpson added. The conservation chairman directs activities of these wardens under supervision of the community commander.

Playlet to Be Staged.

Program for the conservation rally will include music and other entertainment climaxed by a dramatic playet entitled "Any One's Kitchen" written by Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, conservation chairman for the Chicago area. The sketch will tell the story of Molly Pitcher, heroine of the Revolutionary war.

Another feature of the program will be the "Grandmother's Chorus," an organization composed of grandmothers ranging in age from 40 to 79. The group represents 11 nationalities. Collectively, these grandmothers have 40 sons and 43 grandsons in service. Mrs. Kate Steffington, 1630 West Columbia avenue, is director of the group.

Symphony Band on Program.

The symphony band of West Lake View, under direction of Mrs. James Maloney, 3748 North Magnolia avenue, will appear on the program.

The "Pistol Packin' Mammas," a group of girls 10 to 14 years old from Hamlin park, will present a dance number. "Rudy's Midget Band," will also participate. This later group is a three-time winner on a local amateur radio program.

Mayor Kelly, Mrs. Walter Kelly and a representative of the Red Cross have been invited as guest speakers.

Women at War

Lt. Barbara Rode, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Rode of Evanston, will leave shortly for her new assignment, which is administrative work in Washington, D. C. At present she is home on sick leave. Lt. Rode was graduated from Principia college, Elsah, Ill. She had three years of postgraduate study at the University of Florence, Italy, and one year at Columbia university, New York. While in recruiting work here, she swore in her sister, Nancy, who will soon receive her WAC commission at officer candidate school, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Barbara Rode.

Two north siders were recently presented with the WAC service ribbon by the commanding officer of the WAC detachment at Boca Raton field, Fla., an army air force technical training command school. They were Pvt. Bernice R. Heinz, 1902 Irving Park road, and Pvt. Bernice Hojnacka, 1646 Le Moyne street.

Among SPAR officers commissioned recently at the Coast Guard academy, New London, Conn., was Ensign Milnore Olivia Hoel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Hoel of Evanston. CHRISTMAS SEAL LEADERS NAMED FOR NORTH AREA

Anti-Tuberculosis Drive Opening.

Five north shore suburbanites have been appointed community chairmen for the 37th annual Christmas seal drive which begins tomorrow. Chairmen are: Mrs. C. O. Skinrood, 2720 Lincoln street; Evanston; Dr. H. A. Orvis, 510 Green Bay road, Winnetka, chairman for Glencoe, Northfield, Kenilworth, Wilmette, and Winnetka; Mrs. Arnold Lindeman, 8535 Callie avenue, Morton Grove; Mrs. Charles E. Emery, 14 Timber Lake, Northbrook; Mrs. W. C. Griffin, 5312 Mulford street, Skokie, and Mrs. James Wilson, 1425 Glenview road, Glenview.

"With our nation soon to enter its third year of war, the battle against tuberculosis enters its most critical stage, since medical history shows that the disease tends to rise and spread more rapidly, among more persons, the longer conflict continues.

"Each seal purchased and used on Christmas packages, cards, and mail will not only spread Yuletide cheer, but will also aid in the effort to keep this disease under control," Mrs. Theodore Sachs, executive director of the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County, said in appointing the chairmen.

The annual sale makes possible a year around educational, preventative, and clinical battle against tuberculosis. Funds from the sale are used to carry on tuberculosis case-finding by means of tuberculin testing and X-ray; furnish nurses who aid families and communities; maintain an average of 21 public health clinics each month thruout Cook county; finance an educational program, including informative literature, motion pictures, and lectures for the benefit of schools, industrial groups, and civic organizations, and makes possible a rehabilitation program to place ex-tuberculosis patients in useful jobs where they can support their families and aid the war effort.

This year, for the first time, England, Canada, Brazil, and Mexico will also use the Christmas seal, which will go on sale here and thru the nation in an effort to secure funds for their campaigns against the disease.

The 1943 seal, taken from a painting by Andre Dugo, will be sold singly for a penny or in dollar sheets.

EVANSTON HELPS PRESBYTERIANS MARK 75TH YEAR

Other Groups Join in Special Services.

Dr. E. W. Luccock.

In July, 1866, a church, composed chiefly of Congregationalists and Presbyterians, was organized on a nondenominational basis in Evanston. The Rev. James B. Duncan of the Presbyterian church of Canada was called as pastor of what was then called, simply, the Lake Avenue church.

Under supervision of Dr. E. W. Patterson of the Second Presbyterian church of Chicago, the First Presbyterian church of Evanston was organized in July, 1868 with 35 of its 38 charter members gathered from the congregation of the Lake Avenue church. In November of the same year the Rev. George Clement Noyes, D. D., of La Porte, Ind., was installed as first pastor of the new Presbyterian church.

Church Burned Twice.

Since then, the church has weathered 75 eventful years. Two of its buildings were destroyed by fire, one in 1875 and another in 1894. Each time as soon as the charred ruins were cleared away, the congregation set briskly to work on a new and more costly structure. The present church was completed in 1895 at a cost of $70,000.

This month the church is formally celebrating its 75th anniversary. The last three of four celebrations commemorating its founding will be held during the week. First anniversary program was held last week on the occasion of a visit by Dr. Henry Sloan Coffin, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States. This meeting was combined with the semi-annual meeting of the church.

Second Service Today.

The second celebration, a worship service with a sermon entitled "The Rock from Which We Were Hewn" by Dr. Emory W. Luccock, present pastor of the church, will be held today. The choir will sing "Behold Now, Praise the Lord" by Titcomb and "O Praise Ye God" by Tschaikowsky. Miss Elaine Dahlgren will sing the offertory solo, "A Song of Thanksgiving."

A special Thanksgiving day service in which the five central churches will unite at 11 a. m. Thursday is scheduled as the third anniversary celebration of the Presbyterian church. Other churches participating include the First Baptist, First Congregational, First Methodist, and Unitarian. Ministers of the five churches will share in the service.

Former Pastor to Speak.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Paul Austin Wolfe, D. D., LL. D., pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York City, and former pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Music will be supplied by the Chancel choir and quartet of the church.

The fourth anniversary celebration will take place at 8 p. m. Friday in the Evanston Public library. This program will be combined with the monthly meeting of the Evanston Historical society.

An address on the history of the local church will be given by Dr. Issac Joslyn Cox, official historian of the church and professor emeritus of history at Northwestern university. Dr. Cox is now visiting professor of history at Louisiana State university.

The Man with the Hansom behind...

. . . has been fiddling around in the cabby business for fifty years. He's had his ears glued to the confabs that have been going on beneath his hansom perch from the pinkish days of the "Mauve" decade right up to the doozandazzies of present-day bureaucracy. But he's kept his mouth shut tighter'n a clam for five decades.

Right now, in New York, we're using a crow-bar on this guy's lips. If we are successful in removing the pad-lock from those aged gateways to a cavalcade of overheard tete-a-tetes we may have something in the way of a bit of something all right to offer to the dear readers of this paper. We'll know in a few days. You'll know next Sunday.

ADVISES HEATING PLANT CHECK-UP FOR FUEL SAVING

Experts Say Many Found in Poor Condition.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If we can believe what the experts tell us, it appears that there are few home heating plants that are in really good condition; plants that could not be conditioned to save more fuel. And this reconditioning could be done, in most cases, at only a small cost and a little attention.

Smoke inspectors from different parts of the country who were asked by a large coal trade journal to indicate how substantial economies in fuel consumption might be effected had quite a few vigorous comments to make.

60% Poor Condition.

Only 10 to 15 per cent of heating plants, exclusive of big industrial and power plants, are in good condition; 25 per cent are fair; 60 per cent or more are poor, according to Arthur E. Hutchinson of Cleveland, president of the Smoke Prevention association.

In brief, some 60 per cent of the nation's domestic heating plants are wasting fuel because of faulty operation, dirty heating surfaces, or because they are in need of minor repairs or adjustments. Other inspectors claim that the majority of heating plants in some cities are wasting fuel for the simple reason that they are in need of cleaning.

Common defects in home heating plants are warped ash pits and firing doors, water columns dirty with try cocks stuck tight, flue pipes sagging or pulled apart and in need of sealing where they entered the chimney, burned grates, and poor draft with no dampers or inefficient dampers.

Start with Heating Plant.

The plumbing and heating industries bureau calls attention to all this by way of indicating how substantial economies in fuel consumption can be effected. And if you want to coöperate for fuel conservation, start with the heating plant first. Call in an experienced heating man for first aid diagnosis and help.

If you have a boiler in your basement, heating and piping contractors carry boiler cleaning compounds that can be used safely without danger to boiler sections which are made of critical materials and difficult to replace.

And from the fuel engineering division of Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati, O., comes this hint to practically all the 12 million warm air furnace owners in this country whose furnaces are equipped with a hand draft regulator, a device usually located on an upstairs baseboard and which opens and closes drafts on a furnace thru a system of chains.

Use of Regulator.

The uses of regulators are not always understood. When the regulator is in the "open" position it allows a maximum draft and combustion in furnace. When it is "closed" it will prevent smoke from rushing out when firing coal. When the regulator is in the "check" it will cut down draft and assure a minimum of combustion. Many who use regulators do not understand that they are capable of fine adjustments and that an even and steadier and more comfortable heat will result if the indicator is moved only a part of the way, either towards "open" or "check."

Appalachian Coals, Inc., is still giving advice without charge on any heating problem, no matter in what part of the country you live.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 22.

With the outdoor work in a rather dormant state, the war gardener should begin planning for next season. The enterprising gardener will realize the importance of early planning and getting in his orders for supplies and seeds. Persons who plan gardens but who do not have their own land should make plans immediately as they may be unable to obtain a suitable plot.

Tuesday, Nov. 23.

One should consider the entire yard as a whole and lay it out in a manner that enables one to enjoy it. If it is large enough, the rear can be planned to serve as the outdoor living room. Such a room should be adequately screened with low tree forms, tall and low shrubs and perennial flowering plants.

Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Much attention is being given to the plants capable of being grown in the home, and they do require attention at all times. One of the most important operations in house plant culture is watering.

Do not withhold water until the leaves wither for then it may be too late. If the surface has a dry crumbly feel it probably is in need of water.

Thursday, Nov. 25.

Keep all dead or damaged leaves removed from indoor plants for if allowed to remain on the plant or lie on the soil in the pot they may form breeding spots for insect or disease. If any insects are seen begin spraying at once. Remember to spray with a contact spray to kill sucking insects and a stomach poison against attacks of eating worms.

Friday, Nov. 26.

Lay in a supply of tools for next season for they may not be available. Used tools should be given the best of care by washing or cleaning thoroly, painting the wooden parts or those parts that are exposed to the elements. Store in a dry place over winter. Garden tools make excellent Christmas gifts.

Saturday, Nov. 27.

All vegetation needs applications of plant food and this is a good time to feed the trees. By feeding at this time, the plants will be able to utilize the food much earlier than by waiting until spring.

A healthy, vigorously growing tree is better able to withstand disease and insect attacks than a poorly grown, starved specimen. If the ground is frozen, however, it will be necessary to delay until spring, but by all means plan to care for the trees by feeding.

If you are growing the African violet, try placing the pot in a larger pot in which moss has been placed. The moss will keep moist, which in turn will keep the soil of the violet in good condition. Too much water applied directly to the soil may cause decay of the plant.

Mrs. Charles C. Rutson, 7708 South Shore drive, is vice president of the Illinois Citizens' Animal Welfare league, and is in charge of the league's animal refuge at 6224 Wabash avenue, where stray dogs are held for adoption. The league also accepts for adoption animals whose owners are no longer able to care for them. With Mrs. Rutson is Creda, one of the first strays housed at the refuge, who has become the office mascot.

Oliver Stewart, who lives at the shelter, gives the animals their daily noon meal of horse meat mixed with dog biscuit. The animal's cages were built by members of the league at the time the refuge was opened in January, 1942. Stewart also washes the animal cages each day while the dogs are turned into a 50 by 150 foot exercise ground.

ILLINOIS CITIZENS' ANIMAL WELFARE LEAGUE

Arthur H. Dreesbach, 2152 Leland avenue, takes his year old collie, Rex, back to the refuge, from which he adopted the dog two months ago. Many dogs have come to the shelter lately from such homes.

ILLINOIS CITIZENS' ANIMAL WELFARE LEAGUE

Miss Mary Quinci, ambulance driver for the league, brings in a dog she picked up on an emergency call. The puppy had been stepped on by a horse, and after receiving first aid, slept fitfully in a cage at the refuge. The league once conducted weekly animal health clinics, but the veterinarian it employed was inducted into the army, and the league has been unable to replace him.

BLIND WORKERS WIN AWARD OF SHIPPINGBOARD

BY PEARL RUBINS.

That blind persons, making war goods to fit strict specifications, can be on the job with a regularity that shames the record of many war plants employing nonhandicapped person, was recognized recently when the city's first United States maritime commission gold star was awarded the Illinois Industries for the Blind.

In the last six months since the maritime "M" pennant, the primary award, was presented to the organization for excellence in producing over two million sheets and pillow cases for the nation's merchant fleet, the blind and handicapped employes have established an attendance record which is within one per cent of perfect. A survey of absenteeism thruout the country made by the bureau of labor statistics showed a percentage loss of 6.3 per cent.

Perform Whole Job.

In a four story building at 1310 Newberry avenue, blind and partially blind persons perform all the operations that change bolts of material into perfectly shaped and sewed sheets and pillow cases, and then fold them, pack them, and load the finished containers onto trucks. All of the partially blind employes have less than 2/200 vision as compared to 20/20, normal vision. Handicapped persons whose sight has not been impaired inspect the finished products.

For many employes, adults who have been blind since birth, their present jobs are the first that they have been able to obtain and their eagerness to work is largely responsible for their unusual attendance record. As one of them, John Falkenberg, 4923 Medill avenue, explained: "We appreciate work when we can get it; we've had plenty of times when we just couldn't get any." Falkenberg, a totally blind graduate of the School for the Blind, Jacksonville, Ill., turns out hemmed sheets on an average of at least 20 dozen a day.

Bested Her Fears.

One of the original trainees, Katherine Bara, 3728 South Honore street, who also is totally blind, forced herself to overcome the obstacle common to many, that of thinking she couldn't possibly operate the intricate machines. "A friend of mine who could see came up here, took one look at the sewing machine they were going to teach me to use, and nearly scared me away by telling me, 'Katherine, that machine will cut your fingers to bits,' but I knew that others could do it, and I convinced myself I could, too."

Miss Bara, now one of the most proficient of the operators who hem sheets, substituting touch for sight, has perfected a method of sewing which enables the operators to keep the ends of the sheets even. Her brother, Stanley, who also is sightless, works in another department of the plant turning the finished pillow cases right side out. Working at top speed, he handles an average of 450 cases a day.

Spritely boasting that he can "run all over the city without a bit of trouble now," Arnold Hansen, 5204 Emerald avenue, who suddenly went blind four years ago at the age of 53, told how the men with whom he works, tearing the material into manageable sizes, worked thru their lunch hours and put in a series of 10 hour days to finish part of the maritime job on time.

Praise Police, Carmen.

Eager as the totally blind employes are to work, they could not fulfill their desire without the thoughtfulness of policemen, street car conductors and kind pedestrians. Louise McChesney, who travels from 4719 Kenwood avenue via several street cars every day, pointed out, "Jim McEnery, Ed Kelly, and Joe Fleming, policemen from the Maxwell street station, always see that we get to the safety island and across the street," she added. She and her roommate, Florence Mahan, must cross the heavily traveled intersection at Roosevelt road and Halsted street, to reach the plant. "Of course, bad weather interferes, the curbs get covered with snow and landmarks are obliterated, but it doesn't interfere to the extent that we can't come to work," Miss Mahan commented.

Altho the machines used by the blind have numerous special parts to give them extra guidance, improvements are continuously being made and must be tested before they can be used to speed up production. Recently, when the shaky job of testing a new machine, equipped with an electric eye and designed to automatically stop the machine the instant the operator's finger nears the moving needle, came up, Miss Mahan, an operator who side seams pillows, volunteered for the extra job.

Wants Service Job.

Not satisfied with having a home front at the plant, Louis Stromberg, 3036 North Halsted street, a World War I. seaman who made seven trips across the Atlantic on the

troopship Arizonian, and who is now partially blind, has made several tries to get into the navy or army. "I have a lot of confidence in myself after working here packing and banding the cases, and I know I could do some wrok in the army or navy," he asserted.

"I never thought I would be able to work for the war effort and now that I'm here I wouldn't leave the place for the world," was the cheerful response of Rose Monzo, 1337 Fillmore street, an operator who cuts and finishes the bottoms of pillow cases. Once completely dependent on her family for support because she is sightless, she is now able to provide for her high school age twin brothers and younger sister.

BURN MORTGAGE TODAY AT UNITED BRETHREN RITES

Services Mark 39th Year of Grace Church.

Special homecoming and mortgage burning ceremonies today at Grace United Brethren church, 72d street and Greenwood avenue, will mark the church's 39th anniversary.

Bishop Fred L. Dennis of Dayton, O., representing the northwest district of the United Brethren denomination, which is comprised of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, will be the speaker at services at 11 a. m. Special music will be presented by the adult and junior choirs.

To Sketch Church History.

The mortgage will be burned at a ceremony this afternoon with Raymond L. Jones, 7537 Dorchester avenue, one of the original leaders in the movement to erect a new building in 1927, giving a brief history of the church.

The afternoon program also includes an organ recital by Mrs. Lee L. Walden, 7220 Ellis avenue, who was church organist for many years during the pastorate of her father, the late Rev. A. E. Wright. The a cappella chorus, which was organized recently, will sing.

Buffet Supper tonight.

A buffet supper will be served at 6 p. m. and Bishop Dennis will speak again at the evening service closing the anniversary observance. Mrs. N. I. Colf, 7030 Woodlawn avenue, is chairman of the supper, and Mrs. William J. Gilkinson, 851 East 73d street, is dining room chairman. Mrs. Roy E. Larson, 7309 Luella avenue, chairman of the November Loyalty committee, has charge of a special program to be presented tonight.

The church was organized as a mission in 1904 with the late Rev. Charles Doolittle as superintendent. In 1904 a building was erected, and in 1927 a new building was completed and the old structure converted into a gymnasium and conference room.

The late Rev. Mr. Wright was pastor for 24 years, beginning in September, 1905. The Rev. R. E. Webber was pastor from 1929 to 1932, and the Rev. George M. Meyers was pastor from 1932 to 1938. He was succeeded by the Rev. W. C. Hague, 7130 Dobson avenue, who still holds the pastorate.

ILLINOIS TECH ENROLLS 8,016 FOR NEW TERM

Dr. Charles W. Kepner, registrar of the Illinois Institute of Technology, has announced that 8,016 persons are enrolled for study at Illinois Tech in the winter term, now in its second week.

The enrollment figure represents an increase of more than 15 per cent, or 1,083 persons, over the last term, and is accounted for largely by increasing registration in regular college civilian day and evening classes and in war training, Dean Kepner said.

2,957 in College Classes.

Registration for regular college classes totals 2,957, including 694 navy V-12 students. Evening college classes have an enrollment of 1,004. The army has 484 men in the army specialized training program, but they do not attend regular classes as do the navy men.

The institute has 4,665 students in engineering, science, and management war training courses. These are short, intensive courses of study for which no college credit is allowed. Of the total figure in these courses, 849 are studying 40 hours a week while 3,816 are in evening war training courses.

Advance Semester Schedule.

The winter term which is now under way corresponds to what would normally be the spring semester that would begin in February, Dean Kepner said. The institute went on a round-the-calendar basis last July to facilitate the training of engineers and technicians for war work.

Woodlawn Cantata.

"The Song of Thanksgiving," a cantata by J. H. Maunder, will be presented by the Woodlawn Methodist church choir at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue.

CITIZENS' LEAGUE HAS WELFARE OF PETS AT HEART

First Aim Is to Relieve Animal Suffering.

BY DOROTHY COOK.

Finding homes for pets whose owners can no longer keep them, restoring lost pets to their owners, keeping stray animals from roaming the city's streets cold and hungry, and giving first aid to injured animals are only a few of the activities carried on by the Illinois Citizens' Animal Welfare league, whose office and animal refuge is located at 6224 Wabash avenue.

"Relieving suffering is the prime function of our organization," says Mrs. Charles Rutson, 7708 South Shore drive, a vice president of the league, who is in charge of the shelter.

Watch Lost Ads.

To carry out this function, the league operates two trucks for emergency service, to bring lost, stray, or injured animals to the refuge, where they are warmed, fed, and exercised. An attempt is made to find their owners or to find new homes for stray animals. The league keeps descriptions of all lost animals reported to its office, and each day checks advertisments for lost dogs in an effort to find the owners.

Stray dogs are offered for adoption for a $5 fee, of which $3 is refunded if the dog is returned within a 30 day trial period. In order to insure the dog a good home, members of the league check on homes in which their dogs are placed, and one of the adoption rules is that the woman of the household, on whom the greatest burden of care for the animal will rest, must select the dog. "If she likes him, we feel that the animal is assured a better home," Mrs. Rutson expiained. Each adopted dog is provided with a leash and collar bearing a tag with the league's telephone number, in case the animal strays.

Handles Many Dogs.

Seventy-five per cent of the league's traffic is with dogs, and in the time since the refuge was opened, in January, 1942, more than 1,000 dogs have been adopted from the organization. In its first month of operation, the league handled 47 animals. Last July 944 passed thru the refuge.

Dogs for whom no homes can be found in a reasonable time are "put to sleep" in a carbon monoxide chamber at the rear of the shelter.

"An attendant is on duty all the time the chamber is in operation," Mrs. Rutson relates, "in order to see that the animal suffers no longer than is absolutely necessary. Fifteen or 20 minutes in the chamber is sufficient, and the gas is cooled by passing thru a water tank in order to relieve unnecessary suffering."

Donations and Benefits.

Activities of the league are supported thru donations from its 500 members, headed by Miss Mildred Fitzhugh of Lake Forest, president, and thru benefit sales and parties held under the direction of Mrs. Charles Petkus, 2317 West Marquette road, a vice president of the organization. A rummage sale last month netted $300, and a benefit party is scheduled for Nov. 30.

The league employs three persons: a superintendent, Allan Glish, formerly with the Wisconsin State Humane society; an ambulance driver, Miss Mary Quinci, who lives at the Jane Addams homes, Roosevelt road and Racine avenue, and caretaker, Oliver Stewart, who is on the premises 24 hours a day, thus assuring immediate action on any emergency which might arise.

Daily office hours of the league are kept by members who donate one day a week to the activity. Among those who work at the refuge and are available for emergency calls are Mrs. Rutson, Mrs. Petkus, Mrs. Victor Neville, 270 Church street, Elmhurst; Mrs. Gunnar Lidell, 8114 Cottage Grove avenue, and Mrs. Francis R. Perry, 7815 Champlain avenue.

In addition to picking up strays reported by telephone calls, the league maintains a regular pick-up service at Harvey, Blue Island, Midlothian, Markham, Robbins, Palos, and Palos Park, answering calls which the police of those districts and of District No. 2 of the sheriff's police have received.

OBSERVE 60TH YEAR OF LANSING CHURCH TODAY

St. John's Lutherans to Burn Mortgage.

The 60th anniversary of St. John's Lutheran church in Lansing will be observed at special services at the church today.

Rev. H. H. Harthun.

The Rev. Herbert H. A. Harthun, pastor, will deliver the anniversary sermon at 11 a. m. and the Rev. W. F. Kruse of Concordia Teachers college at River Forest will speak at a service at 4 p. m. commemorating the founding of the parish school.

This afternoon's service will be held on the church grounds and will include the burning of a mortgage on the church property. The indebtedness was reduced thru a special drive started in August by William Erfert, Ralph Green, Carl Hoge, Wilfred Johnson, and John Reich.

Founded with Oak Glen.

When it was founded 60 years ago St. John's church and Trinity church of Oak Glen functioned as one parish, and was first served by the pastors of St. Paul's church in Riverdale, the Rev. J. J. Rauschert and the Rev. C. M. Noack.

The Rev. C. F. Dietz, who served from 1884 to 1895, was the first resident pastor. He was succeeded by the Rev. Frederick Brunn of Strassburg, Ill., who died in May, 1927. The present pastor came to the church as an assistant in 1924 from Midland, Mich. Since the Rev. Mr. Brunn's death St. John's church and Trinity church have existed and worked independently.

18 Members at War.

With a membership of 385, the church has 18 parishioners in military service. Its organizations include a ladies' aid society, a young people's group, a junior young people's society, a men's club, parent-teacher association, Bible class, and a girls' choir.

Following the formal ceremony this afternoon a fellowship dinner will be held, with the entire congregation participating.

Orland Park Dance.

A Thanksgiving dance, sponsored by the Orland Park fire department, will be held Saturday night at the Goodings Grove dance hall on 143d street, west of Orland Park.

THEATER OF AIR WILL PRESENT 'MUSIC IN AIR'

Marion Claire Will Star as Sieglinde.

For the fourth in its series of six broadcasts from the auditorium of the Medinah temple, W-G-N's Theater of the Air will employ a cast of 100 artists to present Jerome Kern's melodic operetta, "Music in the Air," from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday.

The program, which will star Marion Claire in the soprano role of Sieglinde, will be broadcast by W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast to coast Mutual network. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan Opera company baritone and Theater of the Air favorite, will be cast as Karl, and Ruth Slater, contralto, will sing the role of Frieda. Wayne Van Dyne, tenor, will sing the role of Bruno. In the dramatic cast for the program will be Laurette Fillbrandt, Olan Soule, Marvin Mueller, Rosemary Kelly, and Butler Manvil.

The 60 piece W-G-N Symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, and the 30 voice chorus coached by Robert Trendler will be featured. Jack La Frandre will produce the show.

Music for the operetta will be presented as follows:

Overture, orchestra; "Love Was Born," Thomas; "Egern on the Tegern," Miss Slater; "I Am So Eager," Miss Claire; "I've Told Every Little Star," Thomas; "There's a Hill Beyond a Hill," Thomas and chorus.

"Prayer," Miss Claire, Thomas, and chorus; "When Spring Is in the Air," Miss Claire and chorus; "I'm Alone," Miss Claire; "The Song Is You," Miss Claire and Thomas, and "We Belong Together," entire ensemble.

AMOS 'N' ANDY START A TREND: LONGER SHOWS

Easy Aces, Keen Also Go to 30 Minutes.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Amos 'n' Andy seem to be starting a trend—the conversion of 15 minute serial programs to once a week 30 minute shows. Amos 'n' Andy, who as Sam and Henry on W-G-N, started the business of five-a-week serials, abandoned this format this fall and are now playing before a studio audience, using feminine voices and weaving guest stars into their scripts with the greatest dexterity.

Now comes word that "Easy Aces," the laugh comedy serial creation of Goodman and Jane Ace, and "Mr. Keen, Tracer of Lost Persons," will also assume the half-hour format. The Aces also got their start on W-G-N about a decade ago.

The new 30 minute "Easy Aces" show will be introduced over CBS at 6:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Mr. Keen has selected Thanksgiving day for his first longer session.

Fred Allen will be back for Christmas—as a matter of fact, on Sunday, Dec. 12. The first of his shows will come from Hollywood, where Allen is involved in picture making. Minerva Pious and John Brown, who have been in the Jack Benny menage this fall, are expected to return to Allen's fold at that time.

Elaborate Thanksgiving day shows are in prospect—one on CBS and another on NBC. CBS starts a two hour variety show at 3 p. m. which will be sent abroad to men of the fighting front as well as being distributed at home. Stars already announced include George Burns and Gracie Allen, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Ginny Simms, Ed [Archie] Gardner, Danny O'Neil, Lena Horne, Jose Iturbi, Jack Douglas, Robert Young, and others.

NBC's offering will run from 11:15 a. m. to noon. The participating performers include Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Frances Langford, Carole Landis, Pat O'Brien, Mitzi Mayfair, and Merle Oberon. The program will be presented in coöperation with the U. S. O. Camp Shows, Inc.

CITIZEN HOUR WILL SALUTE ZION-BENTON

Zion-Benton Township High school of Zion will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N at 1:30 p. m. today. Hubert W. Pearce, principal, will tell of the war time activities of the students.

The mixed chorus, under the direction of James Sanford, will present "Mighty Lak' a Rose," "Let's Bring New Glory to Old Glory," and "All-American Fame." Cheer leaders who will participate include Roberta Enloe, Laurel Craig, and Mary Ruth Abbott.

Philip Maxwell will be master of ceremonies. John Eliason, 17, senior at Zion-Benton, and Robert Cornish, 18, senior at Roosevelt High school in Cedar Rapids, Ia., will be added to the honor roll.

Strafing Tale on W-G-N.

An enemy strafing mission over Faid Pass in which four Army pilots flew wing tip to wing tip at 400 miles an hour ten feet above the ground to clear the pass for approaching forces will be dramatized on Victory Is Our Business, at 12:30 p. m. today on W-G-N.

TOSCANINI TO CONDUCT PRIZE WINNING WORKS

Arturo Toscanini will conduct the NBC Symphony orchestra in Kurt Atterberg's Symphony No. 6 in C major, the Swedish composer's work which in 1928 won the $10,000 Schubert memorial prize, on the Symphony of the Air program at 4 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ. Also scheduled for performance are Rossini's overture to "The Barber of Seville" and Ravel's "La Valse."

HOBART FIREMEN CELEBRATE 52D YEAR THIS WEEK

Volunteer Department to Display Apparatus.

Celebrating its 52d anniversary this year, the Hobart, Ind., volunteer fire department has arranged exhibits of old fire department pictures and equipment in the city's stores which will be on view until the end of the month.

The golden jubilee ball, which was first held in 1893 and which for the last 49 years has been a Thanksgiving ball, will be held Wednesday night at the Cressmoor Country club. In 1893, two years after the department was founded, the dance was held in December because another organization already had scheduled a Thanksgiving dance in the old Hobart House.

Years Bring Change.

The Hobart fire department has changed with the times and the present well equipped firemen present a far different sight than the early founders of the organization 52 years ago.

There was no fire protection service in the thriving community of Hobart until several civic spirited residents got together in the summer and fall of 1891 and organized a volunteer department Nov. 2 of that year.

"You notify the fellows and we will meet here," Charles Borger, then in business on Hobart's Main street, told Seward Lightner, who was attempting to organize the department. Lightner and 35 other men, most of them in their 20s or 30s, met in a harness shop to organize.

Pay for Privilege.

Stringent rules were adopted for the department. Firemen paid dues for the privilege of fighting fires and paid fines if they missed a fire without a good excuse. Any man forced to resign for non-compliance with the rules was immediately replaced.

In its first year, firemen spread a fire alarm by yelling down the street to one another, but this practice was discarded with the purchase of a huge bell weighing 525 pounds. The bell served as an alarm until 1910, when the first steam siren was installed at the city's water and light plant. An electric siren later was bought and installed on a tower near the fire station.

In the early days of the department, when a team of horses was not at hand the men themselves hauled and pushed and pulled equipment to the scene of a fire. This continued until the first motor driven truck was purchased, and until then it was the duty of the first man at the station to commandeer the nearest team or automobile and attach the pumper and hose cart.

Leading Citizens on Roster.

The roster of members of the department includes the names of men prominent in business and community life in Hobart. Fred Rose, mayor of Hobart, was a fireman for 20 years until he resigned in 1939 to become the village's chief executive. His father, Fred Rose Sr., was one of the original members and for many years headed the city's police and fire departments.

At present the department consists of the chief, Dan Kraft, 15 volunteers, and two paid firemen.

Former Canning Official Marks Golden Wedding

Charles S. Crary.

Mrs. Crary.

Their November marriage date was the same as that of Mrs. Crary's parents, who were married in 1853, and her brother, Cannah, who was married in 1887. Mrs. Crary's parents were celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary on the day she was married.

Mr. and Mrs. Crary were wed in Henry, Ill., and lived until 1909 in Hoopeston, Ill., where Mr. Crary was in the canning business. They later lived in Streator, Ill., and Waukesha, Wis. At present they reside in the Hyde Park hotel.

Mr. Crary was a member of the Chicago board of trade from 1888 to 1928, and has been a member of the Chicago Athletic club for the last 40 years.

They observed their anniversary with their children and close friends. They have a son, Wilbur Crary of Hampshire, and four daughters: Mrs. J. S. McCann, 7022 Merill avenue; Mrs. E. S. Kreigh, 1970 Winnemac avenue; Mrs. A. B. Dicus, Highland Park, and Mrs. Rahr.

Hyde Park Women Voters to Discuss Current Taxes

Mrs. Roger L. Goetz, 1360 East 56th street, will discuss current federal tax legislation at a meeting of the Hyde Park League of Women Voters at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the First Unitarian church, 1174 East 57th street. Mrs. W. Lloyd Warner, 5714 Dorchester avenue, will preside. The program was arranged by Mrs. Frank Smothers, 5736 Harper avenue, and Mrs. Louis H. Nichols, 5840 Stony Island avenue, co-chairman of the foreign policy department.

ADVISES HEATING PLANT CHECK-UP FOR FUEL SAVING

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If we can believe what the experts tell us, it appears that there are few home heating plants that are in really good condition; plants that could not be conditioned to save more fuel. And this reconditioning could be done, in most cases, at only a small cost and a little attention.

Smoke inspectors from different parts of the country who were asked by a large coal trade journal to indicate how substantial economies in fuel consumption might be effected had quite a few vigorous comments to make.

60% Poor Condition.

Only 10 to 15 per cent of heating plants, exclusive of big industrial and power plants, are in good condition; 25 per cent are fair; 60 per cent or more are poor, according to Arthur E. Hutchinson of Cleveland, president of the Smoke Prevention association.

In brief, some 60 per cent of the nation's domestic heating plants are wasting fuel because of faulty operation, dirty heating surfaces, or because they are in need of minor repairs or adjustments. Other inspectors claim that the majority of heating plants in some cities are wasting fuel for the simple reason that they are in need of cleaning.

Common defects in home heating plants are warped ash pits and firing doors, water columns dirty with try cocks stuck tight, flue pipes sagging or pulled apart and in need of sealing where they entered the chimney, burned grates, and poor draft with no dampers or inefficient dampers.

Start with Heating Plant.

The plumbing and heating industries bureau calls attention to all this by way of indicating how substantial economies in fuel consumption can be effected. And if you want to coöperate for fuel conservation, start with the heating plant first. Call in an experienced heating man for first aid diagnosis and help.

If you have a boiler in your basement, heating and piping contractors carry boiler cleaning compounds that can be used safely without danger to boiler sections which are made of critical materials and difficult to replace.

And from the fuel engineering division of Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati, O., comes this hint to practically all the 12 million warm air furnace owners in this country whose furnaces are equipped with a hand draft regulator, a device usually located on an upstairs baseboard and which opens and closes drafts on a furnace thru a system of chains.

Use of Regulator.

The uses of regulators are not always understood. When the regulator is in the "open" position it allows a maximum draft and combustion in furnace. When it is "closed" it will prevent smoke from rushing out when firing coal. When the regulator is in the "check" it will cut down draft and assure a minimum of combustion. Many who use regulators do not understand that they are capable of fine adjustments and that an even and steadier and more comfortable heat will result if the indicator is moved only a part of the way, either towards "open" or "check."

Appalachian Coals, Inc., is still giving advice without charge on any heating problem, no matter in what part of the country you live.

Monday, Nov. 22.

With the outdoor work in a rather dormant state, the war gardener should begin planning for next season. The enterprising gardener will realize the importance of early planning and getting in his orders for supplies and seeds. Persons who plan gardens but who do not have their own land should make plans immediately as they may be unable to obtain a suitable plot.

Tuesday, Nov. 23.

One should consider the entire yard as a whole and lay it out in a manner that enables one to enjoy it. If it is large enough, the rear can be planned to serve as the outdoor living room. Such a room should be adequately screened with low tree forms, tall and low shrubs and perennial flowering plants.

Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Much attention is being given to the plants capable of being grown in the home, and they do require attention at all times. One of the most important operations in house plant culture is watering.

Do not withhold water until the leaves wither for then it may be too late. If the surface has a dry crumbly feel it probably is in need of water.

Thursday, Nov. 25.

Keep all dead or damaged leaves removed from indoor plants for if allowed to remain on the plant or lie on the soil in the pot they may form breeding spots for insect or disease. If any insects are seen begin spraying at once. Remember to spray with a contact spray to kill sucking insects and a stomach poison against attacks of eating worms.

Friday, Nov. 26.

Lay in a supply of tools for next season for they may not be available. Used tools should be given the best of care by washing or cleaning thoroly, painting the wooden parts or those parts that are exposed to the elements. Store in a dry place over winter. Garden tools make excellent Christmas gifts.

Saturday, Nov. 27.

All vegetation needs applications of plant food and this is a good time to feed the trees. By feeding at this time, the plants will be able to utilize the food much earlier than by waiting until spring.

A healthy, vigorously growing tree is better able to withstand disease and insect attacks than a poorly grown, starved specimen. If the ground is frozen, however, it will be necessary to delay until spring, but by all means plan to care for the trees by feeding.

If you are growing the African violet, try placing the pot in a larger pot in which moss has been placed. The moss will keep moist, which in turn will keep the soil of the violet in good condition. Too much water applied directly to the soil may cause decay of the plant.

CITY'S SIGHTLESS DO BIG WAR JOB

CHURCHES JOIN FOR SERVICES ON WEST SIDE

Will Offer Thanks; Pray for Peace.

Like Pilgrim fathers of the early American era, west siders will gather in their churches Thanksgiving morning to give thanks for their many blessings and life in a free country away from persecutions and slavery. They will pray for peace, too, but it will be a different peace than the Pilgrims wanted. Mothers and fathers will ask for the safe return of their sons now fighting on foreign soils and all will pray for an early victory.

West side churches will unite Thursday morning for several community services. Two churches in the south Austin area, Zion Evangelical and Reformed church and Westminster Presbyterian church will hold their services Wednesday night. On Friday night a large gathering is expected at the Washington Boulevard temple, 23 North Karlov avenue, when 15 churches of the West Side Ministers association and two synagogs will hold a Thanksgiving service.

Dr. Stamm on Two Programs.

Dr. Frederick Keller Stamm, who recently came to the west side from the eastern states to assume the pastorate of First Congregational church, Washington and Ashland boulevards, will be the principal speaker at two of the community services. He will address the churches of Central Austin at Austin Congregational church, Pine avenue and Ohio street, Thanksgiving morning and will talk before the gathering in Washington Boulevard temple Friday night.

Churches taking part in the service Thanksgiving morning will include the Austin Methodist church, Austin Presbyterian, Austin Baptist, Evangelical Spiritual, and Church of the Nazarene.

The Rev. William I. Caughran, minister of the host church, will be in charge of the 10 o'clock service. Music will be furnished by the Baptist church choir.

Dr. Samuel Schwartz, rabbi of Washington Boulevard temple, will be in charge of the community service at 8 o'clock Friday night at which Dr. Stamm will speak. The Rev. I. E. Metcalf, president of the West Side Ministers association, is assisting with the arrangements.

Other churches which will take a nactive part in the service will include Jackson Boulevard Christian, of which the Rev. Mr. Metcalf is pastor, Olivet Methodist, Warren Avenue Congregational, Garfield Park Methodist, Grace Evangelical and Reformed, Calvary Presbyterian, First Congregational, Third Presbyterian, St. Barnabas Episcopalian, and Temple Judea.

Plans Service Today.

Warren Congregational church will have a separate Thanksgiving service today during the regular 11 o'clock morning worship hour when the Rev. Charles C. Hoskinson, pastor, will preach on "Thanksgiving in a Dark Hour." Musician Third Class William Lee of the Great Lakes choir and his wife, Ada Beth Peaker, of W-G-N will sing.

On Tuesday night the church will sponsor a lecture and movie by Sam Campbell, naturalist, who will talk and show his pictures on "Land of the Free."

Three Churches Join.

The Rev. Howard Johnston of Faith Presbyterian church, 1001 North Pine avenue, will talk on "Essential Industries" at the community service at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning in Austin Manor Presbyterian church, 1700 North Parkside avenue. The church choir will provide special Thanksgiving music and the offering will be turned over to the Austin Ministers association for church charities.

The third church coöperating with the service will be North Austin Methodist.

The Rev. William L. Moenkhuas, pastor of Kloechner Memorial church, 820 North Central avenue, will address the community service at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning in Messiah Lutheran church, Iowa street and Waller avenue. West Suburban Housewives and Breadwinners Leave Daytime Cares to Play in Orchestra

Young and old alike gather each Tuesday night in the Oak Park Masonic temple to practice for the 12th season of the Oak Park and River Forest Symphony orchestra. These musicians, for the most part nonprofessionals, give an average of three concerts each year. The first this season will be Tuesday night in the Oak Park club auditorium. The bass drummer at the left is Miss Miriam Bohunek of Oak Park, who is an artist. Seaman Ernest Bouchard Jr., third class, center, returned to Oak Park after many years in Texas to play his French horn in the orchestra while he is stationed at the Glenview naval base. At the right is Dr. B. D. Barber, cellist, who has been with the orchestra since it got its start in Second Presbyterian church, Oak Park, 12 years ago.

The 70 piece orchestra includes musicians from 16 year old high school boys and girls to a 71 year old retired physician. Violinists at the left are Mrs. Emma Schlissman, 6938 Cregier avenue, a professional musician, and Mrs. Beth Martin of Berwyn, who is a housewife. Dr. Virgil Stephens, center, plays the viola with his left hand. He is a physician and head of the staff at MacNeal Memorial hospital, Berwyn. Miss Gladys Welge, right, organized the orchestra from a Sunday school group and has directed its activities and growth.

Dr. Carl Pederson of Oak Park is a busy dentist, but is one of the group who never misses a Tuesday night practice with his flute. Playing string bass are Mrs. Eleanor Stone of Berwyn, housewife and mother of a 4 month old son; Miss Ruth Wilkins of Oak Park, concert pianist, and Richard Jones, 150 North Cicero avenue, a government clerk in the day time. Felix Moser of Oak Park, center right, plays a viola in the orchestra, but at home he has a hobby shop where he builds pianos. Trumpet players are Anton Vlemink of Oak Park, Mrs. Marian Schuster of Riverside, housewife, and Miss Helen Post of Oak Park, stenographer.

BLIND WORKERS WIN AWARD OF SHIPPINGBOARD

BY PEARL RUBINS.

That blind persons, making war goods to fit strict specifications, can be on the job with a regularity that shames the record of many war plants employing nonhandicapped person, was recognized recently when the city's first United States maritime commission gold star was awarded the Illinois Industries for the Blind.

In the last six months since the maritime "M" pennant, the primary award, was presented to the organization for excellence in producing over two million sheets and pillow cases for the nation's merchant fleet, the blind and handicapped employes have established an attendance record which is within one per cent of perfect. A survey of absenteeism thruout the country made by the bureau of labor statistics showed a percentage loss of 6.3 per cent.

Perform Whole Job.

In a four story building at 1310 Newberry avenue, blind and partially blind persons perform all the operations that change bolts of material into perfectly shaped and sewed sheets and pillow cases, and then fold them, pack them, and load the finished containers onto trucks. All of the partially blind employes have less than 2/200 vision as compared to 20/20, normal vision. Handicapped persons whose sight has not been impaired inspect the finished products.

For many employes, adults who have been blind since birth, their present jobs are the first that they have been able to obtain and their eagerness to work is largely responsible for their unusual attendance record. As one of them, John Falkenberg, 4923 Medill avenue, explained: "We appreciate work when we can get it; we've had plenty of times when we just couldn't get any." Falkenberg, a totally blind graduate of the School for the Blind, Jacksonville, Ill., turns out hemmed sheets on an average of at least 20 dozen a day.

Bested Her Fears.

One of the original trainees, Katherine Bara, 3728 South Honore street, who also is totally blind, forced herself to overcome the obstacle common to many, that of thinking she couldn't possibly operate the intricate machines. "A friend of mine who could see came up here, took one look at the sewing machine they were going to teach me to use, and nearly scared me away by telling me, 'Katherine, that machine will cut your fingers to bits,' but I knew that others could do it, and I convinced myself I could, too."

Miss Bara, now one of the most proficient of the operators who hem sheets, substituting touch for sight, has perfected a method of sewing which enables the operators to keep the ends of the sheets even. Her brother, Stanley, who also is sightless, works in another department of the plant turning the finished pillow cases right side out. Working at top speed, he handles an average of 450 cases a day.

Spritely boasting that he can "run all over the city without a bit of trouble now," Arnold Hansen, 5204 Emerald avenue, who suddenly went blind four years ago at the age of 53, told how the men with whom he works, tearing the material into manageable sizes, worked thru their lunch hours and put in a series of 10 hour days to finish part of the maritime job on time.

Praise Police, Carmen.

Eager as the totally blind employes are to work, they could not fulfill their desire without the thoughtfulness of policemen, street car conductors and kind pedestrians, Louise McChesney, who travels from 4719 Kenwood avenue via several street cars every day, pointed out. "Jim McEnery, Ed Kelly, and Joe Fleming, policemen from the Maxwell street station, always see that we get to the safety island and across the street," she added. She and her roommate, Florence Mahan, must cross the heavily traveled intersection at Roosevelt road and Halsted street, to reach the plant. "Of course, bad weather interferes, the curbs get covered with snow and landmarks are obliterated, but it doesn't interfere to the extent that we can't come to work," Miss Mahan commented.

Altho the machines used by the blind have numerous special parts to give them extra guidance, improvements are continuously being made and must be tested before they can be used to speed up production. Recently, when the shaky job of testing a new machine, equipped with an electric eye and designed to automatically stop the machine the instant the operator's finger nears the moving needle, came up, Miss Mahan, an operator who side seams pillows, volunteered for the extra job.

Wants Service Job.

Not satisfied with having a home front at the plant, Louis Stromberg, 3036 North Halsted street, a World War I. seaman who made seven trips across the Atlantic on the

IF SO, IT CERTAINLY IS PAYING US DIVIDENDS

Lots of men don't see why we fuss so much about the slope of a shoulder, the drape of a sleeve or the hang of the trousers. But we care, because that's how we built our business. VILLAGE MUSIC LOVERS FORGET CARES IN ARIAS

Oak Park, River Forest Symphony to Open.

BY MARY HOLSINGER.

The cares of home and business are forgotten each Tuesday night when 75 old and young musicians gather on the top floor of the Oak Park Masonic temple and lose themselves in the depths of Brahms, Mozart, Chopin, Bach, Schubert, or Beethoven.

Beginning on the first Tuesday night after Labor day and continuing until late in the spring months, this group of business and professional men and women, housewives, and schoolboys and girls, who range in ages from 16 to 71 years, practice once a week for the winter concert season of the Oak Park and River Forest Symphony orchestra.

Launched in Sunday School.

Directed by Miss Gladys Welge, one of the few women conductors in the country, the orchestra, which got its start from a Sunday school class in the Second Presbyterian church, Oak Park, will begin its 12th season Tuesday night.

The program will begin at 8:15 o'clock in the Oak Park club auditorium and will be the first of three concerts this year. The other two programs are scheduled for Jan. 25 and March 28.

Since the group gave its first concert in 1931 it has steadily grown and until this year always has had from 25 to 30 on the waiting list. Eighteen of the regular members have gone into service, including one girl who now is a WAVE. In 1933 the orchestra expanded into a civic project and was known as the Oak Park Symphony orchestra. Two years later the name was changed again and has been called the Oak Park and River Forest Symphony orchestra ever since.

Walker Osborne Lewis has been president of the orchestra association since 1935 and each fall organizes the ticket drive.

At Home in West

Mrs. Stanley Francis Murphy is making her home in Pasadena, Cal., near where her husband, Lt. (j. g.) Murphy, is stationed. She was Miss Lillian Margaret de St. Aubin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor E. de St. Aubin, 1039 North Austin boulevard, before her recent marriage.

It was "just for fun" that the orchestra was organized back in 1931 by Miss Welge and a few mutual church members and it is "just for fun" that these nonprofessional musicians keep playing each week. They come from all walks of life but they have one thing in common—music. One of the newest members is Seaman Ernest Bouchard Jr., who left Oak Park when he was a youngster and came back to join the orchestra while he is stationed at the Glenview naval air base. He plays the French horn, and, like, most of the rest of the orchestra members, doesn't plan to make music his career. He wants to go back to Texas after the war and help his father raise grapefruit.

Many of the players have been with the orchestra from 8 to 10 years but the dean of them all is Dr. B. D. Barber, an Oak Park dentist, who plays the cello and was one of the original Sunday school members.

Almost since its first concert that December back in 1931 the orchestra has tried to give its listeners something more than its interpretation of the classics. A guest soloist or a group of visiting musicians has appeared on the program of almost every concert.

Guest Artists on Program.

This year the orchestra will present Rudolph Ganz, concert pianist, who will play Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto Tuesday night. At the Jan. 25 concert, Ennio Bolognini, cellist, will appear, and Richard Bonelli, well known baritone, will sing at the March 27 concert.

Other groups which have appeared with the orchestra include the Elmhurst Woman's Choral club, Medinah Ladies' Choral club, Corps de Ballet of the Chicago Civic Opera company, Chicago Swedish Glee club, and many guest soloists.

Miss Welge, whose energetic baton has been enthusiastically followed by many young and old musicians during the last 12 years, is widely known in musical circles. While her suburban orchestra was getting under way—and growing each year—she was associated with the Chicago Woman's Symphony orchestra as an associate conductor for eight years and conductor for two years. She has published several articles in the Illinois State Federated Music Club magazine and has been active in Phi Beta, music sorority, and the Zonta Business and Professional Women's club.

List 13 Who Will Direct Drive in Suburbs.

Thirteen residents from west side suburbs have been appointed chairmen of the 37th annual Christmas seal sale in their communities, Mrs. Theodore B. Sachs, executive director of the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook county and west side sponsor of the campaign, announced.

Each chairman will be responsible for distributing seals in his town and collecting the proceeds of the drive. The annual Christmas seal campaign is sponsored each year by the institute to provide funds for a year round educational, preventive, and clinical battle against tuberculosis. They also are sold by volunteer workers from booths in department and drug stores, banks, and similar business houses.

List Uses of Fund.

The sale of Christmas seals, Mrs. Sachs explained, provides funds to carry on tuberculosis case finding by means of tuberculin testing and X-ray, furnish nurses who aid families and communities, maintain an average of 21 public health clinics each month thruout Cook county, and finance an educational program concerning tuberculosis which includes informative literature, motion pictures, and lectures for schools, industrial groups, and civic organizations.

SIGHTLESS WAR WORKERS DO BIG TASK FOR FLEET

troopship Arizonian, and who is now partially blind, has made several tries to get into the navy or army. "I have a lot of confidence in myself after working here packing and banding the cases, and I know I could do some wrok in the army or navy," he asserted.

"I never thought I would be able to work for the war effort and now that I'm here I wouldn't leave the place for the world," was the cheerful response of Rose Monzo, 1337 Fillmore street, an operator who cuts and finishes the bottoms of pillow cases. Once completely dependent on her family for support because she is sightless, she is now able to provide for her high school age twin brothers and younger sister.

West Siders Employed.

More than 500 blind and disabled workers have been trained and employed at the Illinois Industries for the Blind. West siders now employed there include: Naomi Drake, 1230 Adams street; Ruby Jackson, 1425 13th street; John Yudnick, 1848 23d street; James Roberts, 1900 Marshall boulevard; Joan Warman, 293 Claremont avenue, Elmhurst; George Ruikis, 1624 South 48th court, Cicero; Hattie Young, 2546 Washington boulevard; Edward McDonald, 1900 Marshall boulevard; Jason Smith, 1825 South California avenue; Robert Henneman, 1517 South Millard avenue; Frank Anderson, 1900 Marshall boulevard; Matthew Jasinski, 1921 South Trumbull avenue; Joseph Treme, 1942 Jackson boulevard; Irving Creed, 720 Tripp avenue; Arthur Livingstone, 1427 South Lawndale avenue; Mike Molena, 2957 West Adams street; Henry Smith, 912 West 14th street; Benjamin Beinlich, 1900 Marshall boulevard; Meyer Ritter, 11 Pine avenue; Ethel Whitting, 1900 Marshall boulevard; James Hach, 2606 South Troy street; Marie Callier, 3342 19th street; Charlotte Lenz, 120 South Western avenue; and Hammond Williams, 1157 Washburne avenue.

ILLINOIS TECH ENROLLS 8,016 FOR NEW TERM

Dr. Charles W. Kepner, registrar of the Illinois Institute of Technology, has announced that 8,016 persons are enrolled for study at Illinois Tech in the winter term, now in its second week.

The enrollment figure represents an increase of more than 15 per cent, or 1,083 persons, over the last term, and is accounted for largely by increasing registration in regular college civilian day and evening classes and in war training, Dean Kepner said.

Registration for regular college classes totals 2,957, including 694 navy V-12 students. Evening college classes have an enrollment of 1,004. The army has 484 men in the army specialized training program, but they do not attend regular classes as do the navy men.

The institute has 4,665 students in engineering, science, and management war training courses. These are short, intensive courses of study for which no college credit is allowed. Of the total figure in these courses, 849 are studying 40 hours a week while 3,816 are in evening war training courses.

The winter term which is now under way corresponds to what would normally be the spring semester that would begin in February, Dean Kepner said. The institute went on a round-the-calendar basis last July to facilitate the training of engineers and technicians for war work.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Amos 'n' Andy seem to be starting a trend—the conversion of 15 minute serial programs to once a week 30 minute shows. Amos 'n' Andy, who as Sam and Henry on W-G-N, started the business of five-a-week serials, abandoned this format this fall and are now playing before a studio audience, using feminine voices and weaving guest stars into their scripts with the greatest dexterity.

Now comes word that "Easy Aces," the laugh comedy serial creation of Goodman and Jane Ace, and "Mr. Keen, Tracer of Lost Persons," will also assume the half-hour format. The Aces also got their start on W-G-N about a decade ago.

The new 30 minute "Easy Aces" show will be introduced over CBS at 6:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Mr. Keen has selected Thanksgiving day for his first longer session.

Fred Allen will be back for Christmas—as a matter of fact, on Sunday, Dec. 12. The first of his shows will come from Hollywood, where Allen is involved in picture making. Minerva Pious and John Brown, who have been in the Jack Benny menage this fall, are expected to return to Allen's fold at that time.

Elaborate Thanksgiving day shows are in prospect—one on CBS and another on NBC. CBS starts a two hour variety show at 3 p. m. which will be sent abroad to men of the fighting front as well as being distributed at home. Stars already announced include George Burns and Gracie Allen, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Ginny Simms, Ed [Archie] Gardner, Danny O'Neil, Lena Horne, Jose Iturbi, Jack Douglas, Robert Young, and others.

BECKER TO TAKE OATH AS MAYOR OF FOREST PARK

Succeeds Vernon Reich, Now in Navy.

Fred C. Becker, elected to fill the vacancy caused by the enlistment of Vernon W. Reich in the navy, will be sworn in as mayor of Forest Park tomorrow night at a meeting of the board of commissioners in the village hall.

Vernon W. Reich.

Mr. Reich, an attorney with offices in Chicago and Forest Park, became mayor of the village last April. He offered his resignation recently when commissioned a lieutenant [j. g.] in the naval intelligence service.

The Forest Park board last week passed a resolution accepting Mayor Reich's resignation and naming Mr. Becker as the new head of the village.

From Pioneer Families.

Both Mr. Reich and Mr. Becker belong to pioneer families in the west suburb. Reich is the son of the late Otto Reich who served as village commissioner. At the University of Wisconsin, where he took his pre-legal course, Reich won athletic honor as lightweight boxing champion. He was valedictorian of his graduating class at the University of Valparaiso.

Mr. Becker was one of the first to leave Forest Park for service in World War I. and was with the coast artillery in France. He was one of the first commanders of the American Legion post in Forest Park and is a past president of the Kiwanis club. He is a real estate dealer in the suburb.

1,000 at Farewell Party.

When it became known that Mr. Reich was to give up the mayorship for naval duty, more than a thousand of his friends gathered at a party to wish him farewell. Commissioner Charles Lelivelt was in charge of arrangements for the party. George Gold, former mayor, was the principal speaker, and Lt. Carl Hartneck was master of ceremonies. In behalf of the village council, Commissioner Charles W. Meseke presented the youthful executive with a monogrammed traveling bag.

The new lieutenant assured those present that he would do his best to serve his country and said that, after the war, he was looking forward to finishing the job he had started in his home town.

The Suburban Protestant guild will sponsor a benefit lecture by Dr. Frank Polgar, psychologist, at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, Dec. 8 in the Oak Park-River Forest Township High school. His topic will be "Miracles of the Mind."

Mrs. C. H. Jackman.

Organizations which will benefit from the proceeds of the program include the Chicago Commons, Tice clinic, and Mary Bartelme homes. Some of the funds will be used for welfare work in Oak Park.

Mrs. Charles Jackman of River Forest is guild president. Assisting her with the lecture arrangements are Mrs. Ewart T. Evans of Oak Park, general chairman; Mrs. W. F. Brown, Mrs. M. H. Fox, Mrs. L. M. Listug, Mrs. Milton Schreiner, Mrs. Howard Pettibone, Mrs. R. L. Fearing, Mrs. George Case, Mrs. D. H. Whitehead, Mrs. R. R. Landis, Mrs. W. H. Buckmaster, and Mrs. J. K. Lund.

ADVISES HEATING PLANT CHECK-UP FOR FUEL SAVING

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If we can believe what the experts tell us, it appears that there are few home heating plants that are in really good condition; plants that could not be conditioned to save more fuel. And this reconditioning could be done, in most cases, at only a small cost and a little attention.

Smoke inspectors from different parts of the country who were asked by a large coal trade journal to indicate how substantial economies in fuel consumption might be effected had quite a few vigorous comments to make.

60% Poor Condition.

Only 10 to 15 per cent of heating plants, exclusive of big industrial and power plants, are in good condition; 25 per cent are fair; 60 per cent or more are poor, according to Arthur E. Hutchinson of Cleveland, president of the Smoke Prevention association.

In brief, some 60 per cent of the nation's domestic heating plants are wasting fuel because of faulty operation, dirty heating surfaces, or because they are in need of minor repairs or adjustments. Other inspectors claim that the majority of heating plants in some cities are wasting fuel for the simple reason that they are in need of cleaning.

Common defects in home heating plants are warped ash pits and firing doors, water columns dirty with try cocks stuck tight, flue pipes sagging or pulled apart and in need of sealing where they entered the chimney, burned grates, and poor draft with no dampers or inefficient dampers.

Start with Heating Plant.

The plumbing and heating industries bureau calls attention to all this by way of indicating how substantial economies in fuel consumption can be effected. And if you want to coöperate for fuel conservation, start with the heating plant first. Call in an experienced heating man for first aid diagnosis and help.

If you have a boiler in your basement, heating and piping contractors carry boiler cleaning compounds that can be used safely without danger to boiler sections which are made of critical materials and difficult to replace.

And from the fuel engineering division of Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati, O., comes this hint to practically all the 12 million warm air furnace owners in this country whose furnaces are equipped with a hand draft regulator, a device usually located on an upstairs baseboard and which opens and closes drafts on a furnace thru a system of chains.

Use of Regulator.

The uses of regulators are not always understood. When the regulator is in the "open" position it allows a maximum draft and combustion in furnace. When it is "closed" it will prevent smoke from rushing out when firing coal. When the regulator is in the "check" it will cut down draft and assure a minimum of combustion. Many who use regulators do not understand that they are capable of fine adjustments and that an even and steadier and more comfortable heat will result if the indicator is moved only a part of the way, either towards "open" or "check."

Appalachian Coals, Inc., is still giving advice without charge on any heating problem, no matter in what part of the country you live.

Loop Synagog Service Center in New Quarters

The Chicago Loop Synagog service men's center recently moved to new quarters on the 22d floor at 188 West Randolph street. The canteen is open from 11 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night for all men and women in uniform. A complete hot dinner is served at 5:30 o'clock and dancing and entertainment follow.

Monday, Nov. 22.

With the outdoor work in a rather dormant state, the war gardener should begin planning for next season. The enterprising gardener will realize the importance of early planning and getting in his orders for supplies and seeds. Persons who plan gardens but who do not have their own land should make plans immediately as they may be unable to obtain a suitable plot.

Tuesday, Nov. 23.

One should consider the entire yard as a whole and lay it out in a manner that enables one to enjoy it. If it is large enough, the rear can be planned to serve as the outdoor living room. Such a room should be adequately screened with low tree forms, tall and low shrubs and perennial flowering plants.

Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Much attention is being given to the plants capable of being grown in the home, and they do require attention at all times. One of the most important operations in house plant culture is watering.

Do not withhold water until the leaves wither for then it may be too late. If the surface has a dry crumbly feel it probably is in need of water.

Thursday, Nov. 25.

Keep all dead or damaged leaves removed from indoor plants for if allowed to remain on the plant or lie on the soil in the pot they may form breeding spots for insect or disease. If any insects are seen begin spraying at once. Remember to spray with a contact spray to kill sucking insects and a stomach poison against attacks of eating worms.

Friday, Nov. 26.

Lay in a supply of tools for next season for they may not be available. Used tools should be given the best of care by washing or cleaning thoroly, painting the wooden parts or those parts that are exposed to the elements. Store in a dry place over winter. Garden tools make excellent Christmas gifts.

Saturday, Nov. 27.

All vegetation needs applications of plant food and this is a good time to feed the trees. By feeding at this time, the plants will be able to utilize the food much earlier than by waiting until spring.

A healthy, vigorously growing tree is better able to withstand disease and insect attacks than a poorly grown, starved specimen. If the ground is frozen, however, it will be necessary to delay until spring, but by all means plan to care for the trees by feeding.

If you are growing the African violet, try placing the pot in a larger pot in which moss has been placed. The moss will keep moist, which in turn will keep the soil of the violet in good condition. Too much water applied directly to the soil may cause decay of the plant.

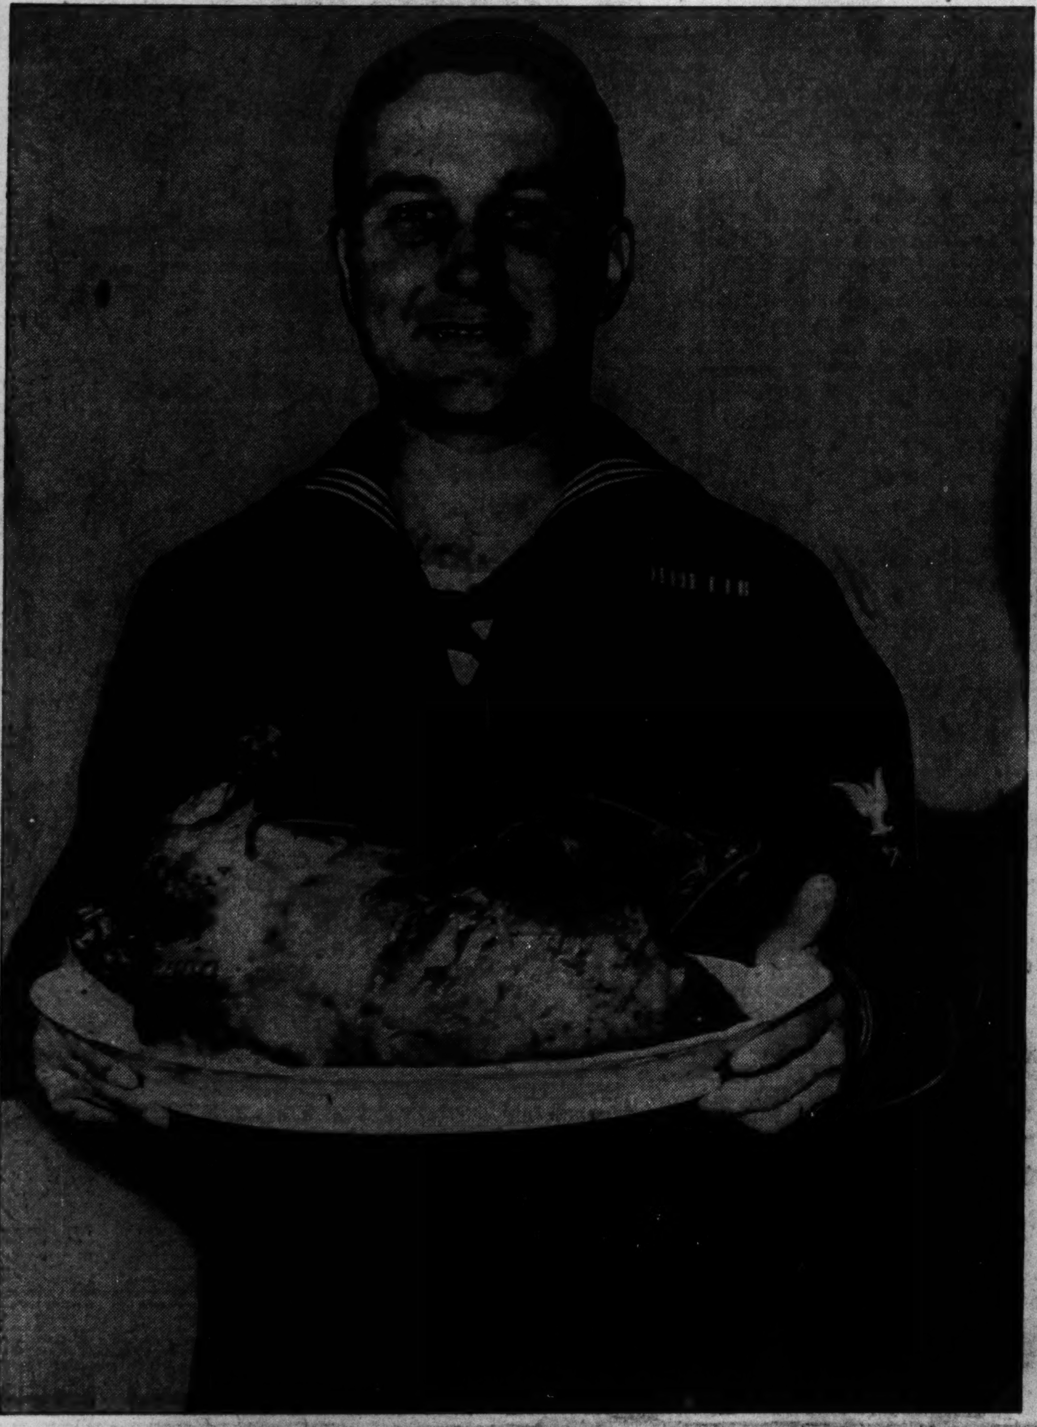
Family Celebrates Thanksgiving Early So Boy in Service Can Join in Dinner



America's traditional symbol of festivity, the Thanksgiving turkey, was the central feature of the reunion dinner celebrated last Sunday by the Rambert family of 2321 North Parkside avenue. Because Thomas A. Rambert, carpenter's mate 2d class, had to return early in the week to his post at Camp Endicott, R. I., the family celebrated their Thanksgiving a few days ahead of other Chicagoans. Tom, the eldest of the three Rambert sons, had the honor of carrying the turkey to the dinner table.

The Rambert kitchen was redolent with the spicy odors of roast turkey, dressing, and other holiday delicacies as Mrs. Steve Rambert prepared the food for the feast. Helping her arrange the turkey on the platter are Steve Rambert Sr., a veteran of World War I., and Fred J. Rambert, an aviation metalsmith at the naval air technical training center in Chicago.

The Ramberts had special cause for gratitude this year, because this is the first holiday dinner at which the whole family has been together in 19 months. Reading clockwise around the table are Flora Bulleri, Sgt. Steve Rambert Jr., Mrs. Steve Rambert, Steve Rambert Sr., Mrs. Thomas A. Rambert, Thomas Rambert, Bernice Kroll, and Fred J. Rambert.

When the men of the Rambert family walk down the street together they have no difficulty keeping in step, because all of them have had military training. Left to right, they are Sgt. Steve Rambert, an aerial gunner with the army air corps; Thomas A. Rambert, whose duties with the Seabees have taken him as far from home as Iceland; Fred J. Rambert, 2d class petty officer in the navy, and Steve Rambert Sr., shown here in his American Legion uniform. A member of Palmer post, he served 18 months in France during the last war, and is now helping to speed production by working in a war plant.

Crowning the feast was a three layer cake whose creamy frosting was topped with spun sugar roses. Flora Bulleri and Sgt. Steve Rambert Jr. enjoyed a moment of anticipation before the cake was cut. Steve, who is spending a 22 day furlough at home, has just returned from overseas duty. An aerial gunner, he took part in 55 bombing missions over enemy territory.

BLIND WORKERS WIN AWARD OF SHIPPINGBOARD

BY PEARL RUBINS.

That blind persons, making war goods to fit strict specifications, can be on the job with a regularity that shames the record of many war plants employing nonhandicapped person, was recognized recently when the city's first United States maritime commission gold star was awarded the Illinois Industries for the Blind.

In the last six months since the maritime "M" pennant, the primary award, was presented to the organization for excellence in producing over two million sheets and pillow cases for the nation's merchant fleet, the blind and handicapped employes have established an attendance record which is within one per cent of perfect. A survey of absenteeism thruout the country made by the bureau of labor statistics showed a percentage loss of 6.3 per cent.

Perform Whole Job.

In a four story building at 1310 Newberry avenue, blind and partially blind persons perform all the operations that change bolts of material into perfectly shaped and sewed sheets and pillow cases, and then fold them, pack them, and load the finished containers onto trucks. All of the partially blind employes have less than 2/200 vision as compared to 20/20, normal vision. Handicapped persons whose sight has not been impaired inspect the finished products.

For many employes, adults who have been blind since birth, their present jobs are the first that they have been able to obtain and their eagerness to work is largely responsible for their unusual attendance record. As one of them, John Falkenberg, 4923 Medill avenue, explained: "We appreciate work when we can get it; we've had plenty of times when we just couldn't get any." Falkenberg, a totally blind graduate of the School for the Blind, Jacksonville, Ill., turns out hemmed sheets on an average of at least 20 dozen a day.

Bested Her Fears.

One of the original trainees, Katherine Bara, 3728 South Honore street, who also is totally blind, forced herself to overcome the obstacle common to many, that of thinking she couldn't possibly operate the intricate machines. "A friend of mine who could see came up here, took one look at the sewing machine they were going to teach me to use, and nearly scared me away by telling me, 'Katherine, that machine will cut your fingers to bits,' but I knew that others could do it, and I convinced myself I could, too."

Miss Bara, now one of the most proficient of the operators who hem sheets, substituting touch for sight, has perfected a method of sewing which enables the operators to keep the ends of the sheets even. Her brother, Stanley, who also is sightless, works in another department of the plant turning the finished pillow cases right side out. Working at top speed, he handles an average of 450 cases a day.

Spritely boasting that he can "run all over the city without a bit of trouble now," Arnold Hansen, 5204 Emerald avenue, who suddenly went blind four years ago at the age of 53, told how the men with whom he works, tearing the material into manageable sizes, worked thru their lunch hours and put in a series of 10 hour days to finish part of the maritime job on time.

Praise Police, Carmen.

Eager as the totally blind employes are to work, they could not fulfill their desire without the thoughtfulness of policemen, street car conductors and kind pedestrians, Louise McChesney, who travels from 4719 Kenwood avenue via several street cars every day, pointed out. "Jim McEnery, Ed Kelly, and Joe Fleming, policemen from the Maxwell street station, always see that we get to the safety island and across the street," she added. She and her roommate, Florence Mahan, must cross the heavily traveled intersection at Roosevelt road and Halsted street, to reach the plant. "Of course, bad weather interferes, the curbs get covered with snow and landmarks are obliterated, but it doesn't interfere to the extent that we can't come to work," Miss Mahan commented.

Altho the machines used by the blind have numerous special parts to give them extra guidance, improvements are continuously being made and must be tested before they can be used to speed up production. Recently, when the shaky job of testing a new machine, equipped with an electric eye and designed to automatically stop the machine the instant the operator's finger nears the moving needle, came up, Miss Mahan, an operator who side seams pillows, volunteered for the extra job.

Wants Service Job.

Not satisfied with having a home front at the plant, Louis Stromberg, 3036 North Halsted street, a World War I. seaman who made seven trips across the Atlantic on the

WRITES TO 238 MEN IN SERVICE EVERY 3 WEEKS

Northwest Side Woman Sees List Grow.

BY MAURINE MYERS.

Mrs. Alice Peeck.

Are you having difficulty finding time to write to those three nephews in the navy? If letters pile up, awaiting answers, you might take courage from the example of Mrs. Alice Peeck, 3594 Milwaukee avenue, whose correspondence list numbers 238 service men.

Her project was started last July, when Mrs. Peeck began writing letters to the 27 boys from her block who had gone into the service. She gathered bits of neighborhood news, and wrote chatty, friendly notes every few weeks.

Adds Other Names.

The idea soon caught on, and Mrs. Peeck found herself adding to the list names of the sons of customers who came into the Gravius book shop, which she manages. Also added to the list were her seven nephews, all in service, and one niece in the army nurse corps.

Next on the list appeared the men in uniform from Mrs. Peeck's home town, Gillespie, Ill. Before moving to Chicago some years ago, Mrs. Peeck served as associate editor of two country newspapers owned by her father in Gillespie. She recalls how good the townspeople were to her after she suffered serious injuries in an automobile accident, and declares this is the first chance she has had to repay in part their kindnesses.

As she writes to the boys, they mention in their replies the names of some lonesome buddies who often are forgotten at mail call. She had set her limit at 150 names, but generous Mrs. Peeck couldn't bear to think of those boys waiting for letters that never arrived, so she added their names to her list. There are 238 names now, but Mrs. Peeck has no convictions that the list will stay 238 names long.

Keeps Up Correspondence.

Mrs. Peeck is maintaining a bona fide correspondence—not just a one letter project. She tries to get thru the list once every three weeks, and receiving replies or not has no effect on the regularity with which she writes each boy. She makes neat entries into her little record book with the mailing of each letter, and tries, insofar as she can, to remember birthdays and anniversaries.

The only time saving device Mrs. Peeck employs is in sending greeting cards instead of regular letters. Each card, with an appropriate sentiment, bears her own newsy note, a note that sometimes reaches the proportions of a letter.

Thus each letter costs Mrs. Peeck 8 cents, a nickel for the card and 3 cents postage. Her bill runs around $19 a month, but she declares she gets more pleasure from that $19 than from twice the amount spent on anything else. Her replies, coming from overseas, and from almost every state in the union, attest to the fact that it's money well spent. Not all the replies come from the service men she writes, for their parents often drop her a note to let her know how much they appreciate her thoughtfulness.

Help from Sister.

At present Mrs. Peeck's sister, Mrs. F. A. Trahin of Detroit, Mich., is visiting in Chicago. She helps some with the correspondence, but is busy keeping up a list of her own. The letters have become routine for Mrs. Peeck now. She addresses a pile of envelopes on the typewriter in a free hour, then writes out cards to match during every spare moment.

The correspondence isn't all the war work Mrs. Peeck is doing, however. She will be making her third contribution to the Red Cross blood donor service soon, and last year she had 388 hours' knitting to her credit with the Red Cross. Thus far this year she has accumulated 270 hours' credit. Both years she has furnished all the yarn for the mufflers and sweaters which have come off her busy needles.

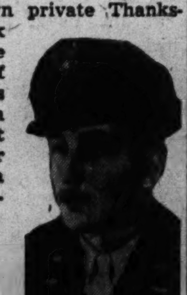
PIRATES' SYMBOL AIDS IN SAVING CHICAGO FLYERS

Bomber Crashes in New Guinea.



Lt. Charles M. Hynes.

Lt. Warren Smeltzer.

Two northwest side families celebrated their own private Thanksgiving last week when word came of the rescue of 10 crew members who had been forced to bail out of their Liberator bomber over a New Guinea jungle on Oct. 18. Both the pilot of the plane, Lt. Warren Smeltzer, and its navigator, Lt. Charles M. Hynes, are residents of this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hynes, 1723 North Nashville avenue, parents of Lt. Hynes, were "tremendously happy" when informed of the safe return of their son. In a six page special delivery letter to his father and mother Lt. Hynes told of the trek thru 100 miles of jungle in search for aid after he and his comrades bailed out of their plane in a storm that rendered the ship's instruments useless and sent the bomber plummeting to earth at a speed of 400 miles an hour.

Guests of Natives.

Befriended after several days by natives who took them to a Catholic mission, the crew were well fed and cared for. Without a radio transmitter, however, they had little hope of sending word of their location to their base until some of the flyers hit upon a novel signaling device.

Since the abandoned Liberator was part of a bombardment unit known as the Jolly Rogers, whose insignia is a skull and cross-bones, they used their parachutes and some materials furnished by the natives to construct a huge death's head on a flat clearing. The insignia, sighted from the air by a searching plane, brought the rescue ship.

Parents Learn of Rescue.

During the days of anxious waiting after the Liberator was reported missing, Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Smeltzer, 2737 North Kimball avenue, were given a ray of hope for their son, Lt. Smeltzer, in a note from one of his mates who expressed confidence Warren would come thru all right.

Lt. Smeltzer was the first veterinarian to train as a pilot at Ellington field, Tex. Before transferring to the air corps he was a lieutenant in the veterinary reserve, serving with the quartermaster company in Chicago as a meat inspector.

VET OF 55 RAIDS FINDS REWARD AT MOM'S TABLE

Thanksgiving Celebrated as Gunner Returns.

BY AGNES AHERN.

"If you want to appreciate the full flavor of a turkey dinner, go on a steady diet of dehydrated foods for several months before Thanksgiving," says Sgt. Steve E. Rambert Jr., 2321 North Parkside avenue. Sgt. Rambert ought to know, for he has just returned from 15 months of duty in North Africa, Sicily, the middle east, and Italy. During much of that time, the staple articles of his diet were dehydrated.

"The food was nourishing, but not to be spoken of in the same breath with Mom's home cooking," said Sgt. Steve with a gleam in his eye that boded short shrift for the Rambert Thanksgiving turkey.

Early Thanksgiving Dinner.

Anticipating the national holiday by several days, the Ramberts ate their Thanksgiving dinner last Sunday, so that all the members of the family could be present for the feast. Altho Steve's two brothers, Thomas A. Rambert, a member of the Sea Bees, and Fred J. Rambert, an aviation metalsmith in the navy, arranged furloughs to greet Steve on his return to America, Tom was not able to remain until Thanksgiving day. A military drill instructor at Camp Endicott, R. I., he had to return to his post last Tuesday, so the Ramberts decided that an early Thanksgiving dinner was in order.

Present at the celebration, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Steve Rambert Sr., and their three uniformed sons, were Mrs. Thomas A. Rambert; Bernice Kroll, Fred's fiancée, and Flora Bulleri, Steve's "best girl."

Gunner on 55 Raids.

Conversation at the dinner table centered largely about the experiences of the returned traveler. Altho Steve protests that he has done "nothing unusual," he wears the air medal and oak leaf clusters for participating in 55 bombing missions over enemy territory. An aerial gunner in a squadron that was part of the Earthquakes group, he was with the British 8th army in many of its history making pushes.

In North Africa, his plane was in the last group of bombers that flew over Tunis on the day it surrendered. He also took part in the raids on Pantelleria, Sicily, and Italy. Although he has been in two crash landings, he has received no serious injury. In the first one, he was a bit shaken up, he says. In the second, his knees were cut.

Praises Ground Crews.

Modest about his own exploits, Steve is enthusiastic when he talks about the pilots with whom he served. "There aren't any better flyers in the world than those men," he says. Great credit should also go to the ground crews for their mechanical work, he declares. "We used to say they kept the planes in such good condition that they could almost go out and come back by themselves."

During the periods when he was not on duty, Steve was able to get in a bit of sight-seeing. He visited the Holy Land, Cairo, and Tripoli, crossed the desert sands on a camel for a face-to-face view of the Sphinx, and developed quite a talent for bargaining in the Egyptian bazars.

But thru all his experiences, he was haunted by the thought of his mother's cooking. "Bully beef and dehydrated beets will get you thru a war," he declares, "but that's about all you can say for them. But take one of Mom's apple pies—or a turkey just out of the oven—now there's something worthy of a national celebration."

YOUNG SINGERS REPLACE GROUP CALLED TO WAR

Division 'Y' Gleemen Reorganized.

From a group of seven boys singing on a street corner the Division Street Y. M. C. A. Gleemen progressed to a group of 60 giving a concert in Orchestra hall.

It was back in the summer of 1939, when Phil R. Blonsky, "Y" secretary, was passing the corner of Haddon and Marshfield avenues, that he heard seven boys singing some of the songs they had learned at Camp Channing, summer retreat for the Division Y. M. C. A. He invited the boys to Fellowship hall at the "Y," where there was a piano.

Broadcast Over W-G-N.

In less than a year, the seven had grown to 60 and had appeared at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall, at the annual Y. M. C. A. meeting in the Central "Y," and in a nation-wide broadcast over W-G-N.

Then, with the coming of the war, the glee club slowly broke up, with the director and the members going into service.

Two months ago, after having received his medical discharge from the army, Mr. Blonsky came back to the Division Street "Y." The reorganization of the Gleemen was begun at once, and just last week they made their first public appearance, a concert at the Hotel La Salle before the guests of the Golden Roosters, Chicago jewelers' association.

New Outfits Being Procured.

The boys are now being outfitted with white shirts, white and maroon sweaters, maroon bow ties, and dark trousers. Many of them are younger brothers of the original members of the Gleemen.

After the holidays, the boys plan on beginning rehearsals on Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore."

Seven residents of northwest side suburbs have been appointed to serve as chairmen of the 37th annual Christmas seal sale in their communities, it was announced last week by Mrs. Theodore B. Sachs, executive director of the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook county, sponsor of the campaign in this area.

"All of the chairmen have volunteered to devote their efforts to assisting with our work, for which we are sincerely grateful," Mrs. Sachs said. "Each will be responsible for distributing seals in his or her town, and collecting the proceeds of the drive."

The purpose of the annual Christmas seal campaign is to make possible a year-round educational, preventive, and clinical battle against tuberculosis. The seals are sold for a penny each, or a dollar a sheet, and are sent by mail to residents of Chicago and Cook county, in addition to being sold by volunteer workers from booths in department and drug stores, banks, and business houses.

List Uses for Funds.

The sale of Christmas seals provides funds which are used to carry on tuberculosis case finding by means of tuberculin testing and X-ray, furnish nurses who aid families and communities, maintain an average of 21 public health clinics each month thruout Cook county, finance an educational program concerning tuberculosis which includes informative literature, motion pictures, and lectures for the benefit of schools, industrial groups, and civic organizations, and makes possible a rehabilitation program to place ex-tuberculosis patients in useful jobs where they can support their families.

Other Nations Adopt Use.

This year, for the first time, fout of the allied nations, England, Canada, Brazil, and Mexico, also will use the Christmas seal which will go on sale here and thruout the nation under the sponsorship of the National Tuberculosis association and its 1,700 affiliated organizations in an effort to secure funds for their respective campaigns against tuberculosis.

The 1943 Christmas seal is taken from a painting by Andre Dugo, an internationally known artist and illustrator. It was selected as most typical of Christmas in competition with works offered for this purpose by many leading artists.

BUY WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

FAMILY PARTED BY WAR KEEPS UP ITS HOBBIES

7 Friedlunds Win Fame in Northwest Area.

Remember the Sycamore family in "You Can't Take It with You"? Mama wrote plays and did oil painting, Essie practiced ballet dancing, Ed had a printing press set up in the parlor, and Father made firecrackers in his basement workshop.

Jefferson Park has its own Sycamore family in the G. Reginald Friedlunds, at 4918 North Tripp avenue. There are four stars in the service flag that hangs in the Friedlunds' front window these days, which means that shavings from Reggie's wood carving no longer track across the kitchen floor, and that dad has taken over Spence's stamp collection to augment his own. But the Friedlunds are still a hobby-minded household, and evidences of their varied interests overflow closets and back porch.

Carving Portrait Busts.

"Reggie," 23, is Cadet G. Reginald Friedlund Jr., with the army air corps at Norwich university, Northfield, Vt. Married since Dec. 6, 1941, Reggie's main hobby now is his baby daughter. But as a boy his wood carving was so excellent that when 13 years old he won a scholarship to attend an academy teaching the subject. He's carrying on his interest now by doing portrait busts of his buddies in Northfield.

"Connie," now Mrs. M. J. Anderson, was an avid coin collector while she was living under the Friedlund roof. That collection she turned over to her dad when she was married more than two years ago, and he manages to keep adding to it—for her, he says. Connie had a secondary hobby, one she's not so apt to admit to, and that is collecting awards. At Augustana college she was chosen "Vi Queen," and when she worked in a loop restaurant she was chosen "Vita-Girl" in a contest sponsored by the National Restaurant association.

Millionth at Fair.

During the World's Fair she just happened to be the millionth visitor in the French pavilion, and received all sorts of prizes and press notices. She is living with her husband, who is stationed at the government experimental station at Annapolis, Md., and her current hobby is baking cookies and cakes for her brothers in the service.

Warren, 21, now a naval air cadet in training at Glenview Naval Air station, has been interested in photography since he was in high school and gathered some choice shots while he worked near Washington, D. C. His transparencies are still at home and the Friedlunds drag out the projector whenever a friend evidences interest in Warren's hobby.

Spencer, 19, aviation machinist mate third class, is in training at the navy school at 87th and Anthony avenue on the south side, so he gets home frequently to check over the stamp collection he has in collaboration with his father. Mrs. Friedlund has a hand in that collection, too—it's her job to letter the titles for the pages in their albums.

Lectures on Buttons.

Avis, 15, who is now a sophomore at Taft High school, has a hobby currently becoming more popular with hobbyists over the country. Avis collects buttons, and lectures on the history of buttons before PTA groups, church societies, and women's clubs. The lecturing is nothing new; she's been doing that for several years.

Mrs. Friedlund still has a number of engagements to fill on her own calendar, however, for she gives original dramatic readings, and is a master at Norwegian dialect. She declares her principal hobby is her work at the Albany Park Lutheran church, where she teaches a Bible class and is active in the women's work. But she still appears on programs thruout the northwest side, and has vast scrapbooks full of source material, compiled over the years. One of these books, incidentally, is full of clippings from THE TRIBUNE's "Wake of the News."

Father Likes to Fish.

Dr. Friedlund, a dentist, has helped collect the stamps and coins he owns with Connie and Spence. But his first love is fishing, and the recreation room in the Friedlund basement boasts a 7 foot sailfish which weighed 80 pounds when he caught it off the east coast of Florida a few years back.

The Friedlunds, who have made their home at the Tripp avenue address for 21 years, have always been a "do things together" family. The boys would whip up a chocolate cake in the kitchen if their mother was occupied with unexpected guests in the living room. If some major problem arose, a family pow-wow was called, complete with elected chairman and votes on the course to be followed.

Now that all the children but Avis are gone, Mrs. Friedlund finds the housekeeping much more simple and the time she has to herself multiplied. That's when she really begins to be thankful for having hobbies. She can work herself right out of the blues with a session at her scrapbooks, or working on a new reading.

They've All Different Hobbies

PTA CAFETERIA SUCCEEDS WITH 20 CENT MEALS

Project at Belding Is Self Supporting.

Mrs. Hugh F. Williams.

If the children couldn't come home to a hot lunch, then the hot lunch would come to school to the children. That's what the parents of Belding school pupils decided a little more than a year ago. Today the school's cafeteria, 4257 North Tripp avenue, in the second year of its operation by members of the Parent-Teacher association, is unique among school eating places, for it receives all its support from the parents, and none thru the board of education.

It was in September, 1942, that Mrs. E. C. Franco-Ferreira, school principal, saw the need for a hot lunch for her pupils. Many of the children, whose parents were working during the day time, brought a sandwich for lunch, or had a malted milk in one of the neighborhood stores. Out of the enrollment of 695 students, there were approximately 200 with working mothers.

6,000 Lunches Served.

The PTA was contacted, and in a short time an efficient cafeteria was serving a main dish, supplementary dish, bread and butter, milk and dessert. Last year the pupils were charged only 75 cents a week, but with advancing food prices, this year's charge is $1 a week. Last year over 6,000 lunches were served, an average of between 40 and 55 every day of the school year. Since its opening, the cafeteria has been entirely self-sustaining, and it has not been necessary to take funds from the PTA treasury or ask for donations.

This condition has taken a bit of managing. Mrs. John C. Moshis, lunchroom chairman, prepares the menus for a week at a time. Mrs. Hugh F. Williams, PTA president, and Mrs. Hope N. Garren, acting principal, are among the most active members in the project. Board members and a few of the PTA members aid in the work, rotating days on duty. Each gives one day a week, arriving at the school about 9:15 in the morning, and remaining until the dishes are finished about 2:15 in the afternoon.

Factory Worker Helps.

The members who work in the cafeteria don't confine their duties to cooking soup, or to washing up afterward. They set tables, and even go so far as to help feed some of the younger children. There are dishtowels to be taken home for laundering, and a never ending job of marketing to be done. One PTA member who works in a factory spends her day off at the cafeteria stove, for she has a youngster in school, and appreciates what the organization is doing.

The cafeteria, held in the room where the PTA meets, started off with a minimum of equipment. Slowly this is being built up from the cups and pie plates which were all the china cupboard held a year ago. The cafeteria could serve more students if it had more equipment, but now the lunches are being held to 55 or 60 each day. Students are accepted on a sort of priority rating—the ones with working parents, or the ones living the longest distance from the school receiving preference.

Thus far the committee has placed stress on balancing the menus—insofar as it is possible with rationing and a 20-cents-per-person allowance. But balanced menus mean little to hungry sixth graders, who pour into the cafeteria as soon as the noon bell rings, shouting "What's for dessert?"

60 FRIENDS HELP GAEBLERS MARK GOLDEN WEDDING

The Gaeblers have been residents of the northwest side for the past 25 years, living for 20 years at their present address. Mrs. Gaebler, born in Milwaukee, came to Chicago when she was 17, and Mr. Gaebler came here from Germany when he was 27. They have no children.

Mr. Gaebler has been retired from business life for two and a half years, but prior to that time he was in the baking trade.

EDWARD MURZYN VETERAN OF 50 RAIDS ON ENEMY

Served as Bombardier in Doolittle Forces.

From an advanced air base in North Africa comes word that the air medal and nine oak leaf clusters have been awarded to Lt. Edward Murzyn, 2916 Gresham avenue, a bombardier in a B-25 Mitchell bomber. He recently completed his 50th mission over enemy territory.

Lt. Edward Murzyn.

Lt. Murzyn flew the 10,000 miles from the United States to his operational base in North Africa in the same plane from which he later sighted targets. He began his combat flights eight months ago, and since that time has flown thru the heaviest flak and fighter defenses the enemy could put up in the Mediterranean theater of operations.

Bombs During Enemy Attack.

An excellent record in precision bombing has been consistently maintained by Lt. Murzyn. His accuracy in dropping the deadly "eggs" has helped to insure the success of such missions as the June raid on Pantelleria, where his bombs helped to knock out a large number of gun emplacements, and the September raid on vital marshalling yards in central Italy. During this raid the bombing was so successful that Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle, under whose command Lt. Murzyn's squadron operated, specially commended the mission for its accomplishments.

Hit Vital Bridge.

On a more recent raid, Lt. Murzyn helped smash an important bridge connecting a vital road system in central Italy. The skilful precision bombing necessary for this achievement is indicated by the fact that several previous attempts were made to hit the bridge, none of which were successful.

Lt. Murzyn has bombed targets in Tunisia, Sicily, Pantelleria, and Sardinia. He has flown over such historic places as the remains of old Carthage, Mount Vesuvius, and the Isle of Capri. He also participated in the first bombing of the Rome area, dropping his bombs on a vital airdrome near the Italian capitol.

Easy Aces, Mr. Keen Also Go to 30 Minutes.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Amos 'n' Andy seem to be starting a trend—the conversion of 15 minute serial programs to once a week 30 minute shows. Amos 'n' Andy, who as Sam and Henry on W-G-N, started the business of five-a-week serials, abandoned this format this fall and are now playing before a studio audience, using feminine voices and weaving guest stars into their scripts with the greatest dexterity.

Now comes word that "Easy Aces," the laugh comedy serial creation of Goodman and Jane Ace, and "Mr. Keen, Tracer of Lost Persons," will also assume the half-hour format. The Aces also got their start on W-G-N about a decade ago.

The new 30 minute "Easy Aces" show will be introduced over CBS at 6:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Mr. Keen has selected Thanksgiving day for his first longer session.

Fred Allen will be back for Christmas—as a matter of fact, on Sunday, Dec. 12. The first of his shows will come from Hollywood, where Allen is involved in picture making. Minerva Pious and John Brown, who have been in the Jack Benny menage this fall, are expected to return to Allen's fold at that time.

Elaborate Thanksgiving day shows are in prospect—one on CBS and another on NBC. CBS starts a two hour variety show at 3 p. m. which will be sent abroad to men of the fighting front as well as being distributed at home. Stars already announced include George Burns and Gracie Allen, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Ginny Simms, Ed [Archie] Gardner, Danny O'Neil, Lena Horne, Jose Iturbi, Jack Douglas, Robert Young, and others.

NBC's offering will run from 11:15 a. m. to noon. The participating performers include Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Frances Langford, Carole Landis, Pat O'Brien, Mitzi Mayfair, and Merle Oberon. The program will be presented in coöperation with the U. S. O. Camp Shows, Inc.

The Mischa Auer-Mary Astor-Charlie Ruggles variety show is to leave the air at the end of this month. The mystery series titled "Suspense" will be introduced in its place at 7 p. m. Thursdays, effective Dec. 2, over CBS.

REVIEW STAND TO AIR FROM RADIO MEETING

Northwestern University Reviewing Stand will originate at the regional war time radio conference being held at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo., at 11 o'clock this morning over W-G-N and Mutual.

Myrtle Stahl, W-G-N director of education, will take part in the conference discussions on women's programs and radio station initiative. James G. Hanlon of the W-G-N press department and managing director of the Journal of the Association for Education by Radio, will participate in the conference program in the latter capacity.

Licia Albanese, soprano of the Metropolitan opera and star of the W-G-N-Mutual Treasure Hour of Song, will join James Melton in a half hour of popular and classical music on the Star Theater at 8:30 p. m. today on WBBM-CBS. Miss Albanese will sing Micaela's aria from "Carmen."

Mates in Drama

Barbara Luddy, leading lady of the First Nighter series (5 p. m. Sundays on W-G-N-MBS) gets a few pointers from her husband, Chief Specialist R. Ned Le Fevre, on the proper way to make a tie knot. Both will play roles in special SPAR drama on First Nighter today.

CITIZEN HOUR WILL SALUTE ZION-BENTON

Zion-Benton Township High school of Zion will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N at 1:30 p. m. today. Hubert W. Pearce, principal, will tell of the war time activities of the students.

Also scheduled for performance are Rossini's overture to "The Barber of Seville" and Ravel's "La Valse."

The Bandwagon will inaugurate a new program feature, presenting stars of the stage, screen, and radio as guests for the parade of bands, when Ginny Simms will be heard with Joe Reichman and his orchestra at 6:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

'The Boy I Gave' to Be Aired on Little Show

An enemy strafing mission over Faid Pass in which four Army pilots flew wing tip to wing tip at 400 miles an hour ten feet above the ground to clear the pass for approaching forces will be dramatized on Victory Is Our Business, at 12:30 p. m. today on W-G-N.

Deacon Series Continues.

The Deacon, fifteen minutes of homey philosophy and advice which is presented over W-G-N every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 1 to 1:15 p. m. by Howard Hoffman, has been renewed for an additional 13 weeks beginning Monday, Dec. 6.

Marion Claire Will Star as Sieglinde.

For the fourth in its series of six broadcasts from the auditorium of the Medinah temple, W-G-N's Theater of the Air will employ a cast of 100 artists to present Jerome Kern's melodic operetta, "Music in the Air," from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday.

The program, which will star Marion Claire in the soprano role of Sieglinde, will be broadcast by W-G-N, WGNB, and the coast to coast Mutual network. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Thomas L. Thomas, Metropolitan Opera company baritone and Theater of the Air favorite, will be cast as Karl, and Ruth Slater, contralto, will sing the role of Frieda. Wayne Van Dyne, tenor, will sing the role of Bruno. In the dramatic cast for the program will be Laurette Fillbrandt, Olan Soule, Marvin Mueller, Rosemary Kelly, and Butler Manvil.

The 60 piece W-G-N Symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, and the 30 voice chorus coached by Robert Trendler will be featured. Jack La Frandre will produce the show, which also will feature a large cast of prominent Chicago radio actors and actresses.

Music for the operetta will be presented as follows:

Overture, orchestra; "Love Was Born," Thomas; "Egern on the Tegern," Miss Slater; "I Am So Eager," Miss Claire; "I've Told Every Little Star," Thomas; "There's a Hill Beyond a Hill," Thomas and chorus.

"Prayer," Miss Claire, Thomas, and chorus; "When Spring Is in the Air," Miss Claire and chorus; "I'm Alone," Miss Claire; "The Song Is You," Miss Claire and Thomas, and "We Belong Together," entire ensemble.

41 HIGH SCHOOL BOYS PREPARE FOR AIR ACTION

Study Two Nights Each Week in Church.

It may seem a long way from a basement workroom to the control panels of a plane, but the 41 high school boys who meet two evenings a week in the basement of St. Mary's Episcopal church in Park Ridge know that in a few months most of them will be flying bombers for victory. Today's cadets, they will be tomorrow's flyers. All of them are voluntarily giving four hours a week to the pre-induction course offered by the Park Ridge Aviation school.

The school, jointly sponsored by the Park Ridge naval aviation committee and the army air force sponsers, is approved by army and navy cadet selection boards. Since its inception a year ago it has given instruction to more than 200 cadets, most of whom were day time students at Maine Township and Taft High schools.

Offer Preliminary Courses.

Work covered in the course offers valuable pre-induction training in several essential aviation subjects. These include aviation mathematics and physics, radio code instruction, and aircraft identification. Classes are made as informal and flexible as possible and are adjusted to individual needs, so that students who can attend only part time will also be able to derive benefit from the course.

During the winter new classes in the theory of flight, aircraft construction, and other aviation subjects will be held. Physical education will also be offered to help condition students for the strenuous life of flyers.

Low Operating Costs.

Boys enlisted in the army or navy air forces who are waiting to be called into service receive the classes tuition free. Operating costs of the school are negligible because so much has been donated to it, including equipment, meeting place, and the services of instructors.

Directing the activities of the school is a committee of four, Francis S. Percival, J. Harvey Redson, Alf G. Rosnes, and Marshall S. Howard. With the exception of Mr. Howard, who was too young to serve, all the committee members are veterans of World War I. The experience they gained in the last major conflict is being freely devoted to the pre-induction training of lads in their community and in neighboring suburbs who will soon be wearing pilots' wings.

List Enrolled Students.

Students now enrolled in the school are John Klein, Al Vischer, Donald Schneider, Arthur Glesener, Richard Ehrhardt, Lewis Cobb, Richard Johnson, Herbert Percival, Richard Flige, Robert Malin, Robert Wulfert, Harold Bartell, Henry Anderssohn, Louis Bierwirth, George Biermann, Robert M. Beers, Thomas Conklin, Frederick J. Corra.

Also Robert Gallagher, Richard Henry, Richard Hilgenberg, Robert Knox, Charles Kremer, Robert Kalbas, James B. Love, Howard Matthews, Warren Mehrtens, Paul Mehring, Norbert Piaselk, John Robertson, Howard Schalk, August Schramel, Donald Winkelhake, Thomas G. Baggesen, Curt Grevelius, Stuart Hoffman, William J. Steed, Donald A. Stanley, Donald Walker, Nick Wilder, and Anthony Zillner.

Plans will be made for the festivities to take the place of the league's annual dinner-dance. The annual picnic reunion for next year will also come up for discussion.

The fourth annual card party of the Oriole Park Community club will be held Saturday, Dec. 4, at 7263 Talcott road. Frederick F. Sperling, 5335 North Oriole avenue, is serving as general chairman of the event.

ADVISES HEATING PLANT CHECK-UP FOR FUEL SAVING

Experts Say Many Found in Poor Condition.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If we can believe what the experts tell us, it appears that there are few home heating plants that are in really good condition; plants that could not be conditioned to save more fuel. And this reconditioning could be done, in most cases, at only a small cost and a little attention.

Smoke inspectors from different parts of the country who were asked by a large coal trade journal to indicate how substantial economies in fuel consumption might be effected had quite a few vigorous comments to make.

60% Poor Condition.

Only 10 to 15 per cent of heating plants, exclusive of big industrial and power plants, are in good condition; 25 per cent are fair; 60 per cent or more are poor, according to Arthur E. Hutchinson of Cleveland, president of the Smoke Prevention association.

In brief, some 60 per cent of the nation's domestic heating plants are wasting fuel because of faulty operation, dirty heating surfaces, or because they are in need of minor repairs or adjustments. Other inspectors claim that the majority of heating plants in some cities are wasting fuel for the simple reason that they are in need of cleaning.

Common defects in home heating plants are warped ash pits and firing doors, water columns dirty with try cocks stuck tight, flue pipes sagging or pulled apart and in need of sealing where they entered the chimney, burned grates, and poor draft with no dampers or inefficient dampers.

Start with Heating Plant.

The plumbing and heating industries bureau calls attention to all this by way of indicating how substantial economies in fuel consumption can be effected. And if you want to coöperate for fuel conservation, start with the heating plant first. Call in an experienced heating man for first aid diagnosis and help.

If you have a boiler in your basement, heating and piping contractors carry boiler cleaning compounds that can be used safely without danger to boiler sections which are made of critical materials and difficult to replace.

And from the fuel engineering division of Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati, O., comes this hint to practically all the 12 million warm air furnace owners in this country whose furnaces are equipped with a hand draft regulator, a device usually located on an upstairs baseboard and which opens and closes drafts on a furnace thru a system of chains.

Use of Regulator.

The uses of regulators are not always understood. When the regulator is in the "open" position it allows a maximum draft and combustion in furnace. When it is "closed" it will prevent smoke from rushing out when firing coal. When the regulator is in the "check" it will cut down draft and assure a minimum of combustion. Many who use regulators do not understand that they are capable of fine adjustments and that an even and steadier and more comfortable heat will result if the indicator is moved only a part of the way, either towards "open" or "check."

Appalachian Coals, Inc., is still giving advice without charge on any heating problem, no matter in what part of the country you live.

Monday, Nov. 22.

With the outdoor work in a rather dormant state, the war gardener should begin planning for next season. The enterprising gardener will realize the importance of early planning and getting in his orders for supplies and seeds. Persons who plan gardens but who do not have their own land should make plans immediately as they may be unable to obtain a suitable plot.

Tuesday, Nov. 23.

One should consider the entire yard as a whole and lay it out in a manner that enables one to enjoy it. If it is large enough, the rear can be planned to serve as the outdoor living room. Such a room should be adequately screened with low tree forms, tall and low shrubs and perennial flowering plants.

Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Much attention is being given to the plants capable of being grown in the home, and they do require attention at all times. One of the most important operations in house plant culture is watering.

Do not withhold water until the leaves wither for then it may be too late. If the surface has a dry crumbly feel it probably is in need of water.

Thursday, Nov. 25.

Keep all dead or damaged leaves removed from indoor plants for if allowed to remain on the plant or lie on the soil in the pot they may form breeding spots for insect or disease. If any insects are seen begin spraying at once. Remember to spray with a contact spray to kill sucking insects and a stomach poison against attacks of eating worms.

Friday, Nov. 26.

Lay in a supply of tools for next season for they may not be available. Used tools should be given the best of care by washing or cleaning thoroly, painting the wooden parts or those parts that are exposed to the elements. Store in a dry place over winter. Garden tools make excellent Christmas gifts.

Saturday, Nov. 27.

All vegetation needs applications of plant food and this is a good time to feed the trees. By feeding at this time, the plants will be able to utilize the food much earlier than by waiting until spring.

A healthy, vigorously growing tree is better able to withstand disease and insect attacks than a poorly grown, starved specimen. If the ground is frozen, however, it will be necessary to delay until spring, but by all means plan to care for the trees by feeding.

If you are growing the African violet, try placing the pot in a larger pot in which moss has been placed. The moss will keep moist, which in turn will keep the soil of the violet in good condition. Too much water applied directly to the soil may cause decay of the plant.

CITY'S SIGHTLESS DO BIG WAR JOB

100TH BIRTHDAY OF CHICAGO HTS. CHURCH NEARS

First Presbyterian Opens Fete Sunday.

Dr. C. E. Showalter.

The 100th anniversary of First Presbyterian church of Chicago Heights will begin next Sunday for a week of special programs. On Sunday, Dec. 5—100 years and a day after the founding on Dec. 4, 1843, of Reformed Presbyterian church in the young, raw community of Thorn Grove—the Presbytery of Chicago and local Chicago Heights churches, thru their representatives, will be participants in the centennial service.

Homecoming exercises next Sunday are planned to include the dedication of memorials at 3 o'clock, a fellowship supper, and evening program. Women of the church will have an anniversary program Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 30, and the centennial youth service is scheduled for Thursday evening, Dec. 2.

There will be a candlelight centennial communion service Friday evening, Dec. 3, conducted by Dr. Clarence E. Showalter, pastor. The first communion service used 100 years ago will be taken from the cabinet in which it will be housed with other historical church objects after the dedication exercises next Sunday.

Riverside Pastor to Preach.

Dr. Paul Turner, moderator of the Presbytery of Chicago and pastor of the Presbyterian church of Riverside, will be the anniversary speaker at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, Dec. 5. At the worship service, the Rev. Wilford Taylor, Homewood, will extend greetings from the Chicago Presbytery, and Dr. John Williamson, pastor of the Chicago Heights Methodist church, will congratulate the congregation and pastor upon the centennial. Dr. Williamson will represent local churches.

At 8 o'clock that evening the centennial musical vesper service will have music by the church choir directed by D. G. Vandenberg.

Women to Hear Missionary.

Mrs. Rubin A. Torrey, Wheaton, missionary in China with her husband for many years, is to be the speaker at the women's anniversary luncheon and program Tuesday, Nov. 30. Mrs. W. D. Pahnke is chairman of the affair which will hear reminiscences by Mrs. H. G. Mount, Mrs. S. R. Ensign, and Mrs. E. D. Gilbert.

An original pageant directed by Mrs. Glendon Moore and staged by young people of the church will be given at the youth service Thursday evening. The Rev. Stillman Caskey, Faribault, Minn., will come to Chicago Heights to speak at the program and to visit his former home and parish.

Memorial Fund to Be Raised.

Proud of its long history and historical place in Chicago Heights, First Presbyterian church is expending effort and care in its centennial celebration, but looks to the future by the creation during anniversary week of a memorial fund for the redesign and remodeling of the church sanctuary after the war. Contributions for the fund will be an important part of all observances.

To recall features of the centennial not retained always by memory, "A Christian Century," booklet, is being prepared by Miss Florence V. Wallace, chairman, and Mrs. Robert Zinn, Flossmoor, editor, of the publication committee. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gjerde have designed the cover, and other details are being handled by King Williams, William Williams, Mrs. Homer Abbott, and W. Frank McEldowney, centennial program chairman.

Three Changes in Name.

Going thru three name changes and in its third church structure, Reformed Presbyterian Church of 1943 built its first church in 1846 on the site of the present Presbyterian cemetery, constructed a new church 10 years later, withdrew from the Reformed body in 1874 to enter the Presbyterian church, changed it name from Bloom Presbyterian church in 1894 to First Presbyterian church of Chicago Heights, and erected the present church in 1913.

Dr. Showalter is general chairman of the centennial committee. Other chairmen and assistants are: Mrs. Willard Smith, homecoming chairman; Miss Anna McEldowney, invitations and hospitality; Mrs. C. E. Showalter, exhibits; Harry Peterson, fellowship supper; Mrs. W. D. Stray Dogs Find Home at Welfare League Refuge While They Wait for Adoption

Mrs. Charles C. Rutson, 7708 South Shore drive, is vice president of the Illinois Citizens' Animal Welfare league, and is in charge of the league's animal refuge at 6224 Wabash avenue, where stray dogs are held for adoption. The league also accepts for adoption animals whose owners are no longer able to care for them. With Mrs. Rutson is Creda, one of the first strays housed at the refuge, who has become the office mascot.

Oliver Stewart, who lives at the shelter, gives the animals their daily noon meal of horse meat mixed with dog biscuit. The animal's cages were built by members of the league at the time the refuge was opened in January, 1942. Stewart also washes the animal cages each day while the dogs are turned into a 50 by 150 foot exercise ground.

ILLINOIS CITIZENS' ANIMAL WELFARE LEAGUE

Arthur H. Dreesbach, 2152 Leland avenue, takes his year old collie, Rex, back to the refuge, from which he adopted the dog two months ago. Dreesbach expects to be inducted soon, he explained, and his wife would not be able to give Rex proper care in the small apartment she will occupy. Many dogs have come to the shelter lately from such homes.

The puppy had been stepped on by a horse, and after receiving first aid, slept fitfully in a cage at the refuge. The league once conducted weekly animal health clinics, but the veterinarian it employed was inducted into the army, and the league has been unable to replace him.

COUNTIE COMES BACK FROM WAR A SMARTER DOG

Blue Island Pet Gets Medical Discharge.

Count Emil Von Plaass is home from war! Back home in the pleasant yard of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Folkers and Barbara Ann, 9 years old, at 12754 Maple avenue, Blue Island.

Count Emil is a registered 4 year old Dobermann Pinscher, a veteran of this war. He was honorably discharged from the army when the middle toe of his left hind foot was shot away, and was invalided home at government expense. Whether the wound occurred during action or in training, the Folkers do not know. But they suspect that Countie has been overseas.

Put on Weight.

Some time after he had been accepted by the war dog reception and training center at Fort Robinson, Neb., the Folkers family received a letter which said that Countie was "doing wonderful" but that since the dog was "under dispatch orders" no further information could be given to his owners. It was but a short time later that the Folkers read of a shipment of war dogs, including Dobermanns, to an overseas point.

Once a canine of 54 pounds, Countie now weighs 72 pounds. Once a bristling bundle of short fur when he saw a policeman or bank guard, Countie now pays no attention whatsoever to uniforms. Once a leaping, helter skelter sort of puppy, Countie now is a businesslike respecter of human commands.

Happy to Be Home.

All this control broke down, however, said Miss Minnie Poorman, assistant to Dr. Folker at his dentist's office, when Countie saw a familiar face at the Blue Island baggage station. "I went over to get Countie," Miss Poorman said. "He cried and howled and wiggled when he first saw me. He jumped all over the doctor at the office, and when he saw Mrs. Folkers in the driveway he almost knocked her down. Barbara Ann came home two days later and he was wild with joy to see her. He slept for three days."

The Folkers gave Countie to Dogs for Defense 14 months ago. He was large, too hard for Mrs. Folkers to handle, and ate "like a horse." Despite the injury, the dog walks well.

Under the 25 year tenure of Dr. Cox, two remodeling programs and periodic improvements have been conducted. The church plant and furnishings are valued at $200,000.

BLIND WORKERS WIN AWARD OF SHIPPINGBOARD

Attendance Mark Nearly Perfect.

BY PEARL RUBINS.

That blind persons, making war goods to fit strict specifications, can be on the job with a regularity that shames the record of many war plants employing nonhandicapped person, was recognized recently when the city's first United States maritime commission gold star was awarded the Illinois Industries for the Blind.

In the last six months since the maritime "M" pennant, the primary award, was presented to the organization for excellence in producing over two million sheets and pillow cases for the nation's merchant fleet, the blind and handicapped employes have established an attendance record which is within one per cent of perfect. A survey of absenteeism thruout the country made by the bureau of labor statistics showed a percentage loss of 6.3 per cent.

Perform Whole Job.

In a four story building at 1310 Newberry avenue, blind and partially blind persons perform all the operations that change bolts of material into perfectly shaped and sewed sheets and pillow cases, and then fold them, pack them, and load the finished containers onto trucks. All of the partially blind employes have less than 2/200 vision as compared to 20/20, normal vision. Handicapped persons whose sight has not been impaired inspect the finished products.

For many employes, adults who have been blind since birth, their present jobs are the first that they have been able to obtain and their eagerness to work is largely responsible for their unusual attendance record. As one of them, John Falkenberg, 4923 Medill avenue, explained: "We appreciate work when we can get it; we've had plenty of times when we just couldn't get any." Falkenberg, a totally blind graduate of the School for the Blind, Jacksonville, Ill., turns out hemmed sheets on an average of at least 20 dozen a day.

Bested Her Fears.

One of the original trainees, Katherine Bara, 3728 South Honore street, who also is totally blind, forced herself to overcome the obstacle common to many, that of thinking she couldn't possibly operate the intricate machines. "A friend of mine who could see came up here, took one look at the sewing machine they were going to teach me to use, and nearly scared me away by telling me, 'Katherine, that machine will cut your fingers to bits,' but I knew that others could do it, and I convinced myself I could, too."

Miss Bara, now one of the most proficient of the operators who hem sheets, substituting touch for sight, has perfected a method of sewing which enables the operators to keep the ends of the sheets even. Her brother, Stanley, who also is sightless, works in another department of the plant turning the finished pillow cases right side out. Working at top speed, he handles an average of 450 cases a day.

Spritely boasting that he can "run all over the city without a bit of trouble now," Arnold Hansen, 5204 Emerald avenue, who suddenly went blind four years ago at the age of 53, told how the men with whom he works, tearing the material into manageable sizes, worked thru their lunch hours and put in a series of 10 hour days to finish part of the maritime job on time.

Praise Police, Carmen.

Eager as the totally blind employes are to work, they could not fulfill their desire without the thoughtfulness of policemen, street car conductors and kind pedestrians, Louise McChesney, who travels from 4719 Kenwood avenue via several street cars every day, pointed out. "Jim McEnery, Ed Kelly, and Joe Fleming, policemen from the Maxwell street station, always see that we get to the safety island and across the street," she added. She and her roommate, Florence Mahan, must cross the heavily traveled intersection at Roosevelt road and Halsted street, to reach the plant. "Of course, bad weather interferes, the curbs get covered with snow and landmarks are obliterated, but it doesn't interfere to the extent that we can't come to work," Miss Mahan commented.

Altho the machines used by the blind have numerous special parts to give them extra guidance, improvements are continuously being made and must be tested before they can be used to speed up production. Recently, when the shaky job of testing a new machine, equipped with an electric eye and designed to automatically stop the machine the instant the operator's finger nears the moving needle, came up, Miss Mahan, an operator who side seams pillows, volunteered for the extra job.

Wants Service Job.

Goodell, Mrs. Albert Bloomquist, Mrs. Harry James, Mrs. Fred Leverenz, Mrs. Dietrich Sylling, Mrs. Leonard McBrein, Mrs. Otto Haack, and Mrs. Robert Roop.

Mrs. Tidd, member of an early church family, remembers filling the church's kerosene lamps back in the days when Loomis street "was nothing but a mud hole, and there were just violets and empty prairie on Elizabeth street." Her husband, the late Fred L. Tidd, organized the choir and was president of the Brainerd Improvement association.

Only two years ago was the original wood flooring removed for a modern floor. The church is the original structure of 1893, modernized and enlarged. Its timbers are salvage lumber from the Columbian exposition. Fifty years have increased its membership from 20 to more than 350 families.

BEVERLY BARBER POSTS PICTURES OF BOYS AT WAR

100 Photos Tell Story of Beverly Hills Youth.

J. W. Henderson.

J. W. Henderson, Beverly Hills barber, and a member of the Beverly draft board during the last war, has his own "draft board" for this war. It is a huge board panel on the wall of his shop in Walden parkway south of 99th street and for it Jim Henderson "drafts" pictures of the boys whose hair he has cut since they were babies and who are now lieutenants, ensigns, sergeants, captains, and privates.

Usually it is not necessary for Jim to draft the photos, they come in unsolicited, brought by fathers and by mothers, too. Tacked onto the panel, the 100 photos, large and small, tell the story of war in a community.

Claims Selfish Motive.

"I really did this for a selfish reason, I must admit," said Jim last week. "I missed those boys, and I thought it would be less lonely if I could glance at their pictures there on the wall." He glanced with visible emotion at the panel. "When I think of those fine boys and what they are going thru . . ." his voice trailed off.

Four gold stars are pasted on four pictures. The first gold star was put on Billy Webbe's photo, a navy flyer killed in a Caribbean take off crash. Lt. Johnny Sterns, army flyer in Florida, was the second casualty. Lt. Bert Davies was killed over France, and Lt. Billy Cunningham over Cologne, Germany. Capt. Tom Staffelbach, a graduate of the University of Illinois and with the infantry in North Africa, has been reported missing.

Used to Hire Some.

The picture of Lt. Walter Mullen was the first photo to hang in the shop, recalled the barber who has been in Beverly for 30 years and who as superintendent of Ridge park, used to hire some of the boys as lifeguards for the outside pool. Lt. Eddie Mead, now 19, joined the Canadian flyers at the age of 17, he was so anxious to join the fighting, Jim remembered.

Pointing to Lt. Frederick W. Flott Jr., an interpreter with the army at Cairo, Jim chuckled. "There's a smart boy—speaks five languages. I remember when his father brought him in for his first haircut. Freddy wore a little dress. His father set him in the child's chair with the hobby horse. Silently that baby fought off his father with one hand and me with the other.

Brother Also in Service.

"His brother, Robert," Jim pointed to his likeness, "is a graduate of Michigan now in the army and was a bit younger. Well, sir, when Freddy was in Sutherland school, Robert would go right to the schoolroom and shout: 'Fredddy, where's that screw driver?'"

When Lt. Donald Nelson, returned from a little bombardiering [50 missions] over in Italy, he dropped in to visit Jim, and told the veteran barber:

Four Rathjes Pictured.

Stewart Spaulding and Junie Grimes met unexpectedly in a North African canteen, while Sgt. Everett Cassels and his sister WAC Pvt Ruth, met in London. Jimmy Gardner was wounded and has been decorated, his father told Jim. The four sons of W. J. Rathje are pictured, and two nephews of Jim, Lt. [j. g.] Dick Bowlin, San Diego, Cal., and Sgt. Richard Primrose, New Caledonia paratrooper. His neighbors, Pvt. Jack Schwind, Midway Island, and Darrell Caris, flying instructor, Helena, Ark., are up there, too.

Bob Berger's father brought in a picture of Bob and his attractive wife. Barney Guerre, Jim's assistant, has Bud and Johnny Wolf of Evergreen Park represented.

Dedicate Academy Honor Roll

ILLINOIS TECH ENROLLS 8,016 FOR NEW TERM

Student Body Up 15 Pct. for Semester.

Dr. Charles W. Kepner, registrar of the Illinois Institute of Technology, has announced that 8,016 persons are enrolled for study at Illinois Tech in the winter term, now in its second week.

The enrollment figure represents an increase of more than 15 per cent, or 1,083 persons, over the last term, and is accounted for largely by increasing registration in regular college civilian day and evening classes and in war training, Dean Kepner said.

2,957 in College Classes.

Registration for regular college classes totals 2,957, including 694 navy V-12 students. Evening college classes have an enrollment of 1,004. The army has 484 men in the army specialized training program, but they do not attend regular classes as do the navy men.

The institute has 4,665 students in engineering, science, and management war training courses. These are short, intensive courses of study for which no college credit is allowed. Of the total figure in these courses, 849 are studying 40 hours a week while 3,816 are in evening war training courses.

Advance Semester Schedule.

The winter term which is now under way corresponds to what would normally be the spring semester that would begin in February, Dean Kepner said. The institute went on a round-the-calendar basis last July to facilitate the training of engineers and technicians for war work.

WAVES ASSIGNED TO ROCKDALE AS RECORD KEEPERS

A contingent of 30 enlisted women and two officers of the WAVEs is expected to arrive soon at the navy central spare parts depot at Rockdale, it was announced last week by Lt. Comdr. R. C. Scott, officer in charge.

The WAVEs would be engaged in handling the records of the depot which serves as a naval warehouse for the central area.

Barracks for the WAVEs are now under construction, and present plans call for enlarging the school and housing facilities at the depot to accomodate 250 navy men who will be students at the navy's spare parts school. A hundred enlisted men and officers of the Seabees began studies at the school last week.

Women at War

"The WAC is tops and being overseas is a grand experience," exclaimed Pvt. Susan M. Bushnell after her recent arrival at a city in North Africa. Assigned to work as a stenographer with the engineer section, she is the second of her family to wear a uniform. A brother, Lt. [j. g.] Jack M. Bushnell, is in the South Pacific. Pvt. Bushnell joined the corps last May and took basic instruction at Fort Devens, Mass. Her mother is Mrs. Elizabeth J. Bushnell, 1545 West 108th place.

Pvt. Isabella F. Killelea, daughter of Mrs. Christine Killelea, 1413 West 69th street, is a chief clerk in the message center of the adjutant general's section, North Africa. The southwest side WAC joined the corps last May. She is a former clerk and cashier.

Pvt. Doris Schiele, 6355 South Fairfield avenue, is enrolled in the WAC army administration course at the Arkansas State Teachers' college, Conway, Ark. Her recruit training was obtained at Fort Des Moines, Ia.

Sworn into the enlisted branch of the WAVES recently were Sylvia M. Wilczek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kecina, 2044 West 51st street, and Shirley R. Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Walters, 6429 South Lavergne avenue. Miss Wilczek has a brother, Corp. Joseph Kecina, with the air forces at Kearney, Neb., and Miss Hicks' brother, Lyman F. Hicks, is a seaman first class at Annett Island, Alaska.

Pvt. Doris C. Zorn, 322 West 59th place, is a graduate of the motor transport school of the WAC at Fort Des Moines, Ia.

PAETSCH COUPLE PUTS PRESSURE ON BOND SALES

Campaign in Blue Island Nets $163,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Paetsch, 12849 Honore street, Blue Island, have been staging a two man war bond sales campaign without fanfare for the last year and a half. Since April, 1942, they have rolled up a total of approximately $163,000, maturity value of bonds.

"In the third war loan drive," Paetsch explained last week, "there wasn't an evening we weren't working at it, except Sunday evening. Then we just knocked off and rested." Both Paetsch and his wife are employed; he is assistant to the manager of the service department in a Hegewisch war plant, while Mrs. Paetsch is secretary to the vice president of a loop firm. Their little son, Donald, 5½ years, is taken care of by Mr. Paetsch's mother, Mrs. Mary Paetsch, who lives with the couple.

Native of Blue Island.

Paul Paetsch was born in Blue Island and was graduated from St. Benedict's school and Mount Carmel High school. He is a member of St. Benedict's Catholic church, the Holy Name society, and the Blue Island chapter of the Knights of Columbus.

Their bond selling campaign started in April, 1942, when Paetsch, financial secretary, was appointed by the lodge to act as war bond and stamp salesman. Mrs. Paetsch joined the sales effort. For the second war loan drive total sales were $81,250 and 291 sales during the third drive totaled $34,605.95. Of this amount, Mrs. Paetsch sold $24,374.25 in 95 sales. The balance, 196 sales, handled by her husband was less in monetary value, but more demanding of time. He also keeps all statistical data.

The largest single orders came Mrs. Paetsch's way. A $15,000 sale turned up during one drive and a $10,000 sale during the last campaign.

Service to Customers.

The advantage of the Paetsch system for selling war bonds is its convenience to the customer. Altho the couple uses the family car for many personal calls upon householders, a good percentage of the sales are derived thru telephone solicitation. A prospective customer is told that his bond will be delivered to him "within 24 hours" and money collected at that time. The Paetches dip into their own funds to purchase the bonds. This service, of course, is not intended for unusually large amounts or for new customers.

Paetsch, too, had charge of sales in his shop last month. He sold bonds to 280 men, out of 350. The bond seller said: "Thru our contacts, personal, club, and church, we naturally have built up a list of regular customers, and we now know where to go when a bond drive starts." He added that bonds were fun to sell, that customers were glad to buy.

First Aim Is to Relieve Animal Suffering.

BY DOROTHY COOK.

Finding homes for pets whose owners can no longer keep them, restoring lost pets to their owners, keeping stray animals from roaming the city's streets cold and hungry, and giving first aid to injured animals are only a few of the activities carried on by the Illinois Citizens' Animal Welfare league, whose office and animal refuge is located at 6224 Wabash avenue.

"Relieving suffering is the prime function of our organization," says Mrs. Charles Rutson, 7708 South Shore drive, a vice president of the league, who is in charge of the shelter.

Watch Lost Ads.

To carry out this function, the league operates two trucks for emergency service, to bring lost, stray, or injured animals to the refuge, where they are warmed, fed, and exercised. An attempt is made to find their owners or to find new homes for stray animals. The league keeps descriptions of all lost animals reported to its office, and each day checks advertisments for lost dogs in an effort to find the owners.

Stray dogs are offered for adoption for a $5 fee, of which $3 is refunded if the dog is returned within a 30 day trial period. In order to insure the dog a good home, members of the league check on homes in which their dogs are placed, and one of the adoption rules is that the woman of the household, on whom the greatest burden of care for the animal will rest, must select the dog. "If she likes him, we feel that the animal is assured a better home," Mrs. Rutson explained. Each adopted dog is provided with a leash and collar bearing a tag with the league's telephone number, in case the animal strays.

Handles Many Dogs.

Seventy-five per cent of the league's traffic is with dogs, and in the time since the refuge was opened, in January, 1942, more than 1,000 dogs have been adopted from the organization. In its first month of operation, the league handled 47 animals. Last July 944 passed thru the refuge.

Dogs for whom no homes can be found in a reasonable time are "put to sleep" in a carbon monoxide chamber at the rear of the shelter.

"An attendant is on duty all the time the chamber is in operation," Mrs. Rutson relates, "in order to see that the animal suffers no longer than is absolutely necessary. Fifteen or 20 minutes in the chamber is sufficient, and the gas is cooled by passing thru a water tank in order to relieve unnecessary suffering."

Donations and Benefits.

Activities of the league are supported thru donations from its 500 members, headed by Miss Mildred Fitzhugh of Lake Forest, president, and thru benefit sales and parties held under the direction of Mrs. Charles Petkus, 2317 West Marquette road, a vice president of the organization. A rummage sale last month netted $300, and a benefit party is scheduled for Nov. 30.

The league employs three persons: a superintendent, Allan Glish, formerly with the Wisconsin State Humane society; an ambulance driver, Miss Mary Quinci, who lives at the Jane Addams homes, Roosevelt road and Racine avenue, and caretaker, Oliver Stewart, who is on the premises 24 hours a day, thus assuring immediate action on any emergency which might arise.

Daily office hours of the league are kept by members who donate one day a week to the activity. Among those who work at the refuge and are available for emergency calls are Mrs. Rutson, Mrs. Petkus, Mrs. Victor Neville, 270 Church street, Elmhurst; Mrs. Gunnar Lidell, 8114 Cottage Grove avenue, and Mrs. Francis R. Perry, 7815 Champlain avenue.

LOCKPORT PAIR WEAVES LIFE ON HOME LOOM

School Request Leads to Revival of Art.

As bright as the heirloom weaving patterns they have revived is the path of common interest trod for many years by Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Worst of Lockport in their search for old patterns and a revival of the art of weaving.

For many years, in fact, before the last war, the Worsts stepped forth upon a hobby that was to become an absorbing interest for themselves and for others, and a vocation for still others. When Mr. Worst, now in his '70s, was director of industrial art in the Chicago public schools years ago, Ella Flagg Young, superintendent, asked him to introduce weaving into one of the schools. For two summers he worked in the textile mills of Lowell, Mass., but found little information on foot-power loom weaving.

Bring Back Looms.

Next Mr. and Mrs. Worst went to Scandinavia and Russia, making seven or eight trips to Europe to discover details of home weaving. The first trip was made just before the outbreak of World War I. Spinning wheel. and looms were sent back to Lockport, where the Worsts live in an 85 year old home of the Worst family.

Experiments with the growing of flax and the taking of it thru various processes until it becomes a woven piece are still conducted by the Worsts. They have taught women of the vicinity to weave, to card wool, and to spin flax. The finished articles, of great beauty, are for their collection and for the display which accompanies lectures Mrs. Worst delivers before clubs.

Start Mountain Group.

Twelve years ago Lucy Morgan, former Chicago teacher and a native of North Carolina, asked Mr. Worst to start a group of mountain weavers in her state. Several years of difficulty for the new project followed, but with mountain help and materials a cabin was built. Its name honored the Chicago teacher; it was called the Edward F. Worst Craft house, situated in the Appalachian mountains at Penland, N. C.

Donations poured in until the craft house finally had nine shops, a second floor with nine bedrooms, and a third floor dormitory. From seven students the enrollment grew to 300, and the students came from all over the country. Mr. Worst's manual training instructors and their wives spent a spring vacation at Penland putting in floors and dressing rooms. The Chicago room has a huge fireplace and wrought iron chandeliers.

Offer Rehabilitation Aid.

It is the hope of Mr. and Mrs. Worst that the craft house may soon be used for the rehabilitation of soldiers. "I want to see them sleep in those beds, breathe that mountain air, thrill at the view," Mrs. Worst said recently while explaining the couple's wish that the center be used for occupational therapy.

At the present time and as a result of the war, the Worsts and their friends at Lockport are experimenting with the preparation of vegetable dyes. Skeins of home spun yarn of various colors attest their initial success with apple bark, berries, blossoms, and brown-eyed Susans.

After his retirement from the school system, Mr. Worst was called back to head crafts in WPA, and he has taught handicraft at Stateville prison. He is the author of books on weaving that are authoritative texts here and in England and Australia.

Weaving Authorities

Mrs. Worst. Edward F. Worst.

A Lockport couple, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Worst, are authorities on weaving and have a collection of several hundred finished wool and linen pieces in their home. The Edward F. Worst Craft House, Penland, N. C., is named for Mr. Worst.

ADVISES HEATING PLANT CHECK-UP FOR FUEL SAVING

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

If we can believe what the experts tell us, it appears that there are few home heating plants that are in really good condition; plants that could not be conditioned to save more fuel. And this reconditioning could be done, in most cases, at only a small cost and a little attention.

Smoke inspectors from different parts of the country who were asked by a large coal trade journal to indicate how substantial economies in fuel consumption might be effected had quite a few vigorous comments to make.

60% Poor Condition.

Only 10 to 15 per cent of heating plants, exclusive of big industrial and power plants, are in good condition; 25 per cent are fair; 60 per cent or more are poor, according to Arthur E. Hutchinson of Cleveland, president of the Smoke Prevention association.

In brief, some 60 per cent of the nation's domestic heating plants are wasting fuel because of faulty operation, dirty heating surfaces, or because they are in need of minor repairs or adjustments. Other inspectors claim that the majority of heating plants in some cities are wasting fuel for the simple reason that they are in need of cleaning.

Common defects in home heating plants are warped ash pits and firing doors, water columns dirty with try cocks stuck tight, flue pipes sagging or pulled apart and in need of sealing where they entered the chimney, burned grates, and poor draft with no dampers or inefficient dampers.

Start with Heating Plant.

The plumbing and heating industries bureau calls attention to all this by way of indicating how substantial economies in fuel consumption can be effected. And if you want to coöperate for fuel conservation, start with the heating plant first. Call in an experienced heating man for first aid diagnosis and help.

If you have a boiler in your basement, heating and piping contractors carry boiler cleaning compounds that can be used safely without danger to boiler sections which are made of critical materials and difficult to replace.

And from the fuel engineering division of Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati, O., comes this hint to practically all the 12 million warm air furnace owners in this country whose furnaces are equipped with a hand draft regulator, a device usually located on an upstairs baseboard and which opens and closes drafts on a furnace thru a system of chains.

Use of Regulator.

The uses of regulators are not always understood. When the regulator is in the "open" position it allows a maximum draft and combustion in furnace. When it is "closed" it will prevent smoke from rushing out when firing coal. When the regulator is in the "check" it will cut down draft and assure a minimum of combustion. Many who use regulators do not understand that they are capable of fine adjustments and that an even and steadier and more comfortable heat will result if the indicator is moved only a part of the way, either towards "open" or "check."

Appalachian Coals, Inc., is still giving advice without charge on any heating problem, no matter in what part of the country you live.

Monday, Nov. 22.

With the outdoor work in a rather dormant state, the war gardener should begin planning for next season. The enterprising gardener will realize the importance of early planning and getting in his orders for supplies and seeds. Persons who plan gardens but who do not have their own land should make plans immediately as they may be unable to obtain a suitable plot.

Tuesday, Nov. 23.

One should consider the entire yard as a whole and lay it out in a manner that enables one to enjoy it. If it is large enough, the rear can be planned to serve as the outdoor living room. Such a room should be adequately screened with low tree forms, tall and low shrubs and perennial flowering plants.

Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Much attention is being given to the plants capable of being grown in the home, and they do require attention at all times. One of the most important operations in house plant culture is watering.

Do not withhold water until the leaves wither for then it may be too late. If the surface has a dry crumbly feel it probably is in need of water.

Thursday, Nov. 25.

Keep all dead or damaged leaves removed from indoor plants for if allowed to remain on the plant or lie on the soil in the pot they may form breeding spots for insect or disease. If any insects are seen begin spraying at once. Remember to spray with a contact spray to kill sucking insects and a stomach poison against attacks of eating worms.

Friday, Nov. 26.

Lay in a supply of tools for next season for they may not be available. Used tools should be given the best of care by washing or cleaning thoroly, painting the wooden parts or those parts that are exposed to the elements. Store in a dry place over winter. Garden tools make excellent Christmas gifts.

Saturday, Nov. 27.

All vegetation needs applications of plant food and this is a good time to feed the trees. By feeding at this time, the plants will be able to utilize the food much earlier than by waiting until spring.

A healthy, vigorously growing tree is better able to withstand disease and insect attacks than a poorly grown, starved specimen. If the ground is frozen, however, it will be necessary to delay until spring, but by all means plan to care for the trees by feeding.

If you are growing the African violet, try placing the pot in a larger pot in which moss has been placed. The moss will keep moist, which in turn will keep the soil of the violet in good condition. Too much water applied directly to the soil may cause decay of the plant.

Another Week of New Talent for Chicago Cafes

Brisson Makes Debut Tonight at Blackstone

By Will Davidson.

It was a hefty lot of talent they gave us last week, but there's nothing wrong with the prospects for this week, either.

George Olsen.

The openings start tonight with Carl Brisson's debut in the Blackstone, lapse a little until Thursday when the Bismarck gives Joy to the world—Jimmy Joy, and comes to a spectacular climax Saturday with the inauguration of Dorothy Dorben's latest production masterpiece, "Invitation to the Waltz" at the Edgewater Beach hotel. On next Sunday the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms bring in new bands.

Miss Dorben is going to have to go some to surpass her recent "Cafe Ballet" production in the Marine dining room, but she's always topping herself, so probably she'll do it again. She'll have Eddie Oliver's good music to work with, and a rather unusual floor show lineup, including three trios. They are The Pastines, ballroom dancers; The Three Gay Blades, gay nineties singers, and The Three Charms, singing beauties who will work with the Dorben girls in the line productions.

It will be an especially joyful Jimmy Joy who returns to the New Walnut Room, for three weeks ago he was married to lovely little Sally Jennings. Sally is at home, too, in the Bismarck, for she and Don Jennings have danced there many times. It's a case for hearty congratulations. The current show will hold over.

Carl Brisson has quite a story back of him, and it will be told in due time. Suffice it to say now that he comes here with a superb reputation, and, boy, will he need it—following Morton Downey!

The Aragon starts its week-end alterations with a one nighter on Saturday by Russ Morgan, then brings in George Olsen Sunday to co-star with departing Buddy Franklin. George will be there a month. The same night Don Reid does a double with Tiny Hill, then takes over the stand.

There will be Thanksgiving parties at both ballrooms Thursday, from 5 to 12:30.

Just about two years ago the La Salle hotel, under the artful guidance of Manager Jack Powers, took hammer and chisel and saw and paintbrush to the old Blue Fountain room. When Ben Marshall's red tie and the decorators' aching backs finally came out of the melee, there was the glittering, colorful Pan American cafe. And on the bandstand was talkative, alert, and equally colorful Jose Manzanares.

The La Salle management was smart in planning for its room a long term rebuilding program. Deliberately they took the chance of a slow start by not offering floor shows. They had confidence in the wisdom of creating a different room that would appeal for its own attractiveness, its music and its food, rather than just for visual entertainment. In Jose they picked a perfect ambassador of good will, for the little fellow is a dynamo of friendliness.

Today the Pan American cafe is a haven for good neighbors from the south as well as good citizens from home. It's a pleasant proof that patience and faith in an idea will net results.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Bill Moore, extra popular bar tender who has been so-o-o ill, is back where he belongs in the Pump room looking healthier than I ever hope to be.

Arline Thomson, direct from New York's Versailles, and more indirectly from the musical stage, is now singing in the Camellia House of the Drake hotel. Miss Thomson has the vocal quality that is so essential to stage work, and with more experience may become equally successful in intimate cafes. . . . Happy in her recently won opportunity to audition for Metropolitan opera parts, Harriet O'Rourke is starring nightly in the Old Heidelberg restaurant. Her program there is diversified and charming. With her is the famous Octet, in its costumed splendor. . . . Jack Waller's the new emcee at the 5100 club. . . . That Riocabana opening has been set back to next month.

An idea for Thursday—Buy a bond as well as a bird, and give tanks as well as thanks.

Drama Notes

Thanksgiving week finds only two of the town's shows skipping the usual Wednesday matinée in favor of holiday performance. They are "Kiss and Tell," at the Harris, and "Good Night Ladies," at the Blackstone. "Kiss and Tell" returns next week to its regular schedule, but "Good Night Ladies" is dropping midweek matinées until further notice. Starting a week from today, it will add Sunday matinées to the Saturday afternoon schedule.

"Oklahoma!" is now selling seats by mail order for New Year's eve at the Erlanger, and prices will be tilted for that night only. The regular scale is from $1.10 to $3.85, but the holiday evening will cost $6.60 on the main floor, $5.50, $4.40, and $3.30 in the balcony, and $2.20 higher upstairs.

The Great Northern has a change of bill this week, when "Maid in the Ozarks" goes on tour after tonight's performance and "Unexpected Honeymoon" opens Wednesday evening under the direction of Harry Minturn, with a cast including Frank Lyon, Lynn Carter, Fred Sullivan, Jesse White, Myrtle Bigden, Dudley Clements, Frank Perilli, and Anthony Lawrence. Written some years ago by Barry Connors, whose "Applesauce" and "The Patsy" had long runs at the old La Salle theater, "Unexpected Honeymoon" has been revised for 1943 production. The management announces performances nightly, with matinées each Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

When "Janie" opened at the Civic theater, Clare Foley played the bribe-demanding little sister, except for Monday nights, when Carol Chadwick took over. Gradually Carol encroached more and more upon the part, until now she has it all, and Clare has gone back to New York, eventually to appear in the movie version. So substitute curls for pigtails, and one big eyed little girl for another.

Carol Chadwick.

A diligent counter discovers that the name Williams bobs up four times on the playbill of Ethel Barrymore's "The Corn Is Green." Emlyn Williams wrote it, of course, and Gwilym Williams conducts the singing. Rhys Williams, once of the cast, was assistant director, and his brother, Tom Emlyn Williams, now plays the role he created, that of John Goronwy Jones. Williams is a favorite Welsh name, of course, but Emlyn is distinctly unusual.

According to a recent check, Chicago has the largest number of Theater Guild [American Theater society] subscribers, its 12,800 beating New York itself, which has 12,000. Washington comes next with 11,000, then Boston with 10,000, Philadelphia with 8,000, Detroit with 7,000, Baltimore with 6,000, Pittsburgh with 3,550, St. Louis with 2,500, Cleveland with 2,200, Cincinnati with 1,800, Milwaukee with 1,400.

Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes, last here in a revival of "Private Lives," have been asked to appear in a play called "This Is My Own," by Ethel Borden and Jacques Thery, which would have them living in a penthouse suite at the Waldorf.

Howard Lindsay recovered quickly from an intestinal attack suffered at a program commemorating the birthday of Edwin Booth, and has returned to his lifetime job in New York's "Life with Father." A. H. Van Buren substituted in the famous red wig.

"In a BLAZE of GLORY"

it, but more determined than ever to win her.

When they reached Julie's El Torre, she barely had time to bathe and slip into the simple little evening gown she had picked up in a hasty raid on a dress shop, before Eric and Donna were back in their evening clothes to take her to a big banquet and dance—for war purposes, as always now.

It was held at Ciro's, only a night or two before the famous and always crowded restaurant suddenly closed down on account of the war.

At the door Julie was startled to find Cole Kavanaugh. Donna and Eric greeted him with the fervor that Julie felt but dared not show. Eric said:

"You've met my fiancee, Julie, haven't you, Cole?"

"Fiancee?" Cole gasped.

Devoe saved her from denying it by saying:

"She hasn't set the day yet. But I'm not going to let her escape."

Julie did not know just what smile to put on at that. She tried for a smile of derision, but Kavanaugh's glare of contemptuous suspicion puzzled her and her smile died. She could find no excuse for telling him flatly that Devoe was only joking. Before she could think of a tactful denial, Devoe changed the subject.

"What brings you to town again?"

Kavanaugh lowered his voice: "I'm not supposed to disclose military secrets, but our whole division has come to town and we're hiding out in various places of easy camouflage. And I've got the evening off."

"Then you're dining with us."

"That was my purpose in meeting you accidentally," he smiled.

Cole Trying to Expose Julie

Julie was wonderfully happy just to have him near, and she fairly simmered when he began to pay close attention to her. She would not have been so happy if she had realized that he was playing the detective, that he suspected her of being a shifty little adventuress and was determined to expose her. He would not have been so happy if he had realized that this was really a manifestation of a jealousy on his own part and sprang from an interest in her that he did not suspect.

Just why Julie Patten should interest him so much was a riddle he could not solve. It irritated him.

In his struggles to escape from the net of desire that Julie had unconsciously thrown about him, he fought against her as well as against his love of her. He told himself that he was going to protect Devoe from her. It was really himself he was trying to protect.

Not long before, there had appeared in the newspapers the story of a woman in the east who had won a reputation for great wealth by her liberal charities, her faithful church work and her general sweetness. Before long, she was advising people how to invest their life savings and grow as rich as she was. These investments began to go wrong. Investigation was made and the town's chief philanthropist turned out to be a common swindler who had served time for theft and fraud, and had also wrecked a number of homes.

The fascinating idea came to Kavanaugh that Julie was just such a criminal, tho a younger one. He suspected that she, too, had been in prison and had come to California where she was unknown in order to find new victims. Her refusal to tell where she came from bolstered this theory.

One way to find out about her was to obtain her fingerprints and send them to the central office of the FBI, where millions of prints were stored. If she ever had been convicted, her uniquely patterned fingertips would be registered in that great autograph album.

He debated various ways of getting an impression without exciting her suspicion. He could smear her fingers with ink as if accidentally, or with candle wax, or butter. But he knew that latent fingerprints are more reliable than visible if properly secured and photographed.

A year or two previously Kavanaugh had saved Eric Devoe from a pretty crook. He had found her standing by a window, peering out at something in the street; both her hands were pressed against the glass. He got her away from the window, out of the room, and out of the house; then borrowed a diamond ring from Devoe and to his client's horror, cut out the two panes, packed them carefully in a box and carried them away to be photographed. He sent the result to the FBI and got back word that the guileless little lady was "wanted" on the east coast; much more than Devoe wanted her on the west coast after Kavanaugh brought him the report. Devoe offered to let him keep the diamond ring for his fee, but Kavanaugh preferred it in cash.

He might get Julie to leave her prints on the glass top of a dressing table. Then he could accidentally break the glass and carry it off. But where would he find the dressing table? A perfect opportunity offered even while they sat at table.

Kavanaugh danced with Julie and found her so pleasant an armful that his suspicion of her honesty began to weaken, less from the simple charm of her words than from the slight awkwardness of her footwork and followup. He had a foolish notion that a female scoundrel would dance well.

At the table once more, he noted that she was thrumming the tune they had danced to. This was his chance. He slid under her fingers the cover of the bill of fare and she continued to tap the tune out on the noisy pasteboard with all five fingers of her right hand.

"You play the piano," he said.

"No, I never got beyond the five-finger exercises and the scales—do-re-mi-fa-so-la-si-do."

He drew the bill of fare a little lower so that her fingers should tap in a new place, and said with a silly smile. "Louder, please!"

She played with more pressure. He pretended to beat time. It was all very idiotic, yet a little grim.

"Now, for a grand final chord," he commanded.

Imitating a concert pianist she struck the pasteboard with all 10 fingers and held fast while she laughed. He tried to echo her laughter, but he felt pretty low. He turned up the edges of the bill of fare and folded the cover over so that the inside would not blur the fingerprints.

"I'll keep this as a souvenir of your music," he smiled.

"But there's no music there."

"Heard songs are sweet, but unheard songs are sweeter," he quoted, and added: "What coud be sweeter than this solo of yours? It's not only inaudible but invisible."

To her complete bewilderment, he placed it carefully in his inside pocket. It was pleasant to be laughing together over the childish game. But her happiness was quenched when he glanced at his watch, and said:

"Good Lord, I should have been on my way an hour ago."

He rose and told everybody good-night, last of all Julie. His eyes bored into hers and could find nothing blacker in their dark depths than a look of deep regret at his departure. As his hands held her fingertips he found himself hoping that they would not betray her.

He took a taxi to his old office building. The night elevator man had been used to his odd hours and was proud to see him in uniform. Cole had kept the keys and let himself in. He had once made a hobby of fingerprints and still owned an apparatus for developing them. He spread a little iodine on the bottom of a flat glass container, put in two blocks of wood, laid the bill of fare on them half an inch above the iodine, and covered the dish. He waited for five minutes by his wristwatch. When he lifted the lid he found that the fumes of the cold iodine had brought out in clear brown a perfect gallery of portraits of Julie Patten's fingertips, her two little thumbs and the eight fingers with their swirls of whorls and loops about the friction ridges, the eyes, the islands, the forks, the contra forks, the hooks and contra hooks, the lake formation—the infinitesimal details of the tiny landscape that singled her fingers out from all other fingers in the world alive or dead or to come to life in the future.

The next step was to have the iodine picture photographed before it faded, then send it to Washington where the ferrets would run down the duplicates with unbelievable speed. The duplicates, if found, would carry her name, her description, her crime. It she were guilty, he had her now.

But suddenly it swept over him that if she were a criminal it would be an almost mortal blow to him. He didn't want her wicked. He hoped and prayed that she was as innocent as she looked. If she were thrice guilty he didn't want to know it. If he knew it he would be in honor bound to warn the police to watch her, to drive her away from Los Angeles or imprison her.

He could not bear the thought of her guilt or of punishing her even if she were wicked. Who was he to judge and condemn her? What could he know of the desperation that might have driven her to breaking the law? He had found her out by a dirty trick that was worse than any she might have committed. What if she had been wicked? She was a young thing yet. There was always hope of reform. Perhaps he could help her to go straight. He tried to laugh at that, but his laugh was sickly.

In an onset of rage at himself and of tenderness for Julie, he tore the bill of fare to shreds, put away the iodine, left the office, and took a taxicab to camp. In camp he alternately repented his haste, and was glad of it. He was tormented by perplexity: was she a crook or was she just a nice girl?

Art Fressl Is Held for Crime

If he had sent in Julie's fingerprints, they would, of course, have elicited from the FBI the simple statement that they had not been previously registered there.

Just about this time Art Fressl's fingerprints were going to Washington. The detectives who had picked him up for a petty robbery in Chicago had sent them in as a matter of routine. They learned that those same fingerprints had been left in the drug store at Clinton where the proprietor was found dead. And so the Clinton police brought Fressl back. He learned of Julia Patten's sudden wealth and her departure for California, and he wrote her a letter that poisoned her happiness.

Julie loved poetry and she loved nonsense, and there was something of both in the way Cole Kavanaugh had folded up and pocketed the bill of fare she had but touched. He said he kept it because she had played on it invisible and inaudible music.

That delighted her mystically, and she was spared the terror of learning that his gallantry had been really the spy work of one who believed her to be a cheap swindler. She remembered how they had danced together. She misinterpreted his last long look into her eyes and the way he held her hand.

With that encouragement she proceeded to let herself fall deeper and deeper in love with him. But he did not write. He did not come again to see her.

She tried to drown her longing and her loneliness in the frenzy of war work. She ceased to care how fast her money went, provided it went for some patriotic or charitable purpose. Appeals of every sort rained upon her. There were pictures and stories of starving Chinese babies, of famines in tortured Poland, the British, French, Greek, Jewish relief funds, American needs, Red Cross subscriptions, the infantile paralysis campaign, the subscriptions to the U. S. O. fund.

Hard as it was for her to throw a begging letter into the waste basket, it was harder still to withhold money in public when skilful orators stampeded the crowds, worked them up to hysterical prodigality. Everybody was raising funds for everything. There was hardly a social gathering where somebody did not try to sell defense stamps, defense bonds, or tickets to something or other that meant everything to the safety of the country, the war for freedom, the morale of the people.

She read of the actor who gave his whole salary for a picture to war relief, a small matter of $150,000. She heard a producer rise in a meeting and bid a thousand dollars for a seat at a benefit. She saw in the paper a picture of a pretty actress receiving from the hand of the head of a studio a check for $50,000. Carole Lombard sold millions of defense bonds and died in a plane crash.

Crowds went wild under the fervor of orators and twice Julie heard herself piping up an offer of a thousand dollars as contribution of a noble cause. Everything was a Cause, with a capital C. But Julie's capital was limited and her hand was almost palsied when she wrote the checks. She could not believe that it was her own hand that jotted down such amounts, and she was sure that the bank would refuse to cash them. Then she would be arrested for forgery. She began to feel poverty drawing nearer and nearer.

While some were pouring out their money, others were pouring out their talents in a war against the boredom of the soldiers and sailors and marines in their dull leisure hours. Pretty women and famous comedians traveled about in caravans, filling the tented cities with beauty, laughter, and desire. Actors, actresses, dancers, chalk-talk artists, monologists, acrobats, prizefighters visited the remotest camps and put on shows. Radio programs were broadcast from everywhere.

There was a never-ending need for just a little more money. Julie was always there for that. So they took her along on plane trips, train trips, motor trips, bus trips to naval stations, air bases, defense plants, training camps, across the mountains, along the coast, into the desert, up and down the valleys.

One night they visited a big camp in the outskirts of Los Angeles and Julie stood in the wings watching Agatha Gilbert fascinate the soldiers with her beauty in a love scene from her next screen production. Her lover was the handsome Rex Latimer, who was leaving the films in a week for service with the marines.

Julie had put up most of the money for this particular excursion and Agatha felt that she ought to have the credit for it, so she ran to the wings of the temporary stage, dragged Julie out to the center of it, told what she had done, and asked the boys to "give the little girl a big hand."

Julie stood blinded by a great light. On either side of it she saw hundreds, thousands of soldiers seated on the ground. She thought of the beauty of their purpose, their offering of their young lives on the altar of their country, and she tried to speak of it. She cried:

"Don't thank me, or any of us. It is you that we thank for going out into the world to save our freedom. And we do thank you. We do—we—"

She broke down sobbing and had to be led from the stage while the soldiers tore the night wtih their uproarious cheers. She was ashamed of herself for the exhibition she had made of herself, and would not be consoled. Donna Avery tried to comfort her, but without success. Finally she said:

"What are you doing here?" she whimpered as he took her hands.

"This is where I work," he said. "This is my division you're entertaining."

He could have sworn that she had a rainbow in each eye. There was water enough there and light enough shining thru them.

Last Doubts of Julie Disappear

His last doubts of Julie had been dispelled by Agatha Gilbert's speech. He had thought it possible that she was pretending to be rich in order to get close to Eric Devoe, but his theory was bosh if she were spending her money on transporting entertainers to army camps. She couldn't be trying to swindle the soldiers, not a whole division of them. Neither could she be trying to impress Eric Devoe; for Devoe was not with the actors. And those tears of hers! He knew that tears were weapons woman had been using ages before bullets were invented, but these tears were genuine. His heart rushed out to her and he felt that he must atone to her and to himself for his outrageous suspicions.

Then Donna Avery spoiled it all.

"Can't you get off next Saturday and Sunday, Cole? Eric is giving a party at his ranch. Julie's never seen a ranch. Do come along. It will do you good to get out in the open air."

"That would be a change!" he said. "I'll see if I can make it."

Once more he was thrown back into that feeling of doubt as to Julie's purposes. She was still running around with Devoe. But now he felt an impulse to go fight for Julie. He stayed with her till the group had gone back to its herd of big buses. He helped her aboard and stood waving while the vanloads of beauty and laughter vanished in the dark. He thought only of the little talentless Julie who could not even say "Thank you" to the soldiers.

The next morning he went to the headquarters of his chief and said:

"Colonel, may I draw your attention to section 6, paragraph 423, of the Field Service Regulations on Administion where it says—I quote, sir: 'Leaves of absence and furloughs afford relaxation thereby increasing capabilities of individuals for service,' unquote. Further on it says, I quote, sir: 'Policies in the theater of war usually authorize granting special leaves or furloughs not to exceed three days in exceptional cases,' unquote."

"Don't you wish I would, boss?" said Kavanaugh. "But meeting her at a distance is best for me—and for you, sir—and for her."

"Well, get the hell out of here. You're fired!"

"Thank you, sir."

He clicked his heels, saluted, did a neat about-face and marched away.

Zion's Cause, Hope of Jews, Argued Anew

"THE FORGOTTEN ALLY," by Pierre Van Paassen. [Dial Press, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Dr. Felix A. Levy.

Since the time when the boyish hearer of the minister's sermon in the little village church in Holland was shaken to his very soul by the pastor's exhortation that the parishioners purge themselves of the "blood guilt" which attached to them because of the world's un-Christian treatment of the Jews, the author of this work has done his share to wash the stains away.

He is one of the few Gentiles who has defended the Jew's claim to Palestine, and has challenged the conscience of the Christian world by demanding that the people of the prophets be restored to their native land.

Van Paassen has conceived it as part of his life's work to acquaint the Christian world with its duty toward Jews. He speaks not only as a religionist but also as a man of affairs, who appreciates the Jew's yearning for Zion, who knows what it has meant in the Jew's past history and what it denotes for the future. With rare singlemindedness of purpose he has preached his message of Zionism to the world.

As a volunteer in World War I, as a correspondent whose assignments took him over Europe and the new east and brought him into contact with statesmen and other people of high and low degree, he had opportunity to get better acquainted with Jews and their hopes, with Gentiles and their attitude toward an unfortunate people. He witnessed the havoc wrought upon the children of Israel in central Europe and the brutality from which they suffered; he visited Palestine and learned how, under their hands, the desert was being converted into a habitable place; he saw the "blood, sweat, and tears" of the Jews and the willing price they paid for establishment of their own homeland.

While this volume errs, as might be expected from such a document, on the side of overzeal for the Jewish client and overcondemnation for those who would hamper his work in Zion, the warmhearted Hollander nevertheless makes out a good case, which he prosecutes with vigor and bolsters with facts and quotations. Despite the fervor of his crusade in behalf of Jew and Zion and his sense of outraged justice at what has been done to the Jews, there and elsewhere, in and out of governmental chancelleries, he tries to be fair.

Political experts may debate the accuracy of some of his accusations against the mandatory power—damning accusations—yet on the whole his story is a true picture. No one can gainsay that the majority of Jews are homeless, individually as well as collectively, and consider themselves so; or that they are victims of organized anti-Semitism or that Hitler threatens to destroy all, having already massacred three millions; or that Jewish woe brims over the cup; or that most Gentiles are indifferent to this people's fate; or that Britain has played fast and loose with them, in overt or covert connivance with the Arabs. As a result of the nations' conduct toward him the Jew is a problem to himself and a challenge for the world's wisdom and decency. If Van Paassen had done no more than to call attention to the Jew's plight, his book, regardless of any defects, would be important.

The bulk of the Jews will agree with the writer that Palestine will help, in great measure, in solving the Jewish difficulty by giving those Jews that want Zion a definite national and international status.

Van Paassen knows all the objections and answers them, those of the Jew and the non-Jews. There need be no injustice done to the Arabs nor prejudice to their welfare.

heading "The Measure of My Powers" and are exactly that, intimate in the sense of being revealing of thoughts and the actions which measure power, but never realistically intimate. When this author makes a revelation it is no unveiling of a monument with a swift yanking of a cord. It is rather as if you watched the sculptor of that monument slowly chisel out the figure.

But to any one to whom words beautifully put together to make a design of quick, darting thought give as sensuous a pleasure as a symphony, the way that Mrs. Fisher writes will be the book's greatest charm. And if all of this makes "The Gastronomical Me" sound like some solemn philosophical record, let me tell you that there are times, and many of them, in the book when you will burst into laughter in the fire of her words, as unconsciously as a chestnut bursts its shell in a roasting pan. It is a book "for the few" which may just possibly become a book for the many.

"CLEMENTINE IN THE KITCHEN," by Phineas Beck. [Hastings House, $3.]

Frankly for the few and for those few who get as much pleasure out of reading cook books as they do out of the best detective novel ever written "Clementine in the Kitchen" is the year's gold nugget. It is also a book about the joys of living and eating in France in a day when both were truly joys, and the first half of it is the charming record of happy years which the Beck family spent under the household wing of Clementine who was an artist in the kitchen. The last half contains a hundred recipes which might be labeled "Read 'Em and Weep" because they are floating in butter and are filled with casual admonitions to thicken with the yolks of six eggs. But if you can read them with the same detachment that you can read a historical novel they will give you much more pleasure than the mine run of such fiction. Beautiful etchings by Samuel Chamberlain adorn the book and amusing vignettes by Henry Stahlhut. And for a real gourmet Clementine looks to me like the answer to that letter to Santa Claus!

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

A Novel by Rupert Hughes—

(Copyright: 1943: By Rupert Hughes.)

INSTALMENT VII.

ONE night Julie was present at a big dance in the Cocoanut Grove. The proceeds were for war relief, of course. Devoe had made up a table with Julie as the guest of honor. He had lost no time in making her the new star of his existence. He danced with nobody else and Julie got along better than usual with her footwork. Devoe was so rotund that it was like clinging to a lifebuoy and kicking out in any direction. He was no Art Fressl, and yet he was making love to her to music, and holding her very close to his hot body. He could not envelop her as Art Fressl had done because of what Cole Kavanaugh had referred to as his balcony. But his curly head was so far above her that it was as if Romeo were on the balcony and Juliet down in the garden.

Suddenly the lights began to blink. The music gasped. Everybody gasped:

"A black-out!"

Nobody had any information, and that gave everybody license to guess. The optimists said it was merely practice. The pessimists said that Japanese planes were right overhead. Everybody had read so much about what had happened in London and Coventry that everybody wondered just what would happen to him or her in the debris.

Eric Devoe believed in making hay while the sun shone, and making love in the dark. Forgetting the supposed danger from the air, he leaned close to Julie and murmured praises of her beauty and her sweetness. He pleaded that his life had been one of too much false gaiety and insane infatuations for the wrong women. He longed to settle down with the one woman of his final choice.

It would have been a new thrill for the most jaded and belovered woman to be wooed in such gloom under the menace of death from the skies; but to Julie, who had never been wooed at all, it was overpowering.

The dark acts like gravity with lovers. They feel an almost irresistible pressure crowding them together. In the dark Eric Devoe was only a voice, only a mournful, lonely soul, the very spirit of love and yearning. Julie was lonely, too, and it was hard not to yield to the compelling mood of the hour, the perfect opportunity. If she married the wealthy Devoe she would never come to the end of her rapidly evaporating money. She would simply slip into his wealth and live the rest of her life in this dream city, keep all her new friends, go on saving poor wretches from desperation by scattering money—Devoe's inexhaustible money—among them.

He was not the lover she would have chosen, and she was afraid that she could never really love him, yet she doubted that there was an ideal lover for her—or anybody—unless it were Cole.

If Eric Devoe had only been Sgt. Kavanaugh, she would not have hesitated; she would have sunk back into his arms. But Cole Kavanaugh had gone back to the war. He had doubtless forgotten all about her by now. He would be put on a transport and she would never see him again.

She had only to lean against Devoe and let him take her. But then his great arms would close round her, his big hands would clasp her breasts. He would draw her back across that balcony and his thick lips would mumble her cheek, her throat, and at last smother her mouth. And that would be only the beginning, the preface to their married life. She would be his for the rest of her days—and her nights. The vision of their life together flashed thru her imagination like what they called "montage" in the films, brief flashes of scenes crowded together in a tumultuous sequence, all of them terrifying. She had been an old maid all her brief life, brought up as one, trained as one. She had become fastidious and so unfamiliar with the little familiarities of lovers that she regarded them with virginal, spinsterial horror.

In a sudden revulsion she shrank away from Devoe, leaned far forward to escape the hot puffs of his breath on her cheek.

And just then the lights blinked as fair warning to the numberless couples that might otherwise have been caught in each other's arms. Then they came on full, blinding bright.

That love scene was over, and could not be renewed. But a day or two later, there was another one. Julie was invited to "drop in" at the home of Agatha Gilbert for cocktails. Donna Avery said she would drive her down, but Eric Devoe insisted that they should both ride in his big car.

"What are you doing here?" Julie whimpered.

Agatha's home was in Palos Verdes, on the great bastion of the San Pedro hills overlooking the harbor and the sea for miles on miles. "Dropping in" was a mere matter of driving 25 miles and back thru heavy traffic. But the views of the ocean were sublime, and the Pacific was Julie's first ocean. Her view was partly cut off by Eric Devoe's big form and he so plainly resented Julie's awe-struck efforts to see around him that Donna finally said:

"Don't tell me, Eric, that you're jealous of the Pacific ocean. You big fellows ought to be more tolerant of each other."

"I'm jealous of anything or anybody," he said, "that takes Miss Patten's—my adored Julie's attention from me. For we are to be married. Did you know it, Donna?"

"No, I didn't. Does Julie know it?"

"Not yet. That is, she hasn't set the day. But I may say that I owe you a big commission for bringing her into my sad young life and I'll pay you a bigger one, one week after we're married."

"Well! That'll be fine!" was all Donna said, all she dared to say. But when they reached Agatha's and she and Julie had a few moments alone together on the pretext of powdering up, she said:

"It's none of my business, my dear; but that big commission Eric's going to pay me when you marry him—please apply it on the money I owe you. I abhor the very thought of your marrying Eric. He's a wonderful person—to meet at parties. But as a husband he'd be a fiend. He loves only himself and I don't think his love even for you would last.

"He's nothing but a serial sultan and I wanted to tell him so, but I never like to insult a man while I'm riding in his limousine—especially not Eric, who has the temper of a maniac and would be quite capable of putting me out of his car and leaving me to walk home. But I implore you not to listen to him. He makes love like an avalanche and he'd be just as gentle with you once he got you."

Julie dismissed the idea: "You warned me that he'd make love to me as soon as he met me. Well, he's just living up to your advertisment. I'll not take him seriously, never fear."

And yet, she wondered if it were not her duty to seize the opportunity, and establish her future life on a firm foundation, even if it were an unhappy, loveless one.

On the telephone, Agatha Gilbert never knew when to hang up, but as a hostess in her own home she was the soul of grace. And such a home! A small Spanish castle built on the heights of the vast headland, with its heights climbing by piling cliff on cliff. From Agatha's parapets Julie could see the ocean on either side in its infinite space and infinite peace, the distant waves mere white lines crawling lazily up the endless beaches.

It was unbelievable that such millpond calm should brood over waters that stretched all the way to Japan. Yet "all the way to Japan" was a phrase of obsolescence now. Space had folded like a fan since the Hawaii surprise, and—

What was that out in the blue sea? Only a few vessels were steaming across the limitless calm. Suddenly one of them began to zigzag. Beyond it a black bulk rose like a whale coming up for air. Something streaked from it across the water with a speed and a fury more deadly than a shark's. The vessel reeled. Smoke and flame rolled up. The crew took to the lifeboats.

He hustled Julie and Donna back into his car. He was shivering like a mountain of jelly as they raced along the cliff roads and along the other beaches within easy reach of any shells that a submarine might lob ashore. They saw airplanes flocking from inland, circling the water and dropping depth bombs that sent up geysers of water and, it was hoped, shattered the fleeing submarine.

Eric was not at his best in a time of supposed danger, and Julie could not tell just how humorous he was trying to be when he said:

"Julie, darling, when we get married, instead of living in my house out here, perhaps we'd better go to your midwestern home and live there in your ancestral mansion."

"A good idea," said Julie. "We'll leave for there the day after we're married."

She had to laugh at the picture of Eric Devoe trying to squeeze into the shabby little house where she and her father had lived. She could imagine what he would say when he saw it as the place of his habitation. She could imagine how he would get along in Clinton. Donna, never doubting that the ancestral mansion existed, thought Julie was ridiculing Eric's expectation of marrying her. And so did Eric. He was good and mad about

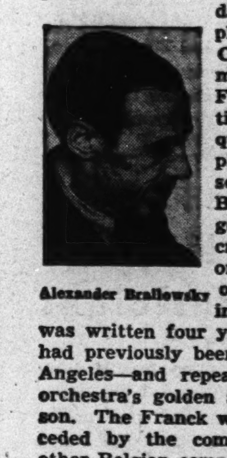
What Has Gone Before

Terry Ives pieces together torn bits of a letter thrown by beautiful Julie Patten from the observation platform of a train traveling thru the desert. The letter, signed Art Fressl, accuses Julie of waiting in his car while he commits a holdup and murder. Julie's Hollywood friends, including Donna Avery, former star, believe her rich. Eric Devoe, whose alimony stops when he remarries, hopes to marry Julie for her money. Cole Kavanaugh, Eric's attorney, now in the army, thinks Julie is playing a part and against his will falls in love with her. Alone in her apartment, Julie looks back upon her unhappy childhood, her mother's early death, and her father's cruelty. None of her new-found friends suspects her drab existence as the daughter of a miserly storekeeper. Art Fressl, handsome, illiterate, gentle, visits her father's store to rob it. He dates Julie, leaving her at a roadhouse while he robs a drug store and murders the owner. Her father dies suddenly. Julie sells the business, arrives in Hollywood, puts herself in the hands of a beautician, and emerges a beauty. She offers her services to a motion picture relief rummage sale and meets Donna Avery. Donna takes her to a cocktail party at Devoe's, where many Hollywood stars are gathered, and introduces her to Eric as a millionairess. Eric is intrigued.

Chicago Symphony Orchestra Faces a Busy Week

Brailowsky to Be Soloists at Two Concerts

With soloists on both the Tuesday and Thursday-Friday series and a "Pop" concert on Saturday, the Chicago Symphony orchestra faces a busy week. Gregor Piatigorsky, who was heard on the Thursday-Friday pair of concerts last week, will play Saint-Saëns' cello concerto in A minor for the Tuesday subscribers, a work he has interpreted many times in Chicago. Désiré Defauw will conduct this concert as well as the others of the week. Surrounding Mr. Piatigorsky's solo spot will be three standard works, the overture to Cherubini's "Anacréon," Mendelssohn's "Reformation" symphony, and Liszt's symphonic poem, "Les Preludes."



Alexander Brailowsky

Alexander Brailowsky will be the piano soloist at the Thursday-Friday concerts, playing Liszt's Concerto in E-flat major and César Franck's "Variations Symphoniques." The symphony will be the second of Felix Borowski, Chicago composer and critic, a work originally heard on these programs in 1937 — tho it was written four years earlier and had previously been played in Los Angeles—and repeated during the orchestra's golden anniversary season. The Franck work will be preceded by the composition of another Belgian composer, the Adagio for string orchestra by Guillaume Lekeu.

The Saturday "Pop" concert lists the overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," Berlioz's "Fantastic Symphony," the overture to Johann Strauss' "The Bat," his waltz, "On the Beautiful Blue Danube," and the prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

on the Aisle

by Claudia Cassidy

MYSTERIOUS and provocative rumors have been hovering about the University of Chicago's music department these past few months, and now enough of them have crystallized into fact to warrant publication. First of all, the university announces the appointment of Désiré Defauw as advisor in music, an honorary post long held by the late Frederick Stock, and the engagement of Hans Lange as director of instrumental music. Mr. Lange will conduct two new orchestras, the first to be called the University of Chicago Chamber orchestra, composed of a "select group of players," and the second, the University of Chicago Campus orchestra, to replace what was known as the University of Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Composers' Concert Series at U. of C.

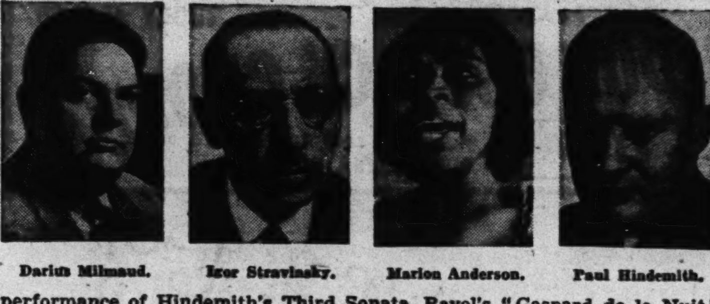
Several series of concerts are being planned in a program designed to expand the musical activities of the university, and the first of them is a set of four "composers' concerts," announced by Cecil Smith, executive secretary of the department of music, to be presented under the direction of Remi Gassman, composer, critic, and director of the composers' seminar. These concerts will be held at Mandel hall on the campus, starting at 8 o'clock, and the subscription price, aimed primarily at students, is $2.20. Single tickets will sell for 75 cents.

Whenever possible, Mr. Gassman plans to bring the composer into the picture and have him perform his own music. Fortunately, this can be done at the opening performance, Dec. 10, when Darius Milhaud will be in Chicago. Mr. Milhaud will play his Sonata for Piano and Two Violins with John Weicher and Franz Polesny, of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and the program also will hold three of his short chamber symphonies, directed by Mr. Lange; the first Chicago performance of his Concertino de Printemps, for violin and chamber orchestra, with Mr. Weicher as soloist, and the Trio for Piano, Clarinet and Violin.

Second Concert Jan. 21.

The second concert, Jan. 21, will be devoted at least in part to compositions of Igor Stravinsky, not yet announced. Mr. Stravinsky will be lecturing at Mandel hall the day before the concert, and it goes without saying that every effort will be made to persuade him into a stopover.

The third concert, Feb. 15, offers a piano recital by Willard MacGregor, who at one time studied here with Rudolph Ganz, and later became a pupil of Artur Schnabel. Mr. MacGregor, a painter of considerable note as well as a pianist, will play the world première of Paul Hindemith's "Ludus Tonalis," a kind of tonal game based on the model of Bach's Well Tempered Clavichord, and consisting of 12 fugues in the keys of the chromatic scale connected by interludes and preceded and followed by an introductory and a closing movement. He also will play the first Chicago performance of Hindemith's Third Sonata, Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit," and Gassman's Toccata, heard in Berlin some years ago, but new to Chicago. Mr. MacGregor will precede his recital by appearing with the chamber orchestra Feb. 11 on another series, probably playing Bach.



Darius Milhaud. Igor Stravinsky. Marion Anderson. Paul Hindemith.

The fourth of the composers' concerts, dated April 7, will present chamber music by the younger generation of Americans, and is likely to include music by Samuel Barber and William Schuman. Young composers who would like to be represented are asked to submit compositions to Mr. Gassman, who is himself at work on a suite for chamber orchestra, called "Music of A Summer Night."

Marian Anderson Sings Next Sunday.

Seven years ago next January, Marian Anderson walked out on the Auditorium stage to sing her first major Chicago recital, a memorable event in a generation of music. She has been returning ever since to a devoted public, and this season's visit is scheduled for next Sunday afternoon at the Civic Opera house, when she sings an unusual program composed of old Italian airs by Galuppi, de Capua and Marcello, a group of songs by Brahms, an aria from Gounod's "The Queen of Sheba," and several songs by Ralph Vaughan Williams, plus the indispensable spirituals.

Miss Anderson's has been the Cinderella story of a voice that fits the universal taste in listening, a voice that was making her an international idol when the war put a stop to overseas travel, a voice so beloved in her own country that all her available concert time was instantly absorbed.

You know her background, of course; how as a little girl she sang in a Negro church choir in Philadelphia, booming out the bass parts when necessary. It was about that time she became enamored of a beautiful violin, and saved up $4 to buy it, having no idea anything could cost more. Altho her local renown soon spread, the world had no inkling of the cello in her throat until she won a Lewisohn Stadium contest over 300 singers. After that she shot up so fast she has few rivals in the concert field.

A Prodigious Talent.

Perhaps you were listening last Sunday afternoon when the New York Philharmonic broadcast announced the illness of Bruno Walter and the last minute substitution of Leonard Bernstein, young assistant to Artur Rodzinski. Unfortunately, I had gone on a wild goose chase to Jeanette MacDonald's canceled recital, but reports of Mr. Bernstein's success are glowing. He had been told the night before that he might be called on, but thought it unlikely and went to a recital. On his return home, he sat up until 5:30 working on scores, just in case. At 9 o'clock Sunday morning he got word that he would appear, and he went at once to Walter's apartment to go over the scores. So Mr. Bernstein conducted his first public concert by a major symphony orchestra and was acclaimed "a prodigious talent." You may like knowing he is a man of parts, announced to do a boogie woogie score for a ballet about sailors on leave, called "Fancy Free," and choreographed by Jerome Robbins.

Can You — TRANSFORM YOUR PERSONALITY . . . become another person?

HAVE you ever envied the personal magnetism of others? Would it be an asset to you—in business or socially—if persons respected you immediately? Certainly it would be an advantage if your very presence inspired the confidence of others. Do your unconscious moods repel others? Merely trying to act like another never really deceives anyone. Boston Votes Its Approval at 1st Staging

NEW YORK [Special].—One of the delights of theatergoing is anticipation. It is, in fact, the most fun of all, for it never lets you down. Planning or hoping to see something is 100 per cent pleasure, whereas the actual seeing may sometimes, but not always, be something less. The public anticipation of Moss Hart's and the army air forces' "Winged Victory" surpasses anything in my fairly lengthy acquaintance with the stage.

Word about a hit gets around. It starts, perhaps, during rehearsals, and continues after the first out of town performance. One always wondered what Ziegfeld had in Pittsburgh, or what George White had in Atlantic City, or Gilbert Miller in Baltimore. New York has learned not to trust the judgment of other cities, just as other cities mistrust New York's. But if any metropolis is a gauge of what Broadway will like, it is Boston.

Boston's fervor for "Winged Victory" was boundless, with phrases like "The Great American Drama" and "Greatest Thing Since Shakespeare" being carried from the Hub by playgoing Paul Reveres.

The 44th street box office was scheduled to open 10 days before the opening of "Winged Victory." I thought I was doing several friends a favor by advising them to go there bright and early that Thursday morning and get tickets quietly and easily. "You'll have a tough time after the notices come out," I predicted, "so be smart and do it now." It was good advice—but the trouble was that everybody else in town seemed to have the same idea. The box office line was about a block long at the opening bell, and during the day the crowd kept six MP's busier than ants in an old tree trunk. The "take" at the window was close to $15,000 that first day, and the line has continued like that ever since then.

The first purchaser was a lad who had been waiting at the head of the line since 7 a. m. He works for a ticket speculator, but reporters covering the event were dumbfounded when the young man merely bought himself one balcony ticket.

At this writing I have not yet seen Mr. Hart's and the army's spectacle, but I have read it. It reads like good drama, but judging the value of a script is a risky business which has made even great showmen either paupers or crazy. I do know that "Winged Victory" is splendid reporting. It is nothing like Irving Berlin's historic "This Is the Army," which was soldiers giving a show. "Winged Victory" is soldiers being soldiers. It is a factual report on how American youth takes to the sky, from the plane crazy youngster stage to the time, 15 months after induction, when perfectly trained combat teams leave America behind and set off for the battlefronts. It is immense, and its many scenes surely must keep the show's five revolving stages spinning.

I can hardly wait to see it—and have been having a wonderful time anticipating it.

'KISS AND TELL'

Two of the best reasons for the success of "Kiss and Tell," at the Harris, are Patricia Kirkland, who plays the redoubtable Corliss, and Billy Saunders, the fancy talker from the house next door. Billy is just returning to the cast after an emergency appendectomy. [Seymour Photo.]

Brazil Has Plan to Give Help to Idle Musicians

Brazil has hit upon unique solutions of the problems of the unrewarded composer and the unemployed musician. According to Burle Marx, organizer and conductor of the Philharmonic orchestra of Rio de Janeiro, royalties for authors and composers are provided by requiring managers to obtain a visa or playing authorization from the Brazilian Society of Theatrical Authors.

This costs the concert or theater management the equivalent of 21 top price seats, and only after this is granted will the police authorize a performance.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

IT WAS 25 years ago that Children's Book week was first observed, and in the quarter century its inaugurators have been able to watch the interest in children's reading grow slowly but impressively. . . . A chart of that interest would look like a slow motion picture of the opening of a tight bud into a full blown flower. . . . Last week the Chicago public library was covering itself with glory and its juvenile members with blessings.

I still feel, as I did when I was a little girl and used to consider it the greatest boon when I was allowed to spend a half day in the big library, that those who read its books are in a peculiarly happy way "members" of the library. . . . Anybody, incidentally, can be a member of the Friends of the Chicago Public Library at the outlay of one round silver dollar or the lowest denomination of folding money. . . . The Friends held their annual meeting on Friday. . . . To celebrate Children's Book week, the Children's Reading Round Table had its second annual author-artist dinner, and if I had a column three times as long as this there would, astonishingly, be barely room for the description of the books which its members have had published this year. . . . It made every one wonder whether maybe Chicago has become the hub of juvenile writing without our realizing it.

Juveniles Have Big Sale.

Imagine a juvenile having a sale of 75,000 copies before publication. . . . Marjorie Barrows' "Timothy Tiger" suffered that glowing fate this fall. . . . "Glowing" is a good word for it, because Timothy's eyes glow in the dark. . . . And two of the three juveniles written by our fellow Chicagoan [Evanstonian, if you're going to be technical] Clara Ingram Judson, "They Came From France" and "People Who Work in the City and the Country," have been Junior Literary Guild choices this year.

One of the juvenile authors, Rebecca Caudill, whose first book, "Barrie and Daughter," came out this fall, told of her 8 year old daughter's helpful suggestion when her publishers wired asking if Mrs. Caudill had a preference for an illustrator for her book. . . . The daughter of the house, whose favorite book was "Ferdinand the Bull," promptly solved the problem thus: "Mother, why don't you get Robert Lawson to do the pictures? And then get Munro Leaf to write it."

Doesn't Like Saroyan.

In a couple of years that child may be like little 10 year old Joan Shephard, who plays in "Tomorrow the World." . . . She was on the Quiz Kid program last Sunday night and a friend of mine who has charge of that amusing quiz and quip half hour went back stage to see Joan and found her reading William Saroyan's "The Human Comedy." . . . Joan, simply and without any hesitancy, answered, when she was asked how she liked the book, "I just DON'T like Saroyan." She had read Saroyan first when she was 8 years old and spoke one line in one of his plays. . . . Another friend of mine recently called my attention to the fact that more and more people seem to be more and more like Saroyan characters. . . . He told me about a charming woman whom we both know who met some new children in the elevator of their apartment building, carried on a happy conversation with them, and left them, forever to be enchanted by the mystery of her identity; with: "O, you don't know who I am, do you? I've just returned from Fire Island."

Witty, Wacky People.

Almost any one of the hundreds of characters in Robert Casey's "Such Interesting People" could populate a Saroyan book or play. . . . They're all newspaper men and they all do fascinatingly witty, wacky things. . . . A few pages read aloud will cure the dourest dose of doldrums. . . . Most of the tales are too long to tell in this telephone-booth-like space, but here is one about the transposed captions on the pictures of the wife of the mayor of Fort Smith, Ark., just deceased, and of an old icehouse which had burned down . . . over the portrait of the late Mme. Mayor there appeared, "Old Eyesore Gone at Last."

One of the most interesting people to come our way last week was our peripatetic farmer-writer friend, Louis Bromfield, whose best sellers delight millions and whose earnest work for the Friends of the Land should delight millions more. . . . He quotes Dr. Hugh Bennett, whose "This Land We Defend," published last year, is the latest of many highly important books on soil conservation. . . . Dr. Bennett says that American culture is founded on nine inches of topsoil, and when that is gone [and Louis Bromfield scares you by statistics about how fast it is going] our vaunted and envied American way of life will be fini. . . . Louis Bromfield, a practical farmer himself, dedicates half of his time to preaching the gospel of soil conservation, and he preaches it with the conviction of a Billy Sunday, tho his text is somewhat more literary.

We May Go Hungry.

Incidentally, the latest release from the league of nations—[you may be surprised to know that it is functioning in statitistical its phases in Princeton, N. J.]—gives the depressing news that the agricultural position of Europe is weaker now, after four years of war, than it was in 1918, when it took seven years to get back to the pre-war level of food production. . . . If, as Louis Bromfield says menacingly, the present food shortage in America may conceivably not be temporary, it behooves every one of us to become a Friend of the Land and do something about our natural resources.

New S. M. A. President.

Louis Bromfield spoke informally, but so movingly that many of them promptly sent for membership blanks to the Friends of the Land, before the Society of Midland Authors. . . . He is vice president for Ohio of the S. M. A. . . . It was a retirement and induction ceremony, Arthur Meeker Jr. handing over the president's toga to Mary Hastings Bradley. . . . Among the fifty-odd members and guests who were present were two who had been charter members of the society, which was founded in 1914. . . . Edith Wyatt, about whom William Dean Howells told me with practically his dying breath that he considered her the best novelist the middle west had produced, and James Taft Hatfield, now retired from his academic life at Northwestern university, but still able and eager at 82 to oblige with a rendition of—and I consider this a bull's-eye for literary pep—"Pistol Packin' Mama."

Historian Tells Needs of Spanish

Reviewed by Dr. Melchior Palyi.

After feudalism broke up in Europe, all the large and small countries were transformed by powerful monarchs into modern states. The era of absolutism laid the foundations of national governments, created their administrative systems, and molded their incoherent masses into the shape of national units. History took a different course in Spain. Her absolutism was no political but a spiritual absolutism; no real national unit developed, nor a rational administration. The great Spanish kings were crusaders who managed to unite their peoples in the Catholic faith. Spain entered the industrial age with a religious and cultural unity, but as a political chaos; with a world empire abroad that had been lost, and with no foundation for sound economic growth at home.

The first part of Senor Madariaga's book which analyzes this historical setting in a masterful fashion, is a reprint of his "Spain" published in 1930, when the republic was instituted. It is a brilliant analysis, but not as searching as the more recent one in G. Brenan's "Spanish Labyrinth," reviewed in these columns a few months ago.

It is the second part of the present book, dealing with the civil war and its consequences, that raises it again to a first class contribution, and an entirely new one. With an objectivity and impartiality most unusual for a man who has been himself in the government [before 1935], he unravels the decade of Spanish civil war and its turmoils as nobody did it before. The two chief mischief makers, the semi-Communist Francisco Largo Caballero and especially the pro-Fascist

Ruth Power O'Malley, author of the novel, "Mrs. Cassatt's Children." It is about artists and Virginia aristocrats, and published by Houghton Mifflin.

Francisco Franco, are shown up in their motivations and actions without sentimental restraint or partisan bias. So are the Nazis and Fascists as well as the Russians, all of whom used Spain as the battleground for their ideologies, and for their diplomatic intrigues.

It is impossible to convey an idea of the wealth of insight and the charm of presentation which make this book a most enjoyable and most instructive reading.

Madariaga is a great historian, and a wise statesman, too. His outlook on the future culminates in the advice not to try to make out of Spain another Great Britain or Switzerland. Freedom to the Spaniard means something very different from what it means to us. He had too much of it in everyday life; what he needs is discipline and organization to fit him into the modern world. The problem is to provide him with a political discipline that permits economic and social progress, without the straight jacket of fascism or communism. But "the first positive need is to raise his standard of living and the density of population in which his life is set." Then, "the Spaniard must be helped to lay stress on things, to develop coöperation, continuity, technique, method, the 'sense of growth, all the patient, hum-drum virtues of every day collective life."

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Charles Collins.

THE arrival of a book that nobody can understand, that seems to be a chaos of esoteric nonsense, and that was privately published by some unbalanced worshiper of the mysterious wisdom of the orient always causes a flutter among the auxiliaries of this literary section. They say, "Give it to Bookman's Holiday," as if we were the office specialist in screwballism. They even fetch it to us with expectant smiles, and are rueful when we hand it back with a discouraging "So what?"

Such publications make fairly frequent appearances in the book reviewing workshops, for it seems that any outpatient of Bedlam can appeal for critical attention if he has money enough to pay for his printing and binding. There are, no doubt, firms that specialize in such jobs. The latest example that has been called to our attention is a fairly majestic and well printed tome called "Trismegetus Revealed," which will undoubtedly be selling for 5 cents at the bookstalls catering to Bug House square within a week or two. Our only recommendation in such cases is, "File it with James Joyce's 'Finnegans Wake' and 'The Secret Life of Salvador Dali.'" Credentialed literary critics always regard this remark as quite distressing.

"Here is a bookish incident which may interest you. A month ago I read a book by Max White, called 'Tiger! Tiger!' and enjoyed it very much. By a curious coincidence I received a letter from my new company commander in North Africa asking me the extent of my injury and wishing me well. His letter was signed Max White. In answering, I inquired whether or not he was the author of the book I had just read—and sure enough, he was the same Max White!"

Max White's "Tiger! Tiger!" [a title taken from William Blake's most famous poem] was published in 1940. It is a story of the emotional and artistic development of an American painter during his studies in France and Spain and after his return to this country. It was well received by reviewers, one of whom described it as "almost as dramatic as the lives of Van Gogh and Gauguin." Max White's unprofessional name is Charles William White.

The whoopee over the musical show, "Oklahoma," a roaring hit in New York and Chicago, has contained no plaudits for Lynn Riggs, the author of the play upon which it was based, altho the libretto of the frolic closely follows the pattern of his "Green Grow the Lilacs." He was born, like Will Rogers, near Claremore, Okla., a town frequently mentioned in the show's dialog. He was a tenderfoot on Broadway when "Green Grow the Lilacs" was staged by the Theater Guild in 1931, and his play contained cowboy folk songs which do not appear in the musical version. His writings include a book of poems called "The Iron Dish." In recent years Riggs was associated with the University of North Carolina, but he is now in military service.

If you want to learn about women from books, you might try "About Women," a compilation of 21 short stories, edited by Helen Reed [Tower Fiction]. It is a good assortment of tales by and about women and the only vintage author represented is Edith Wharton, whose "Roman Fever" is a neat job of plot snapping.

"About Women" permitted us to discover "The Cup of Alteration," by Phyllis Bottome, which deserves high rating among fiction of the theater. The story is in the form of a letter from a world-famous actress to her son, reviewing her career and her amours, and revealing herself as a femme fatale of the first class. This character is plainly identifiable as Sarah Bernhardt, and the men in her life are easy guesses. One admirer, whom she snubbed, was Kaiser Wilhelm; another, who passed her up with courtly suavity, was Edward VII. The actual lovers of her confessions were an actor who sounds like an early version of Lou Tellegen; a Jewish millionaire, unrecognizable at long range; a Russian prince, also hard to trace, and a dramatist who may have been Jean Richepin of Bernhardt's youth.

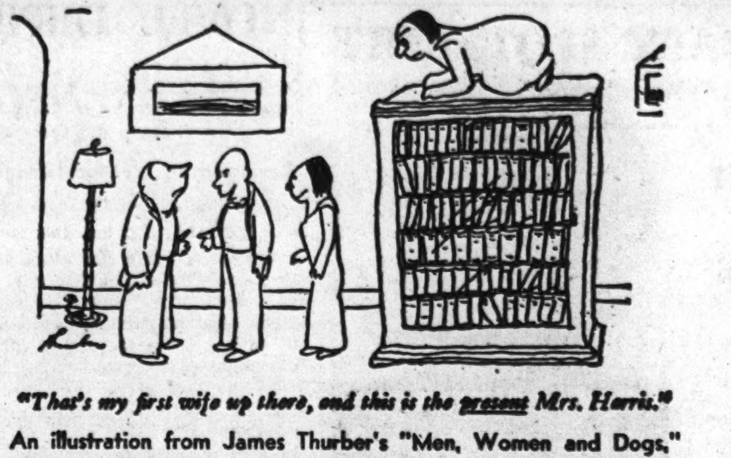
"Thesaurus of the Arts," by Albert E. Wier [Putnam], has won a place in our working library. It is useful for quick reference on names and subjects associated with drama, music, radio, painting, screen, television, literature, sculpture, architecture, and ballet. We never will need it, however, so far as radio and television are concerned. The entries total 8,500, one of which informs us that Burton E. Stevenson, of the "Home Book of Verse," etc., is engaged in preparing "The Home Book of Proverbs, Maxims, and Familiar Sayings." Watch for this work in 1944 if you are curious about who hit Billy Patterson or the origin of "charley horse."



"That's my first wife up there, and this is the present Mrs. Harris."

Writes New and Better 'Enoch Arden'

"TOMORROW IS FOREVER," by Gwen Bristow. [Crowell, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Arthur Frederic Otis.

"Tomorrow Is Forever" is "Enoch Arden" done over again, and so much more splendidly. It is a book for every parent of a 17 year old boy in these times. Yes, and for the boy himself, and for all the other millions who have permitted themselves to crawl inside a shell of cynicism regarding the causes and purposes of this war and our part in it.

Elizabeth was 18 in 1916 when she quit college to marry Arthur Kittredge. A year later he went to war, and all her life was built around the day of his return. Then came the telegram reporting his death in a German hospital, and only the memory of his courage gave her strength to start again, to marry Spratt Herlong in California, and to live a normal, happy life with her husband and three children.

But Arthur wasn't dead. Pitifully mutilated, he was given back his life by a great Jewish surgeon in Germany, and learned that he had much to live for. He took the name of Erich Kessler, became the assistant of the doctor who saved him, and when both the doctor and his wife died as a result of Nazi persecution, escaped from Germany with their 5 year old daughter.

Always wondering about Elizabeth, he found work in Hollywood, and was assigned to do a story with Spratt Herlong. How he and Elizabeth met, how he kept his identity from her while helping her conquer the perplexities and fear growing out of this new war—how he opened the eyes of her boy to the real reasons for fighting—all these make a beautiful story.

Not in a long time has there been finer writing than Gwen Bristow's passage in which Kessler talks to the boy about the devastating effects of fascism on the future thru the death of children who represented the genius of the future.

There are unexpected bits of beauty springing out at you thru the story, like a rainbow in a cobweb. "Whatever she saw stabbed her with its own small blade of memory." And the end is eminently right.

If your faith in mankind needs touching up, I suggest that you read "Tomorrow Is Forever." It is—yes, I'll go ahead and say it—it is magnificent!

It Is Crazy; It Is Funny; It's Thurber

"MEN, WOMEN, AND DOGS," by James Thurber. [Harcourt, Brace, $3.]

Reviewed by Will Davidson.

James Thurber may be almost blind, but he sees with a sometimes terrible clarity. The strange animal called man has no secrets from this artist. In crude, almost childish sketches he is depicted in all his bland idiocy, his strange schizophrenia, his whimsical bumbling.

Thurber's grotesque portraits of mad things are collected now in book form—the first such anthology in 10 years; and it is a cause for celebration among those who like their art on the haywire side. In the collection you'll find the famous FIRST Mrs. Harris, up on her bookcase; you'll laugh, with a slight shudder, at the captionless scene wherein a timid man approaches his house, the rear of which has in some Dali-esque manner become the frowning head of the awaiting spouse.

It is no wonder that some of Thurber's drawings have been included in salons of modern art. He has the surrealists beat to a frazzle. All the dreamlike quality of their technique is there, but it is presented with startling clarity in the sort of hasty sketches you'd like to make when you're playing with that scratch pad during a phone call to the bureau of internal revenue. Mr. Thurber is the Yankee Doodle boy.

Biography of H. W. Grady.

The intimate personal papers of Henry W. Grady, Atlanta editor, are woven into the biography of this noted southern leader by Dr. Raymond B. Nixon, professor of journalism at Emery university, published by Alfred A. Knopf.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

MEMBERS of the Chicago Area branch of the Jewish Book Council of America are making plans for an elaborate celebration of Jewish Book week, Dec. 12 to 19. . . . Louis Zara, author of "Against This Rock," is chairman of the arrangements committee; Mrs. M. L. Purvin is vice chairman, Mrs. A. B. Counselbaum is secretary, and H. L. Meites is treasurer. . . . As defined by Mr. Zara, the celebration is designed to publicize "any and all works that pertain to any phase of Jewish life, religion, or ethics, whether those works are written by Jews or non-Jews." . . . In addition to the week's observance, the period starting yesterday and ending Dec. 19 is being devoted to a series of exhibits of great Jewish books, starting with the Bible; rabbinic literature, ceremonial objects, and rare manuscripts. . . . Displays have been arranged at the Chicago public library, at the Jewish People's institute, and at Anshe Emet temple. Displays at other points in the city and suburbs are being arranged.

Are you writing, or thinking about writing, a history or a biography and haven't the time or the financial means to complete it? . . . Then maybe you'd like to know that Alfred A. Knopf, New York publisher, is offering a fellowship, valued at $2,500, to assist a writer in each of those two fields. . . . No fiction award is being made by Mr. Knopf this year; instead, with the war on, it has been decided to place the emphasis on nonfiction. . . . Further details may be had by writing the publisher at 501 Madison avenue, New York City. . . . Another prospective award announced last week: The Bruce Publishing company, Milwaukee, and Extension magazine, Chicago, are sponsoring a prize novel competition opening Dec. 1 and closing next May 31. . . . The winner of the winning manuscript will receive $500 in cash and be guaranteed serialization in the magazine at $100 per instalment and publication in book form on a royalty basis of 10 per cent for the first 10,000 books sold. . . . The purpose of the contest is "to develop new authors and elicit further interest in the novel as a creative art form." . . . Information and entry blanks may be obtained by writing Robert C. Broderick, fiction editor at Bruce's, or Eileen O'Hayer, associate editor of Extension.

Play Deserves a Lasting and Solid Success

By Claudia Cassidy.

Now that the shouting has died down and the reviewers have shoveled the adjectives back into their cozy bins, perhaps not to be squandered so joyously for another decade, "Oklahoma!" is a wow at the Erlanger and I wish I could say the same for "Tomorrow the World," at the Selwyn. It's doing all right, but that isn't good enough in this clamorous year of 1943. It deserves the solid and lasting success to take the Selwyn right off the market, adding to the booking jam in spite of incantations sent up by frustrated producers who want the house.

"Tomorrow the World" is one of those shows that has to build its public. It has no glittering stars to blazon from the marquee, and its title puzzles many, tho it is lifted bodily from the once proud boast of the Nazis, "Today we rule Germany, tomorrow the world." It isn't, except by implication, a war play, but rather a domestic comedy with high overtones of melodrama and a searing threat of tragedy. It gets hold of you with a bulldog grip and leaves you hanging on the edge of your chair in suspense that isn't resolved until the final curtain.

Three roles in particular go home with you, the two children played so vividly by Dickie Tyler and Joan Shepard, and the midwestern university professor created with such authoritative skill by Paul McGrath. The children are personalities who make good playgoing, but they are more than that, too. They are living illustrations of our point of view about children, as opposed to the Nazi point of view, and they remind you, in case you had forgotten, of Paul Lukas' impassioned plea in "Watch on the Rhine" when he said, "I want a childhood for every child." One of the most deeply satisfactory moments in current playgoing comes in "Tomorrow the World" when they finally crack the Nazi armor bludgeoned on little Emil Bruckner, and you know he is going to get a chance to be a child.

SMILING START OF A STORMY VISIT

It's worth seeing while you wait your turn for "Oklahoma!"

Speaking of "Oklahoma!" — and who can help it?—all lists of credits seem to lead right back to Oscar Hammerstein, who set the pace when he wrote the book and lyrics. Without his stagewise skill, "Green Grow the Lilacs" might have missed this musical reincarnation, which is even more enchanting than the unforgotten original. It is hard to imagine a fresher, gayer, or more buoyant show, so firmly knit in creative texture that even the scene between Curly the cowboy and Jud the degenerate retains its significance without snagging the silken flow of performance. Mr. Hammerstein stamped "Oklahoma!" with a clean and brilliant, and yet a dreamy, beauty. It wouldn't surprise me if he got a lot of his ideas from watching Agnes de Mille's "Rodeo," which has precisely those qualities. No matter where he got them, he carried them out, and because of them Richard Rodgers discovered a new beauty in his music, and Rouben Mamoulian transferred it all, exquisitely, to the stage.

Every one wants to know where our first rate company came from, and it's a pleasure to tell you while the Theater Guild preens itself modestly on the sidelines. The New York troupe opened March 31, and April 1 fooled nobody. The Guild was in possession of a resounding hit that threatens to smash all records. That dazed but delighted organization began at once to stir itself in behalf of a national company, meaning ours.

The easiest thing of all was to find a Curly, tho you might not think it simple to discover two handsome baritones in war time. But Harry Stockwell was understudy to Alfred Drake, the original cowhand, and he had stepped in successfully when Mr. Drake was ill. First a music student at Eastman, later a newspaper man, he sang in several musicals, including "As Thousands Cheer," then was claimed by Hollywood. You certainly heard his voice as Prince Charming in "Snow White."

Evelyn Wyckoff, who plays Laurey, really had me upset at the opening. I saw her at the St. Louis municipal opera two years ago and came back saying, "That girl has more to offer musical comedy than any one I have seen since Marilyn Miller." She would have been the Magnolia in "Show Boat" had the contemplated revival gone thru. Then she bobbed up in her first major role in Chicago, and she had succumbed to woman's eternal temptation to do something about her hair. The result disguised her beauty for one full act, but nothing could disguise her charm or the soaring sweetness of her singing.

Yes, yes, just wait a minute, I'm getting to Ado Annie, that dulcet creature of the dimples, played by Pamela Britton. You won't believe me, but Miss Britton is straight out of the night clubs, by way of being Celeste Holm's understudy. David Burns, the Persian or what have you peddler, is a comedian with a past. He created the role of Banjo [Harpo Marx] in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," played in "Pal Joey," recently appeared with Willie Howard in "My Dear Public," and made several pictures, including "Sidewalks of London."

Lou Polan, who plays Jud, and in another mood could impersonate Abraham Lincoln, is a Russian who toured for years with Walter Hampden, and was most recently here as Sgt. Ruby in "The Eve of St. Mark." Dancing Walter Donahue is the youngest brother of the late Jack Donahue, whose routines he perpetuates. Mary Marlo, the Aunt Eller of the tale, came up out of variety, and Dave Mallen, who has the job of being Ado Annie's father, has spent almost a lifetime impersonating George M. Cohan.

Tops in the ballet is Sonia Wojcikowska, daughter of Leon Wojcikowska, who was the batlike Fate in the first productions of Massine's "Presages." If the other dancing principals approached her crisp conviction, the one weak spot in our "Oklahoma!" would turn into added delight.

Balance Between Taxes and College Gifts Urged

Contributions Are Off Since Pearl Harbor

By the Rev. John Evans.

The post-war status of the independent four year liberal arts college was seen in a commencement address as the index of the country's drift toward socialism. The axis on which the future of such institutions hinges was cited as the question of whether the people of this country want to retain the American form of government and the American way of life.

This speaker, Dr. Donald J. Cowling, president of Carelton college, Northfield, Minn., and founder of the American Council on Education during the last war, told the commencement audience at William Jewell college, Mo., that people never drift toward democracy, when they drift it is toward socialism.

Dr. Cowling made it clear to the convocation that any disproportionate rise of tax supported institutions represents the socialistic drift, which, if continued beyond reasonable proportions, would threaten the existence of all types of voluntary institutions. He cited figures on income, taxes, and gifts to show the present situation.

"National totals for income, taxes, and gifts before Pearl Harbor make it perfectly clear that the American people have not been giving according to their resources, nor in sufficient amounts to maintain the institutions and organizations necessary to the existence of our type of democracy," Dr. Cowling declared.

"Our national income for the year ending June, 1937, was about 64 billion dollars. Our taxes that year were over 14 billion dollars, and all our gifts amounted to less than two billion dollars.

"Unless we can find some way of maintaining a balance between gifts and taxes [not including the cost of the war], we shall not be able to maintain balance between institutions supported privately and those maintained by public funds, a balance on which depends the continuance of American democracy."

Dr. Cowling said the most encouraging direction in which to look for greatly increased new voluntary support for the four year liberal arts colleges, as well as for other institutions characteristic in American life is in the contributions by corporations. He explained that until recently corporations, almost without exception, have sought to avoid making any gifts of importance. They are now coming to realize, he added, that systematic giving and private enterprise go hand in hand, and that tax support and public control are inevitable companions.

"It will be impossible to restore and maintain the giving in this country on anything like a basis of equality with taxation [aside from the cost of the war] unless corporations voluntarily take part in giving as they are compelled to take part in our system of taxation. Wherever there is a unit that can be taxed, that unit, as such, also should be a source of gifts.

"If the American public, including corporations, can be educated and persuaded to maintain a system of gifts adequate to the needs of democracy, there is no question that the colleges of liberal arts will be given their share. A heavy burden of responsibility rests upon the trustees and presidents of these institutions to see that widespread programs of public instruction and persuasion regarding the necessity of gifts in a democracy are effectively carried on."

Another point in Dr. Cowling's program was increased interest in the independent colleges on the part of the churches, which in many cases, originally founded them. He explained that the relations between colleges and churches during the last 75 years have not been as strong as previously because of the fear on conflict between science and religion. He added that this misunderstanding is gradually clearing up and that the churches are beginning to take a fresh interest in their colleges.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The General Platoff Don Cossack Russian male chorus, which appears this afternoon at the Civic Opera house at 3:30, derives its title not from its conductor, as you may have supposed, but from a famous Cossack general of a century ago who became a hero when Napoleon was driven back from Moscow. The conductor is Nicholas Kostrukoff, who organized the chorus among Russian exiles in Prague in 1926. Since then the organization has played over 4,000 concerts on every continent of the globe. Today's program will consist of Russian liturgical music, folk songs, Cossack war songs and the dancing of the Caucasian Lesginka and Kosatchok.

Buying vitamins is a serious business—a serious investment. Unless you want to throw your money away, you should know how to buy them. Vitamins today are virtually staples. 90% of the capsules sold in the United States come from the same source. But with different names . . . different packages . . . and most important of all, different unitage. Vitamins should properly be bought by units. High unitage means high quality, low unitage—lack of it. Vitamin-Quota, one of America's largest distributors, has for years preached these truths. By eliminating dealer discounts, high promotion costs and expensive ballyhoo, Vitamin-Quota lowered costs up to 40%. Nazi Power a Myth, Says Maj. Lessner

"BLITZKRIEG AND BLUFF," by Maj. Erwin Lessner. [Putnam, $2.75.]

Reviewed by William Shinnick.

This book, subtitled "The Legend of Nazi Invincibility," is an expert's attempt to show that the German army has a strong back and a weak intellect and that Nazi diplomacy is no better off. Lessner makes his points at least to a level of plausibility. He does it well, too; his writing is compact, lucid, and straightforward.

The Nazi military machine, the author holds, is a fearsome thing so far as striking power, timing, and tactical excellence are concerned. It was bred and born to advance, to smite, to keep rolling; Maj. Lessner asserts that it must stay in its groove and roll on until it conquers or is destroyed. But it is, he adds, invincible only if opposition is scant or enemy commanders permit their forces to meet it headon in slugging matches.

In his view the Nazi generals, almost without exception, have been guilty of sins against sound military maxims. Von Bock left an unguarded flank when he moved the Hitler hordes into Austria; he did the same thing in Russia and brought on, with his carelessness, the final debacle at Stalingrad. Reichenau, von Arnim and even the much praised Rommel are put on Maj. Lessner's pan and well fried out as military geniuses. "What, after all, did Rommel do?" the major asks, and answers himself. The desert fox did well until he fixed himself in an untenable position at El Alamein and couldn't extricate himself when a general with an imagination attacked in an unorthodox [to the German mind] manner.

Always, in the days of Nazi invincibility, the opponents of Hitler had no plans, the author asserts, and lost largely because of that and the lack of will to fight. Hitler and his generals gambled time after time and were lucky.

The major gives the impression that stern resistance even by Austria and Czecho-Slovakia might have meant disaster for the reich; a real fight by the French at the time of Dunkirk might have been enough to shatter the few divisions facing them. Indeed, he believes that the Poles were ready to fight on, and with good prospects, when the Russians moved in behind them.

He asserts that Russia had demanded of the allies territory that included the Baltic republics, a part of Finland and a slice of Poland, and that Hitler bought Stalin with a similar deal.

The most interesting contention in the book is that Hitler's greatest blunder was made early in 1940, when France and Britain asked the Norwegians and Swedes to let a force of 100,000 pass thru into Finland and aid that much tortured land against the soviets. Hitler forbade the Scandinavians to allow this, Lessner states. Then he speculates: If the expedition really had gone into Finland, then it was inevitable that either the allies or the Russians would have had to take in the Germans as helpers and—who could doubt it—bosses. The analysis of Hitler's reasons for making his mistake are intriguing.

Maj. Lessner writes authoritatively. He is as dogmatic as a radio announcer, and we wish the publisher or the book had told us the army in which he got his rank.

Tough Story of Marines at Bataan

"RETREAT, HELL!" by William Martin Camp. [Appleton-Century, $3.]

Reviewed by James E. Sloan.

Based on the heroic defense of Bataan and powerful as a blockbuster bomb, "Retreat, Hell!" is one of the first good novels of American fighting men in America's war—that in the western Pacific. With no holds barred and in language as tough as the men themselves, it tells the story of a Musketeer-like trio of marines of the 4th regiment who late in 1941 were ordered from Shanghai to the Philippines on the eve of the war. Straight from their Russian "princesses" and the good times that could be had for the 20 Chinese dollars that one American dollar bought they plunged into the holocaust of Manila, Bataan, and Corregidor.

Ringing with the utmost in fictional authenticity, Mr. Camp's tough story depicts the horrors of the Jap raids on Manila, the bestial enemy's attacks on hospitals, the tragic flight from the Cavite navy yard thru a pathetic horde of refugees, the marines' baptism of blood on Bataan, the horrible, endless flood of Japs that poured in regardless of how many thousand were slaughtered, the specter of disease that stalked constantly thru the ranks of battle-torn Yanks, the hollow hope that lent a touch of synthetic cheer, the foredoomed attack launched by the pitifully battered marines, and the retreat to and final stand on Corregidor.

Mr. Camp no doubt will find many friends in Maywood, Ill., whose glorious sons wrote such flaming history on Bataan. He gets awfully angry because no reënforcements or supplies were sent to the Philippines, but were sent by the administration to England, instead.

"Retreat, Hell!" draws its title from the classic epithet of Capt. Lloyd Williams as his marine unit arrived at Belleau Wood, France, in the course of that epic battle of 1918: "Retreat, hell! We just got here." It's that kind of a book, too; tougher than Hemingway at his toughest, a man's story about a man's war. It definitely is not for the squeamish, but if you can take war stripped of its glamor and shocking in its realism, you will find thrilling entertainment in its 530 action packed pages.

NOVEL DEPICTS HEROIC DEEDS OF RUSSIANS

"THE RUNNING TIDE," by Irina Aleksander, translated from the Russian by Bernard Guilbert Guerney. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst.

As a factory worker, army nurse, and guerrilla fighter the Russian woman has taken her place among the heroic figures of this war. Now we have a novel based on the life story of a Russian seawoman, and it adds to the stature of present day Russian womanhood.

In the book's opening scene, Galina Sedova, third mate of a soviet merchant ship, is a guest of honor in a New York banquet hall. Far from being a Tugboat Annie, she is a fragile figure, standing straight and proud with the little red flag of the soviet merchant marine on the sleeves of her uniform. She has been in the burning cities of the Baltic, in bitter, defiant, siege-weary Leningrad, in the ruins of Murmansk. She has a husband somewhere at sea and an infant son in Russia. But she stands there slender and diminutive, with childlike but stern eyes. She makes a little speech—three sentences in careful English. What kept her from saying more, from telling of the terror, the fury, and the grief, was "the pride of a great catastrophe."

From that scene the story goes back to Galya's childhood, when she sat on a cliff above the Pacific at Vladivostok and her dreams carried her away on the running tide. Even then she had an austere and searching curiosity. She determined to follow the sea.

A few years later she was in Leningrad, enrolled in the naval academy. Here she took her place in a varied company of young Russians, and in these chapters of her life there is abundant evidence of the energy, purpose, and vitality which Russia is so eloquently demonstrating to the world. To Leningrad came young men and women from all over the vast soviet union. They studied in many fields and prepared for a new age. A long Russian tradition lay behind them, but it was the bright Russian future that burned in their minds and their faces.

That future changed violently into war. A training cruise gave way to a desperate errand of mercy, carrying fugitives from a burning Baltic port. When Galya was back in Leningrad, the city was dark and the Germans were at hand. Here, in the most intense and eloquent chapters of the novel, are memorable vignettes of the suffering, toil and resolution of a great city under siege. While German shells were exploding in the city Galya took her examinations. Then she joined her ship in the bombscarred harbor of Murmansk and set out on the perilous voyage to America.

Galya's youth had been passed in great toil and great dreams, and so she was strong enough to survive a great catastrophe. The ardor of her spirit lives in the pages of this novel.

Traditions Disturbed When Youth Strikes Out in Life

"ALSO THE HILLS," by Frances Parkinson Keyes. [Julian Messner, $3.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

The measure of value in a generation is indicated in the measure of its most enviable persons. And in a war generation these are the men or women who best serve our country. "Also the Hills," a very long and romantic story, is about a group of young people, all in different war projects, all with the same aim.

Mrs. Keyes shows great ingenuity in keeping her large number of characters properly arranged. They are as numerous as in a Balzac novel, tho less diverse. The scene is the ancestral home on Farman Hill which is, apparently, in Vermont, tho as Carl van Doren once said of Zona Gale's "Friendship Village," "it actually stood on a confectionery shelf of the fiction shop, preserved in a thick sirup and set up where a tender light could strike across it at all hours."

Daniel and Serena Farman live on their wind-swept hill, and expect their children to be contented and happy within its security for the rest of their lives. However, when war comes both the girls and the boys strike out for themselves, and seek individual careers. They get into considerable trouble, according to their parents, but trouble bears another name in the dictionary of youth. However, the Farmans' ideas on the matter all go by the board as they relinquish the lives their forebears led and undertake to work out individual destinies.

It is curious the way each generation suffers thru the independence of their young. The adjustments involved fill older people with a kind of desolation, as they see traditions smashed and disciplines shattered. The Farmans were deeply rooted in the homely, the amiable, and the altruistic, and their children's independence bombed their last bulwark.

The denouement comes when a young Frenchwoman who is married to a Farman son comes back to live in the ancestral halls and proves to the old folks that life, when dedicated to the service of others, is doubly worthwhile. Thereupon they begin working to win the war and acquire a faint glimmering of their progeny's various goals.

Many writers have described the village metaphor, but it has seldom been used as a nucleus from which different lines strike forth, as in "Also the Hills." Edgar Lee Masters, with his Spoon River Anthology, concentrated on the ironical and tender, the satirical and sympathetic, all within the confines of Spoon River. Tarkington has interpreted the village as a happy and an innocent unity. Mrs. Deland wrapped her characters in village traditions. Sherwood Anderson concentrated on industrial protest.

All these novelists and many more have come to town, so to say, or rather come to the village. But Mrs. Keyes takes the other road, and travels from her village out into the world, making a long and circuitous journey with her many, many youthful characters, and bringing them all back home bigger and better people. Every one, everywhere, she says, is fighting the war. Also the hills.

A New Giant in Industry: the Plastics

"HANDBOOK OF PLASTICS," by Herbert R. Simonds and Carleton Ellis, assisted by Capt. M. H. Bigelow and advisory committee. [D. Van Nostrand, $10.]

Reviewed by Arthur Bergholz.

In the last 15 years of its development the plastics industry has expanded twice as rapidly as did the steel industry in its formative period. Plastics is one of the great frontiers in our industrial economy. The creation of molding powders [and resin] and their conversion into industrial and commercial products affords limitless opportunities.

Essential to the orderly growth of this new industry are technical books in plastics and related fields. "Handbook of Plastics" is a major contribution in this direction. It contains an exhaustive treatment of the fundamentals and technology of the plastics industry.

The technical worker will find comprehensive treatments of the state of the industry, the physical and chemical properties of plastics and their production, manufacture and finishing.

There is an appendix of valuable supplementary tables. There is a collection of conversion tables, a general glossary, a chemical glossary, a list of trade marks and trade names, and finally the all-important bibliography to guide the reader to further study.

It is always a pleasure to read in the vital field of technical literature a work which is the product of mature and disciplined knowledge. "Handbook of Plastics" affords such pleasure. The editors ably assisted by an advisory committee of technical experts have done a superb job.

Erskine Reviews Notable Book on Human Relations

"MAN THE MEASURE," by Erich Kahler. [Pantheon Books, $5.]

-Reviewed by John Erskine.

Author of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," "The Voyage of Captain Bart," etc.

This is a remarkable book, not only for its central idea but for its implications at the present moment. The central idea is supported by a review of history which is large and stimulating. Most readers will wish the conclusions were more cheerful, but it is hard to see how any other conclusions could honestly be drawn from the evidence.

The evolution of man from an animal condition thru primitive stages to the contemporary degrees of civilization has often been traced before, but Dr. Kahler has another purpose; he would write the history of that which distinguishes man from the animal, the history of those qualities of heart and mind which make him human. Man has adapted himself often and in many ways to his environment; he has invented and perfected for himself conveniences and comforts, instruments and methods of war and commerce, forms of government; his discoveries and his explorations are without number, and when we add them all up we are not disposed to deny that he has made progress. The difference between the Neanderthal man and Dante or Shakespeare testifies, as Dr. Kahler says, to some kind of evolution. But once the Neanderthal man developed the distinguishing traits of the human spirit, how fast and in what direction did that spirit evolve? How far has it evolved today?

Man is distinguished from the animals by his faculty of going beyond himself. He steps out of the animal world into his own characteristic region when his interest transcends immediate needs and satisfactions, and he begins to live vicariously and sympathetically in lives not his. Thru this enlargement of imagination he becomes an individual, not simply an isolated creature but a personality conscious of himself.

Individuality has developed in many ways, some more commendable than others, but most significantly thru religion. Loyalty to the city, as in ancient Greece, produced one kind of individual, loyalty to the state, as in ancient Rome, led to empire and world citizenship. The nature of that citizenship and the character of the individual changed prodigiously when the idea of Rome, mistress of the world, was raised to the concept of the City of God.

The more unselfish the human individual becomes the more concern he has for the welfare of his neighbors. He accepts the good of society as his chief obligation. Gradually perceiving the imperfections of society he tries to remedy them. He invents techniques and mechanical devices for increasing human comfort, and he facilitates the distribution and exchange of these benefits among nations. He evolves, it might seem, logically from the first glimpse beyond himself to a comprehensive insight into the problems of the whole race.

Unfortunately this evolution, however logical, is attended by two disasters. Society, when organized to the utmost, becomes not an association of human beings but a rigid machine, an instrument of terrific power, even a juggernaut. The interests of society as a whole advance at the expense of the individual, and paradoxically the distinctive human quality, the inner spiritual life, out of which developed the social conscience, by a partial application of that conscience may be annihilated.

Dr. Kahler is saying, of course, that naziism is the logical end of this process. Naziism is highly intelligent in the use of technologies, diabolically intelligent in organizing society for its purposes, but naziism destroys the individual, that inner world in each of us which distinguishes man from the animals.

If Dr. Kahler said no more than this, his book would be only a war time argument, but he points out honestly and bravely that we and the other opponents of the Nazis are headed in the same direction as our enemies; the civilization which we defend is not essentially different from the civilization we oppose. He sees little evidence that the soul of individual man has a happy prospect with us. Naziism is more diabolical because it has deliberately hastened its progress toward a bad end, but we follow in the same path, however unwilling we are to admit it.

The conclusion of the book, therefore, is this, that our plans for peace or for a better world will offer little hope unless we advance to a higher plane than the human race has yet reached. History completes a cycle; the individual struggled out of the primeval jungle, became nobly conscious of his own soul, saw the value of that soul, of all souls, recognized an obligation to his fellows —then organized his social relations until they crowded out his relation to himself, and his individual soul became atrophied, he being at last only part of the machine which he had created. Of what use will it be to bind up wounds, relieve the sick and starving, wreak justice on assassins and murderers, if our intention is only to continue in the course pursued before, the course which led to this catastrophe? The social conscience must remain, but also we must recover the concept of the individual soul, if society is to be a community of living spirits, rather than an alliance of Frankensteins.

Meet the Happiest Actor in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD.—There's one star who says boldly and sincerely that he's the "happiest actor in Hollywood." That is a lot of territory to cover but Eddie Bracken insists that he is just that, regardless of anything that is taking place in the world wide movie industry. Bracken's current ecstatic condition is the result of the story which Preston Sturges has written as a starring vehicle for him. It is titled "Hail the Conquering Hero" and Bracken's role is the biggest Sturges has ever written for a single star. This means something when you remember how well Sturges has done for Brian Donlevy, Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Joel McCrea, Claudette Colbert, Veronica Lake, and Betty Hutton.

"IRON MAJOR"

Ruth Warrick handles a featured role in "The Iron Major" now on the Palace screen. Pat O'Brien plays the male lead.

Also Doubling.

HOLLYWOOD.—Two women and four men, heading the cast of "Gangway for Tomorrow," compared notes, found that truth is at least as strange as fiction. In the picture, they form a "Share-the-Ride Club" of war workers. In private life the six—Margo, Robert Ryan, John Carradine, Harry Davenport, Amelita Ward, James Bell—each also belongs to a similar car pool.

This Town Called Hollywood

By Philip Scheuer

HOLLYWOOD [Special]. — Hey, B. S. Pully is in town. Not B. S. Pully, Esq.; just B. S. Pully. Unless you've been a habitue of eastern night clubs, the name won't mean much to you—yet. But it will, brother—especially if B. S. has anything to say about it.

We met at Romanoff's, which Pully casually described to me on the phone as his hangout. However, I observed that Mike Romanoff looked right thru him. Not that that proves anything. Prince Mike looks thru everybody. Regardless, we met at Romanoff's.

B. S. Pully is a big hulking guy who could pass as Vic McLaglen's double. It's his voice that gets you—a cross between Lionel Stander's and Zero Mostel's, but in spades. B. S. himself likened it to a cow comin' into the room, a storm outside. "You might call me," he said, genially, "the Frank Sinatra of the poolrooms."

Except for the time he borrowed his old man's pants to look older and did a song and dance at a 3d avenue theater in New York, winning an amateur contest, B. S. hasn't appeared on the stage. Or on the radio. Or on the screen—altho he's played in three unreleased movies. But the whole chain of niteries, starting in the Bronx and sweeping on downtown Manhattan, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Cleveland, has known B. S. Pully as an M. C. and self-styled "risque comic" for nearly 20 years. Most of the time he's been accompanied by a stooge to whom he refers as "Mr. Gump" or just as "my partner."

Pully is full of lusty reminiscences about the stunts he and Mr. Gump have pulled thru the years. "Like the time we got a tip on a horse," he related, "and only 30 cents between us! Well, my partner had on a new suit, so I planted him in the gents' room in the subway with 20 cents' worth of newspapers and magazines, took his suit to the nearest pawnbroker, put the loan on the horse—and he won. But it was only a 5 to 1 shot, so all we really had to show for it was the papers and magazines."

"What if you'd lost?" I asked.

"I'd have put a big number on Gump's back and trotted him home in his shorts," Pully said triumphantly.

Horses seem to have loomed large in B. S.'s life. "It was be kind to animals week," he went on cheerfully. "Me seein' a horse tied onto a milk wagon, I approached the driver and told him the poor animal couldn't talk even if he wanted to. 'Maybe he's thirsty,' I said. I gave the guy a five, released the horse and took him into a night club for a drink. We put a bucket of water and some carrots on the bar for him. Everything was fine, except that the horse broke the doors comin' in and the boss screamed and hollered and sent for the gendarmes. After a while the gendarmes came. They just laughed. They said I was very humane.

"I bought a couple of horses of my own, late in life," B. S. sighed. "Talk about photo finishes! These two equines were so lazy they used to sit down for oil paintings. So I sold 'em. Sometime after that I was workin' at a club in Atlantic City—and every week I had to carry the torch for my salary. I found out why later. The owner had bought my two horses." Pully shook his head sadly. "We was to be pitied."

"What's the B. S. for, B. S.?" I wanted to know.

"Well," Pully said, "it could be for patriotic reasons, like bonds and stamps, but it ain't. Also, it could be for Bernard Shaw, but it ain't. It's for Bernard Samuels." He grew lyrical. "L. B. Mayer, J. L. Warner, I. J. Fox, R. H. Macy—why not B. S. Pully?"

B. S. was signed by Twentieth Century-Fox in New York. "A Mr. Joe Pinkus came to see me, and me not knowin' who he was, I started to holler. I'd had a bad day at the track. The hollerin' appealed to him. I got a screen test and here I am. Now I'm lonesome till I get my pay check; then I ain't lonesome no more."

Pully has been cast as a "crazy" waiter in "The Eve of St. Mark," a sergeant in "Pin-Up Girl" and Bill Bendix's bodyguard in "Greenwich Village." As to movie acting . . . "Nothing to it," he assured me. "The thing is to be yourself."

ROMANTIC

This romantic shot of Patricia Morison and John Garfield is from "The Fallen Sparrow," which has moved over from the Palace to the Grand.

Drama Notes

As an example in perseverance, take George Paul Jr. of Chicago. When "Kiss and Tell" was firmly established at the Harris, George auditioned as understudy to Billy Sounders, who plays the chatty boy next door. He didn't get the job because the Abbott office intended sending a boy out from New York. Just the same, he learned the role and about two weeks ago, when an emergency appendectomy sent Billy to the hospital, he stepped in after only one full rehearsal. He will keep on playing the part until Billy returns to the cast sometime this week.

Still swinging around the country, in advance of its Chicago engagement, "The Patriots" will play the week before Christmas at the City Center of Music and Drama, New York, which is the name of old Mecca Temple, recently turned into a civic project. The tour, with Walter Hampden, Julie Hayden, Cecil Humphreys, and Guy Sorel, will be resumed Dec. 27 in Indianapolis.

The Playwrights company is hard at work on Maxwell Anderson's new war play, "Storm Operation," tentatively scheduled for New York the week of Dec. 20. Leading roles have gone to William Post Jr. [who plays the part originally scheduled for John Garfield], Gertrude Musgrove, Bramwell Fletcher, Cy Howard, Julie Brown, and Sara Anderson. Miss Musgrove, here in "The Three Sisters," plays an Australian army nurse.

"Beauty and the Beast" is proving so popular with children who attend Goodman theater performances that Sunday afternoon performances have been added for Dec. 5 and 12, at 3 o'clock. The play's regular schedule calls for Saturday afternoon performances at 2:30, thru Dec. 11. The theater states that because of a heavy schedule it has not been possible to give the usual performance for children of settlement houses and orphanages. However, final dress rehearsals will be given for this purpose with the opening of the next production, "Radio Rescue."

"The Waltz King" ends its Civic Opera house engagement next Saturday night, a week earlier than anticipated, and moves to Detroit in its junket from west to east. The big house is thus left without a resident production until Ballet Theater arrives Christmas night, to be followed Jan. 3 by Olsen and Johnson in "Sons o'Fun." There are, of course, concert bookings, and the opera rally scheduled for Dec. 5. The management is now scouting additional attractions.

The Jack and Jill Players celebrate their 17th anniversary this month, and will present a festive production of "Heidi," dramatized by Marie Agnes Foley, at special performances for children. The play will be staged at the Jack and Jill theater, 180 East Delaware place, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 and at Wilmette the following Saturday, Dec. 4. It returns to the home theater for a December engagement extending thru the holidays.

John Alvin, known as John Hoffstadt when he was a member of the Actors company, will stay in Hollywood a while. Warner Brothers picked up his option after his appearance in "Destination, Tokio," starring Cary Grant.

Some Writers Make Hoopla and Some an Impression

By Harry Hansen.

NEW YORK.

FROM long association with the literary merry-go-round I know that a generous display of mink coats and the latest hair-dos can be expected at any literary afternoon, but when you call the roll of the authors who make good there are likely to be some surprises. I never saw a plainer, more maternal looking woman than Etta Shiber, author of "Paris Underground." Indeed, as some one expressed it, she looks more like your aunt than an author who fooled the Nazis and got over 250 British soldiers thru the lines to safety.

Gestapo Inquisition Failed.

Her appearance, her composure, her matter-of-fact attitude toward the dangers thru which she passed explain better than anything else why she was able to accomplish such remarkable feats. I was on a radio program with her and she made no attempt to dramatize herself or to claim unusual credit for what she did. I asked her whether she was afraid when the Nazi Gestapo interviewed her, and she said, "Of course I was afraid." But she is too calm and self-possessed to give herself away. And the German interrogation fell far below the psychological standard some writers have set for it.

On another occasion I helped interview a new author, Mrs. Eliot Janeway, over the air because she had written a story of New England life, "The Walsh Girls," that had been favorably received. Young, good-looking, and possessed of a natural charm, Mrs. Janeway likewise made no attempt to force her personality on the air waves. She was completely natural and considered her book as a task that had interested her very much, and that she had completed in the intervals between running a household with very lively young children in it.

Ilka Makes a Stir.

Ilka Chase, whose first novel, "In Bed We Cry," practically made me cry while I was reading it in bed, is quite different from these self-effacing authors. You get the impression that to efface herself would be torture to Ilka. I think she suffers from too close contact with the world of promotion. She is very photogenic, has had a stage and radio career, and is the daughter of Edna Woolman Chase, who edits Vogue, the magazine you will find adequately mentioned in Ilka's book. Before her books appear there is always a great publicity hoopla and you read articles in which the author is expressing herself on numerous subjects brightly and impertinently, with suitable poses. A recent article in a New York newspaper created a small office storm because Ilka had expressed herself too freely. There was a hurried change of plates. You can say things in books that you can't print in newspapers.

Miss Chase's autobiography, "Past Imperfect," sold so well that the booksellers were eager for her new novel and ordered 50,000 before publication. The public now is absorbing this quantity. In the meantime, Ilka has suddenly withdrawn from public appearance to hurry with the writing of a play based on the novel. It should be the logical successor to Clare Boothe Luce's "The Women," for it deals with the same type of hard-boiled New York families. By the way, in case no one told you, Ilka was a member of the cast of "The Women."

Global Plans Galore.

Ely Culbertson is both a bridge expert and a global reconstructionist. He is positive that his idea of world federation is the right one and keeps talking about it. To give the theory another push he will publish a new version of it in "Total Peace," Nov. 26. He decided that the book should be introduced to New York's literary life with suitable libations and called a social session this week at his apartment. I understand that the guests listened patiently to his global plans during the first round. After the second round half a dozen new plans began to sprout all over the room. Tho unconverted, Mr. Culbertson had to listen patiently. After all, he was the host.

Baked Owl Blue Plate?

For all Sherlock Holmes fans: David Randall has just issued a new catalog for the Scribner book store, dealing with manuscripts and first editions of Sherlock Holmes stories. I leave comment to Vincent Starrett. By the way, I wonder how near the truth Robert J. Casey got in telling that tale about Starrett in his new book, "Such Interesting People." A number of well known tales of Chicago reporting life had been changed, it seemed to me, by Casey's retouching. I was amused to find that Casey did not know what Schlogl's restaurant meant by the term on the bill of fare: "Owls to order." That merely meant game. Several authors believe Schlogl's served baked owl and that this accounts for the wayward genius of Ben Hecht.

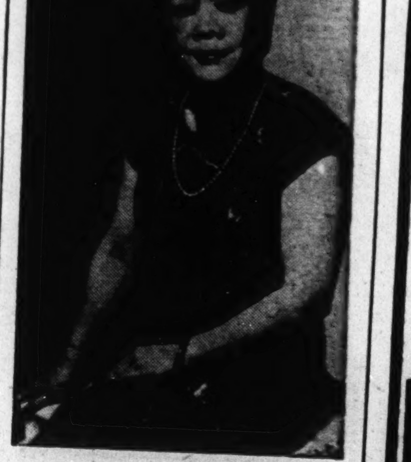
The world's most unpopular book is just out, the ninth year of its publication, and is expected to sell in huge numbers. It is, of course, "Your Income Tax," by J. K. Lasser. Just looking at the list of things you can't deduct gives me a headache.

Why Some Books Sell.

William Soskin, of Howell, Soskin, is a literary critic turned publisher. He still reviews books, but he doesn't have to meet deadlines. On the other hand, he has to pack his bag and take to the road to sell what he prints. The other day he was giving J. Donald Adams, Louis Zara, Gorham Munson, and some other writers a few sidelights on a publisher's life. "I don't know why books sell or why they don't sell," said Bill. "I went to the book stores with some books, among them a juvenile. It had no reviews and we didn't advertise it. I'd have a quota of 25 for one bookseller, and he'd order 50. Where I planned to put 50, I got an order for 100. In Chicago I thought a store might take 100 for Christmas, and it took 500. The book has sold 70,000. You figure it out; I can't." We reminded Bill that he hadn't even mentioned the title of the book to us. "It's 'First Steps,'" said Bill, "but what of it? Doesn't mean anything."



Mme. Wei Tao-Ming, wife of the Chinese ambassador to the United States, whose autobiography, "My Revolutionary Years," has been published by Scribner's.

Latest Leacock Full of Subtle Wit and Humor

"HAPPY STORIES, JUST TO LAUGH AT," by Stephen Leacock. [Dodd, Mead, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Paul Healy.

In the preface Stephen Leacock says the people in these stories laugh too much, cry too easily, and lie too hard. "There is no need, therefore," he continues, "to give the usual assurance that none of these characters in the book are real persons. Of course not; this is not real life. It is better."

Many readers, including this one, will disagree with the author, for these stories gently satirize some of the truest and most whimsical follies in human behavior. Among those slyly derided by Canada's No. 1 humorist are the man who worried about the end of the world ["He had always complained of the solar system and never really trusted it"], the amateur hunter ["'Have another scotch, Charley!'"], the ever practical organizers of a new political party ["Their single platform plank was freedom from work"], and overly serious chess players ["He said, 'You don't look like a chess player—I beg your pardon, I didn't mean to be rude.'"]

Compared to Leacock's early classic, "The Nonsense Novels," which achieved fresh and rollicking burlesque by clever hyperbole, "Happy Stories" are subtle and therefore more penetrating in their shafts of wit. In fact, half of these stories rank with some of the best fooling the author ever produced and for that reason the book is confidently recommended for those who would escape at least momentarily from war time shadows.

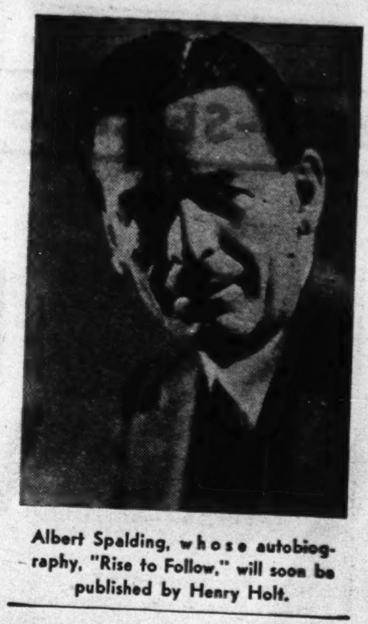
THE MURDER CHART

By Drexel Drake.

ENTRY.	PERFORMANCE.	PAY-OFF.
"THE THURSDAY TURKEY MURDERS," by Craig Rice. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]	Bingo and Handsome of the Sunday Pigeon Murders, in another sleuthing entanglement with corpses, desperadoes, and distracting babes. Staged in Thursday, Ia.	Anything formal or conventional in this decanter of complications is author's oversight. Here's the champagne of mystery in the merry mood.
"PUZZLE IN PAINT," by Kootz. [Crown, $2.]	Forged Cezannes tied with new brand of murder. It's breezy exercise for Jason Emory, mite detective, who knows art and fascinates women.	Brilliant, original, tough, sparkling, and tantalizingly naughty in epicurean porportions. Story holds on to the last sentence.
"THE THIRD DEGREE," by Joe Barry. [Mystery House, $2.]	Rush Henry, Chicago reporter now with army intelligence, does brainy and brawny job tearing apart monstrous Nazi sabotage ring.	Story races and roars thru scenes of terror, torture, and tough conflict, revealing author's staggering capacity to invent thrills.
"LOOK YOUR LAST," by John Stephen Strange. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Berlin treachery and Washington skulduggery linked in dynamic tale of oil and murder. Barney Gantt, news photographer, rips off the lid.	Author has done serious background work. Story distractingly kaleidoscopic at start but shapes well.



Albert Spalding, whose autobiography, "Rise to Follow," will soon be published by Henry Holt.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

IT SEEMS I have been all wrong about Ferris Greenslet. I had grown so accustomed to thinking of him as chief editor for the Houghton Mifflin company, down in Boston, that unconsciously I thought of him as having been there more or less always. For some time I had looked forward eagerly to his memoirs, "Under the Bridge" [Houghton], hoping to learn something about Chaucer's first visit to America, and how Ben Jonson used to drop in at the office, in the early days of Massachusetts colony, to borrow a cigaret; how he missed John Quincy Adams by three minutes, one afternoon, because he had gone out for a haircut, and what Edgar Allan Poe once told him about Elizabeth Barrett Browning. That sort of thing, you know?

Well, he didn't know any of these people. He didn't even know James Fenimore Cooper. As a matter of fact, he wasn't even born until 1875, and as a boy—this disappoints me—he didn't plod wearily out to Cambridge to ask Professor Longfellow for his autograph: he was only 7 when Longfellow died, and anyway he lived in New York then. He didn't go to work in Boston until about the turn of the present century, it seems; and of the 230-odd figures of note mentioned by Van Wyck Brooks in his "New England: Indian Summer," Mr. Greenslet by his own confession has known only 192.

It's a Pleasant Book.

With these reservations, I am bound to say that Mr. Greenslet has written a very pleasant book. To be done with fooling, he has written as charming a book of literary reminiscence as I have read in a long time. Among the writers you will meet in his pages are Howells, Aldrich, Mark Twain, Bernard Shaw, Henry Adams, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Mr. Justice Holmes, Amy Lowell, and Willa Cather, a sufficiently notable group. My copy of "Under the Bridge" is sprinkled with penciled crosses and exclamation points, marking anecdotes and passages that I intend to crib for future issues of this department. In the meantime I heartily recommend this book to all bookmen.

In view of the very dubious tidings he has to report of the state of the nation, the world, and mankind generally, as he nears the end of his own span on this planet, Albert Jay Nock's "Memoirs of a Superfluous Man" [Harper] is a singularly good tempered, even cheerful document. It is, I think, the wittiest and most entertaining dispraise of the human race I have read since my last reading of Voltaire's "Candide," a major opus quoted with approval by Mr. Nock in his own pages. But if his conclusions are discouraging, Mr. Nock himself is genial and urbane, an amiable skeptic viewing the human spectacle from his ivory tower with invincible good nature and Olympian detachment. It is difficult to be sure how far he is in earnest and how far he is ironical; but in either case he writes with immoral plausibility and, incidentally, in some of the best prose of our time.

Book for 21st Century.

It is unnecessary to agree with Mr. Nock's conclusions to be stimulated by his book; and, make no mistake about it, it is an exciting book—brilliant, perverse, disquieting, infuriating; a book at once wonderfully right and wonderfully wrong. I venture to think it one of the books of the 20th century that will be read in the 21st.

If Mr. Nock could have selected his own time and background in the world, he says, he would have chosen to be born in the Paris of 1810 and to have "slipped out of life" about the autumn of 1885—there are critics who assert that in effect he has had his wish. Be that as it may, he has suggested a good game for an intellectual winter evening—and what do you say? William Archer, the English critic, once answered a similar question thus: "If some enchanter should offer to recover for me a single hour of the irrecoverable past, I think I should choose to be placed among the audience at the Globe theater, in or about the year 1600, with liberty to run around between the acts and interview the author-actor-manager, Master Shakespeare, in his tiring room."

One reason for Mr. Nock's choice, he says, is the number of men living in the years of his selection whom he would like to have known; he mentions, among others, Guizot and Ste.-Beuve, Renan and Taine; the novelists Dumas, Mérimée, Daudet and Turgeniev; the painters Delacroix and Horace Vernet; the poets de Vigny, Leconte de Lisle, and De Musset; the musicians Adam, Auber, Meyerbeer, Rossini, and Offenbach. . . . "Never in the world, I believe, have so many practitioners of the good life, the truly humane life, been gathered together in one place, as in the Paris of that period."

Nobody will agree, of course. It all depends on what you like. There are probably those who would like to have run around with Master François Villon and his companions of the cockleshell, or ridden with Joris from Ghent to Aix, or barged it with Cleopatra up the Nile. It is an open secret that a horde of enthusiastic Sherlockians were born just too late to clutter up Baker street, in London, during the years 1881-1903.

Too Many Interludes.

I want to associate myself with Miss Marcia Winn in her recent penetrating criticism of the modern detective story. It occurred to Miss Winn that current thrillers contain too many taxi interludes. Busy amateurs seemed to her forever to be jumping into taxicabs and ordering the driver to "Follow that other cab!" She didn't believe it happened that way in life, and a series of interviews with taxi drivers proved she was right. In general, the excited command is given only by wives in pursuit of their husbands, and suchlike sordid episodes.

I should have guessed the famous line to be pure Sherlock and the cab, in the original, to have been a hansom; but altho the incident occurs in the Holmes saga as early as "A Scandal in Bohemia," the classic line is missing. Possibly it is pre-Sherlock. Similarly, the familiar line, "Quick, Watson, the needle!" does not occur anywhere in the chronicles. It may first have occurred in Montgomery and Stone's burlesque of Holmes and Watson, in "The Red Mill," but scholarship in this important matter still hopes to establish an earlier date.

Napoleonic Maxims Are Made Clear

"NAPOLEON AND MODERN WAR," by Col. Conrad H. Lanza. [Military Service Publishing Co., $1.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons.

Col. Lanza, the distinguished American military commentator, is well known to TRIBUNE readers, both for his frequent lucid analyses of war developments and for book reviews which have appeared in this section. Two recent polls taken by the Field Artillery Journal, a service publication to which he also contributes, disclosed him as its most popular writer. Several months ago a national magazine described his commentaries as "articles which at times have made general staff officers gasp and wonder."

Now the colonel has taken Napoleon's 115 immortal maxims of war, and, with shrewd annotation, made them more understandable to modern military students. This has been done largely thru the use of current illustrations. For example, Napoleon laid down that "an army must have but one line of operations. This must be maintained with care and abandoned only for major reasons."

All of which sounds elementary, but Col. Lanza points out that Hitler's bitter defeat at Stalingrad was caused by forgetting the rule. The United States also lost the Philippines when forced to abandon its lines of communication.

The maxims have been illustrated thruout in plain, common sense terms, in accordance with the best current military thought. Col. Lanza has performed a valuable service. His is a book that belongs on the first shelf of any soldier's library. Civilian readers will find it solid, readable, informative.

'True to Life' Is Just That—and Funny, Too

"TRUE TO LIFE."

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Radio is 100 per cent wonderful, and anybody who has ever had anything to do with a radio program knows that it's likewise 100 per cent screwy. SO—what happens in "True to Life" isn't so far from being true to life, and if you don't believe it ask the manager of ANY radio station. [That ought to take care of the "anys."]

Featured characters are a pair of handsome $1,000 a week script writers [male] who go stale and the family they bump into in a frenzied search for new material.

Said handsome writers have ground out for weeks a serial about Kitty Farmer and her folks—and audiences have ceased listening to the results of their efforts, because Kitty et al. have got to the point where they just ain't human.

The writing boys have done too much sitting at home and imagining. . . . They have forgotten that the world is populated by real folk who do things in a natural—or a naturally UNnatural—manner. . . . Aghast at the thought of losing the wherewithal that's kept them supplied with caviar and a butler, the boys sally forth. Mr. Tone [the wolf!] to seek inspiration along gilded highways; Mr. Powell [the wholesome lamb] to glean it from simple folk.

And so—the latter meets sweet Bonnie Porter in a Sunnyside diner. Sweet Bonnie who, seeing him unshaven and unshorn, believes him a bum out of a job, takes him home to her family—one that will make you think of the group in "You Can't Take It with You." It's composed of Mom Porter, wry-mouthed and rather belligerent—with reason; Pop Porter, the inventor; Mom's idle, heavy eating brother, Jake; the Porters' young medical student son, Clem, and adolescent daughter, Twips. . . .

Because our script writer is supposed to have no home of his own, he is given room and board—and the Sudsy Suds program gets new blood with fantastic results.

It is all terrifically funny and, I still insist, true to life.

The acting is delightful, especially the performances of Messrs. Tone and Powell, Mary Martin and Victor Moore, whom I was so glad to be able to love again. The awful stuff he has to turn out, stooging on a radio program, had weaned me away from him. . . . Lines are rich. Situations are a scream—and there are several catchy songs—"There She Was," "The Old Music Master," and "Mister Pollyanna."

Here, definitely, is a show that will tune you in to the laughter that lingers on.

See you tomorrow.

IN WAR FILM

Preston Foster has a role right up his alley in "Guadalcanal Diary." On Garrick and Apollo screens.

Dancer Gets Workout for First Film Role

HOLLYWOOD.—No newcomer to the screen in all probability ever had as sound preliminary training as Toumanova. It was by design, too, not by accident. One of the world's great ballerinas, she knows the value of rehearsals. So at her own suggestion she played for screen tests with every player tested by Producer Casey Robinson for roles in "Days of Glory," in which she'll make her movie debut as femme star. Before a single scene was shot for the picture, she had made 42 tests.

Vaudeville

Oriental theater. Carl Ravazza and his orchestra come from their long run at the Blackhawk restaurant to head the stage show. With them as featured performers are Jackie Van and Dick La Salle. Ray English, the dancing comedian, who capitalized on an accident and found he could make audiences laugh by falling, is included on the program, as are the Glenn Miller singers, including Paula Kelly and the Modernaires.

Chicago theater. For the second time this year the "Hour of Charm" all-girl orchestra, directed by Phil Spitalny, will appear on the stage show. The soloists, without benefit of surnames, are Evelyn, violinist; Viola, drummer; Vivian, contralto; Kathryn, trumpet, and, less familiarly, Patsy Brewster and June Loraine.

Rialto theater. A new platinum blonde, Diana Van Dyne, will be displayed in the week's show. She has appeared in one Hollywood picture and comes direct from Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe in New York. Taffy O'Toole remains and the road show includes Mike Sacks and Alice Kennedy, Harry [Shuffles] Le Van, Jean Hayes, Vivy Audtin, Dan Evans, Munro and Evans, and Beverly Lane.

With an Accent.

FOOD LENDS ITS AID TO PHILOSOPHY

Here's Pungent Casserole for Intellectual Gourmets

"THE GASTRONOMICAL ME," by M. F. K. Fisher. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

If you were one of the fortunate readers who met "How to Cook a Wolf," the most sophisticated book about food that you'd ever come upon, you do not need to be told that M. F. K. Fisher has a way with words, can whip them into a literary casserole that would delight any epicure of reading.

She wrote about life more than she did about food in that book, and even in "Serve It Forth," her first, food was a mere seasoning, a bouquet of pungent herbs to flavor her esthetic and historic narrative.

"Consider the Oyster," her second book, contained 39 exotic recipes but it also contained the most amusing, the most sophisticated and the most unforgettable bits of prose you'd met. The sketch of the love life of the oyster is still talked about.

Now comes an entirely autobiographical book which uses the ingenious technique of dramatizing events by their association with food but founded on the truly philosophical concept that there are hungers not only of the digestive system and the physical body, but of the spirit as well.

"It seems to me that our three basic needs," the author writes in her foreword, "for food, security, and love, are so mixed and mingled and entwined that we cannot straightly think of one without the others. So it happens that when I write of hunger, I am really writing about love and the hunger for it, and warmth and the love of it and the hunger for it . . . and then the warmth and richness and fine reality of hunger satisfied . . . and it is all one."

And the author mixes and mingles and entwines them, these three basic needs like threads in a loom and weaves from them a tapestry which has the rich glowing colors used in the sharp and sophisticated designs of some of the famous tapestries designed by the great modern French artists.

"The Gastronomical Me" is brilliant and exciting and amusing, sometimes startling and as subtle as a spider's web whose strength seems so tenuous but is as fatal as a garrote. It is a book for sophisticates, and yet it may well become, as did "The La[illegible]e I Saw Paris" a best seller.

It is full of portraits of humans etched in an ink which is half sharp, swift-working acid and half the life blood of those of whom she writes, blood which she has taken from them as gently and as scientifically as a tender nurse extracts a cubic centimeter for a test.

There are readers who will be delighted with Mrs. Fisher's characterizations, and readers who will feel that they have never had a more intimate or a more understanding picture of life in a provincial French town, of life in the Swiss Alps, of life in a Mexican village, of the "sea change" that seems to come upon anyone outside the sight of land. There are going to be many who will shudder at the perversity of the strange young German student, at the grossness of the author's shipmates on a German liner, and yet she has, without making any analysis whatever of it, given the "bad" German psychology a blue print.

"To be happy you must have taken the measure of your powers, tasted the fruits of your passion and learned your place in the world," a sentence from Santayana, gives the book its theme, and many of its chapters bear the signpost-like

Sullivan's New Novel Is Lively and Delightful

"THE DARK CONTINENT," by Richard Sullivan. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

Reviewed by John Frederick Nims.

Just before 11 o'clock in the morning Francis Rafferty, waving goodby to his mother and fiancée in an unfamiliar town, steps backward into a deep excavation. When he recovers consciousness there begins a strange detective story—the effort of a man to discover his own identity, for Rafferty has forgotten that he is a staid professor in an exclusive girl's academy. He climbs back into a life of clews and excitement, rowdy, tender, and comical, deep in the dark continent of amnesia. Whom he discovers there and what he decides about the direction of his life is the story of Mr. Sullivan's rich and delightful second novel.

The amnesia motif achieves more than complication of plot; it affords a perspective, remarkably fresh and vivid, in which can be tested the traditional values of Rafferty's life. But the story goes beyond Rafferty; it is the story of each of us, of every man, trying to find his name and bearings in a great and whimsical universe, trying to reduce to formula and meaning the frightening kaleidoscope of existence:

"The beauty and the wonder and the power,

For all its profundity of intention, it is a gay and witty book, rich with the colors and dialects of earth: "a bewildering torrent of images of silver hooks and red feathers, bright, flashing reels and spools of green fish line"; "young Negresses, laughing—so vivid and raw and beautiful that Rafferty felt reverence looking at them." Therefore this novel can be read on many levels; it can be taken as a fine poetic allegory of man's lot; or it can be taken [as its recent publication in a great popular monthly indicates] merely as a lively, tender, amusing romance about a young man in search of himself.

"The Dark Continent" would be a welcome and delightful Christmas gift. Unlike so many cumbrous modern novels, it is pleasant even to handle, a slender, beautifully printed volume in a dark and striking jacket. And within, told in firm, grotesque, and lovely symbols, is a story of wry adventure in the splendor and mystery of life.

Two Books Discuss Race Problems We Face Today

"BROWN AMERICANS," by Edwin R. Embree. [Viking, $2.75.]
"RACE RIOT," by Alfred McClung Lee and Norman Daymond Humphrey. [Dryden Press, $1.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth C. Kaufman.

Many factors tend to make America race conscious as it has never been before: the naturally heightened tensions of war time, the fact that colored races the world over are demanding better treatment than they have received from their white neighbors in the past, the shifting of great masses of population as a result of war industries, and a Negro press recently grown extremely vocal. Here are two books which shed a great deal of light on several phases of the relations between whites and Negroes.

Edwin R. Embree, for the last 15 years president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund and before that connected with the Rockefeller Foundation, wrote his "Brown America" 12 years ago; it immediately became a recognized, perhaps the definitive, study of the Negro's contribution to American culture. The present book is not a revision of the earlier, altho it makes use of some of the same material; it takes full cognizance of the social and political changes thruout the world which have dragged the American Negro problem out of the closet and made of it a matter of world interest.

Written with the utmost simplicity, and with considerable charm, this is the ideal primer for the study of the Negro's origin, his status from the Revolution to the Civil war, and from reconstruction to Roosevelt, of the various powerful influences for his education, of his share in the development of democracy, and of the handicaps which he has to face. It will come, perhaps, as a surprise to many readers that the American Negro belongs to an entirely new race, compounded of many African races, with admixtures of American Indian and European blood. Also that the Revolutionary American looked upon the Negro as a potential citizen, and rather expected him eventually to assume equal rights with his white brothers.

"Race Riot" takes nothing for granted. Written by two professors in Detroit's Wayne university who witnessed the unspeakable events of last June, it is a coldly scientific, heavily documented study of a phenomenon which is enough to make one wonder whether we really have the right to cast any stones at the Nordic supermen. It goes into the causes of this riot, which caused 34 deaths, thousands of wounds, property damage running into millions, and the loss of 1,000,000 man hours.

The book proves conclusively that axis agents did not touch off the spark; it lays the blame for the delay in calling in federal troops squarely on city officials, and draws a devastating picture of a moral cancer whose potentialities for harm are frightening. It analyzes the causes of race tensions, gives practical advice on what must be done in the event of race troubles, and in the long run offers suggestions for the evolution of sane race relationships.

These books demand to be read by every thinking American.

Russian Tale Is Somewhat Unconvincing

"WILD RIVER," by Anna Louise Strong. [Little, Brown, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

The purpose of this book is to show how the lives of several young men and women in post-revolution Russia were altered from anarchy and uselessness to hard work and responsibility thru such vast works of Socialist dedication as the building of the Dnieper dam. It begins with a chapter about the dismantling of a generator in the big power plant, preparatory to blowing up the dam just before the German army reaches it. The bulk of the book is a going back into the past to trace the lives of several characters up to the moment when the book opens, and the last chapter is the actual destruction of the dam by the main character of the novel, who had helped build it.

Reading the newspapers the last six months, the actions of the Red army have often seemed too fantastic to be true. Reading soviet accounts of the actions of Russian civilians over the last six years, I have felt that same sense of unreality. Too often, and this is the case with "Wild River," there has been about all tales, fictional or otherwise, coming out of Russia, what might almost be called an air of the fairy tale. The bad boy is reformed, and becomes a fine object lesson to all his friends.

The author of this novel is an American woman from Nebraska who has lived many years in the soviet union, had a Russian husband, and worked at various jobs in Moscow and elsewhere. She should know what she is talking about. Yet, even with her special knowledge, she is not able to make a fully convincing book. The reasons are several.

In the first place, she is describing most remarkable events, and yet the prose she uses is most unremarkable. It is a great deterrent. Here we have a people of enormous ignorance put to work on jobs of enormous scope. Men who cannot read directions on a packing case are put at work they have never done. Somehow, the labor is accomplished. The author is not able to show, either in the structure of her novel, which is the simplest chronological kind, or in the texture of her writing, the strain and excitement and violence of the effort those people made.

There is a further flaw that too many of the characters speak like propaganda slogans. Even the young girls, and this is sad, indeed.

One learns a good deal about the problems that the industrialization of Russia caused, about the problems in terms of people, and how they were solved. Yet there is a sense of unreality about that, too, for to a considerable extent the force necessary to drive to completion the very plants that defeated the reichswehr is quietly ignored. The possibility of a young boy being sent north to a prison camp near the arctic circle is treated as if it were only an interval at a job requiring a moderate discipline. It may have been true that in Russia there was such a power driving the peasants and workers as the author asserts. But, then, she should have found a fictional method as forceful and imaginative as their purpose and accomplishment.

Chicago Awaits News of Nancy Freund's Wedding Plans

By Cousin Eve.

Thanksgiving is in the offing with its family reunions, its turkey and pumpkin pies. It is our great American festival coming down to us from the Pilgrims and may we celebrate it this year as they did, giving thanks for blessings galore as Americans.

A specially bright spot on the calendar for Thanksgiving week, was Mrs. Wellington Koo's talk at the Woman's Athletic club—now alas canceled! The lovely and exotic little wife of China's ambassador to Great Britain cabled that she couldn't get a seat in any westbound trans-Atlantic passenger plane until midwinter. So Mme. Hui-Lan Koo with good luck will be heard at the Woman's Athletic on Feb. 24, when its members will see the greatest little museum piece in the world today.

We are due to have a large and lovely wedding one of these days when Nancy Freund, Mrs. Frederic Woodward's elder daughter, becomes Mrs. W. W. White, III. Nancy met her young man in San Francisco where she is doing war work, and he is a flying officer in the transport service. Their wedding is arranged to the last boutionniere, that is, all but the date, which depends on the bridegroom's leave of absence. The cards ma ybe out any minute now. The wedding ceremony will take place in University chapel and will be followed by a small reception at 5724 Woodlawn avenue, the Woodward residence. Mrs. Woodward, the charming and beautiful Harriet, planned the whole wedding from a sick bed.

Dr. Frederic Woodward presided with his usual nonchalance at an exciting luncheon meeting of the Foreign Relations council Monday. The hero of the day was Brig. Gen. Henry J. Reilly, retired, a West Point graduate and one of our North Riviera's most popular bachelors. I believe that Washington claims him too, for its bachelor brigade, but Gen. Reilly really hails from Winnetka and has five nephews fighting in the war.

His topic that day was "The Military Importance of the Balkans" and he handled the subject without gloves, being as he said, no longer in the army and not employed by Washington. In the last 20 years he has traveled and lived in Europe, Asia, and South America and studied as a foreign observer, fighting methods and military preparation all over the map. The general has concentrated on the Balkans in the last five years living in each and every Balkan state until he knew all the answers.

The audience assembled for the general was highly fashionable that day, even distinguished, and ate fried fish and boiled potato with nary a groan. Sitting with Mrs. John A. Carpenter were her sister-in-law, that sweet creature, Joyce Borden Balokovic, and her Croatian husband, the famous violinist, Slatko Balokovic; also Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. George T. Langhorne. Across the aisle were the Barrett Wendells, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mrs. Joseph Otis, and Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, with some 500 others, yearning to know all there is to know about the Balkans.

Gen. Reilly's first remark was that the times are very serious and the war is very far from over. There are two current schools of thought—a political one which sees a quick, diplomatic finish, and

Public Schools Open Christmas Fair on December 1

By Irene Steyskal.

There is holiday magic brewing in the art rooms of the Chicago public schools, and Blackstone hall of the Art institute is to gather its full effulgence. On the first day of December, that stately room will serve as frame for an animated Christmas card scene radiating color and light and an unquenchable young merriment as the boys and girls of Chicago schools open their first Christmas fair.

Young enthusiasms have more than compensated for war shortages of materials in the creation of an array of lovely and whimsical, utilitarian and frivolous, amusing and practical articles for a 15 day sale. The articles on display will rival the output of even a Walt Disney workshop in the Santa Claus chain. Every high school and grade school has had a part in the ambitious scheme evolved by Miss Elizabeth Wells Robertson, director of art, with the art teachers.

The enthusiasms of the young folk has proved so infectious that manufacturers and business houses have poured on the school work benches heaps of bright odds and ends of salvaged materials not of essential use. Fathers and mothers, obliging aunts, uncles, and grandparents have brought out of chests and storage trunks the precious native costumes of their homelands—the beribboned and embroidered skirts and vests, the balloon sleeved and lace edged blouses, the garlanded hats and bonnets and fringed and spangled shawls—that the student vendors at the fair may supply the authentic touch to the old world scene in Blackstone hall.

On the opening day, Dr. William S. Johnson, superintendent of schools, and other school officials, the art teachers, civic leaders, and the heads of art groups and societies of the city will gather at the Christmas fair for a gala tea. The glee club of the school of the institute is timing its Christmas concert to the occasion.

Pupils of the Lafayette elementary school are proudly making a red oilcloth tablecloth with a white tarlatan skirt and the center piece that will adorn the tea table that day.

At Bowen High school, Mrs. Frienda Hagstrom's art students are putting the finishing touches on a Mexican market booth and a Polish wedding set. At Senn High school, where Mrs. Evelyn Taylor is art teacher, a corps of students is turning out cellophane dolls—translucent angels, all the characters in Mother Goose's varied retinue, and animals straight out of the never-never land of a youngster's dreams. At Lucy Flower Technical High school the girls have had a windfall of Caribbean seed pods to work with. A Cuban friend of Mrs. Greta Gardner, their instructor, gathered and sent the pods, which are being fashioned into necklaces and bracelets.

At Marshall High school, the specialty is carved candles of all shapes and sizes, and at the Linne elementary school, Mrs. Winona Hall has her youngsters carving wooden candlesticks.

Boys and girls at the Spalding School for Crippled Children are turning out bracelets and buttons and necklaces of lucite and catalin, two new plastics. Elsewhere costume jewelry, toys, wreaths, garlands, tree ornaments, and green, yellow, and white linoleum block engagement calendars for 1944 are coming off the work benches.

Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . "New Dog in the Ozarks"

We scanned the advertisments in the daily papers from St. Louis and Chicago. Only pedigreed dogs were ever listed for sale. Apparently no one wanted to sell a dog that was one part German shepherd, one part collie, and one part just dog. But that was the only kind that could fill the niche left vacant by the death of our beloved Punch. The new dog must not only bear his name, but also must resemble physically the faithful fellow that had meant so much to us. After all, agreed the jedge and I, it was absolutely necessary to have the very dog for which dear readers asked when they came to call. It would be unthinkable to suddenly spring a new kind of dog on our public.

But in our hearts we knew Sunrise Mountain farm was not quite the same without a big, shaggy, reddish-brown dog romping on the lawn with Judy, the little Boston terrier.

We hopefully read papers a few more days. Then, quite unexpectedly, we had to go up to Chicago. And the thought of Chicago gave me a bright idea.

"Let's go around to one of those dog shelters to which we were always contributing when we lived in Chicago, and pick up a dog," I suggested.

The jedge agreed that if dogs of mixed breeds could be found anywhere, a shelter would be the place to go.

The next Sunday afternoon found us in Chicago viewing the dogs at Dorothy Eagle's animal shelter. Big dogs, little dogs, and all the in-between sizes were there—all orphans with begging eyes. I wanted them all. But the jedge was stern. We had come for a big reddish-brown, shaggy dog, he told the attendant, and nothing else would do. Fortunately for us, but who can say from their viewpoint, there were three of that type in the shelter.

We looked at them a long time. Two were aloof, lying disdainfully apart from their cage mates. The third one was playing with a little mutt, his great mouth closing softly and playfully over the little fellow's head. As we watched, a commotion broke out in another cage. Instantly the big dog ceased his playing and raced thru the runway to the other pen, barking loudly.

"Policeman, eh?" grinned the jedge. "He's the one for us!"

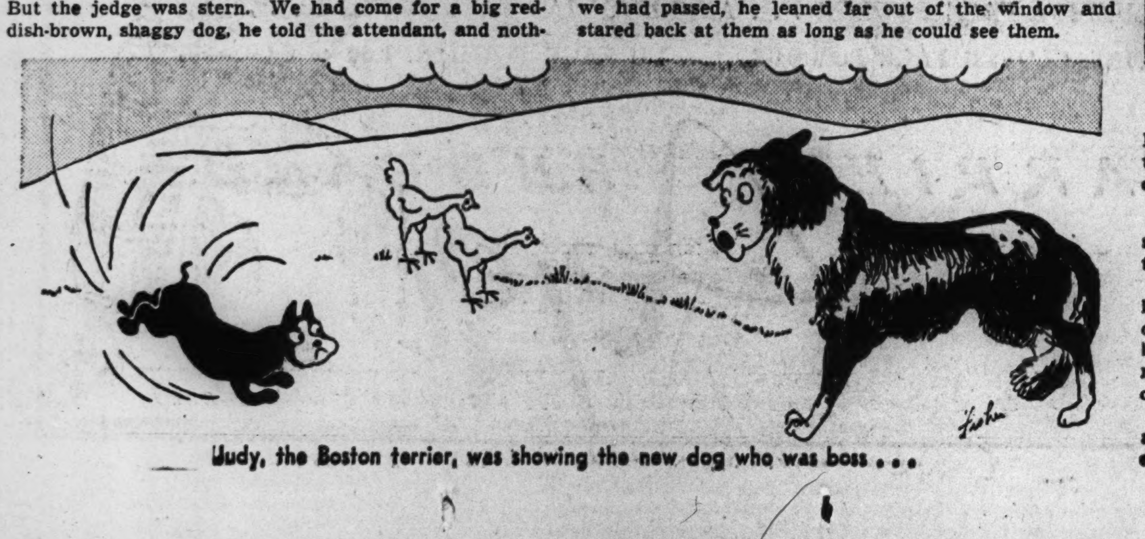
And so Punch, after the adoption papers were signed and a contribution made to the shelter, was shipped to Sunrise Mountain farm. We had gone down ahead of him and were on hand to greet him when he arrived. He was taken from the crate, exercised, and put into the car for the ride out to the farm. He must have known about cars. Or perhaps he was very tired. He settled down in the back seat with a deep, relaxing sigh.

But he didn't stay settled long.

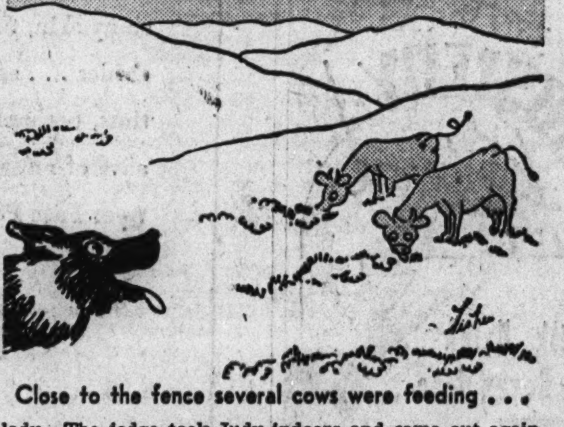
When we reached the wooded road that winds thru the hills he sat bolt upright. I looked around to see him poking his nose out of the window, sniffing our clean, sparkling Ozark air exactly as city humans do when they come to the hills. Then the road dipped into a wide valley to pass a sunny pasture. Close to the fence several yellow Jersey cows were feeding on the thick lespedeza. Punch looked at them with wide eyes. Even when we had passed, he leaned far out of the window and stared back at them as long as he could see them.



Judy, the Boston terrier, was showing the new dog who was boss . . .

"Bet he always thought milk came in glass bottles," laughed the jedge.

Then in a few more minutes we were stopping at the farm gate. The jedge opened the door of the car, and Punch hopped out obediently. Instantly, a sleek little black and white thunderbolt with bat ears hurled herself from the terrace and flew into the wondering Punch with all the fury of a tiny wildcat. Judy, the Boston terrier, was showing the new dog who was boss before he had time to get ideas. We separated them quickly, fearing that Punch might lose his temper and fight a lady. The jedge took Judy indoors and came out again to reassure Punch that he was indeed welcome in spite of what had happened.



Close to the fence several cows were feeding . . .

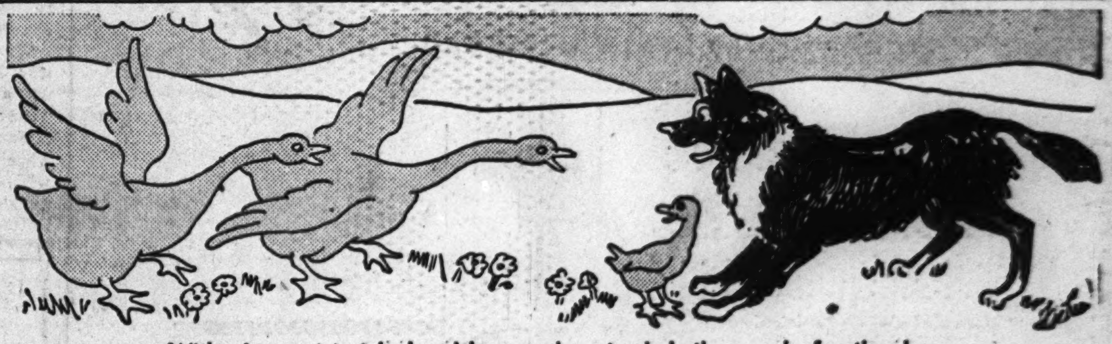
"Better keep him on a leash," I said, when the jedge started around the house with the big dog. "Remember they told us at the shelter that he was a runaway!"

"Remember that we're the folks whom lost animals hunt out," said the jedge. He took the dog to the back of the house and went down cellar to bring up a big bowl of cool, creamy milk for him. I fixed a substantial meal from Judy's crock in the refrigerator and took it out to the newcomer.

When the dog had eaten and drunk his fill, he was allowed to look the place over. Slowly and haltingly obviously puzzled by his surroundings, he strolled thru the honeysuckle arch and out on the grassy hilltop—the home pasture of every living thing on the farm. He paused and lifted his eyes to the hills far beyond our farm; and as he stood there two half grown white chickens came up to stare at him, making little chirping sounds as tho saying:



With wings outstretched and long necks extended, they made for the dog.

"Aren't you a stranger around here?"

Like many human blondes who pick up strangers, they should have known better. The big, shaggy fellow stared at them in amazement. Then he jumped toward them. Both pullets squawked loudly and took wing . . . flying far over the hilltop, cackling with indignation.

"Ah! Fun!" the new dog seemed to say. He nosed over to a gray fowl, slightly larger than the white chickens. But this was a sad mistake. The gray youngster was the spoiled brat of Cheerio and Hisses, the two gray geese with the softest feathers and the meanest dispositions of anything on the farm. With wings outstretched and long necks extended in a series of undulating curves, beaks parted in angry hissing, they made for the dog. Hisses seized him by one ear, and with hard pounding wings proceeded to give him a sound drubbing, with Cheerio applauding from the sidelines. We rushed to the rescue just as Punch tore himself loose and came pounding toward the farmhouse, yelping loudly.

We petted the shaking stranger until his fear was over, then introduced him to his comfortable house with its clean straw bedding and suggested that he take a nap.

But there was obviously too much to see.

They had had kittens at the shelter. He made a dash for little Yellow Peril. The kitten skittered up the apple tree in nothing flat, leaving an almost visible banner of kitten curses floating in the air behind her. Mrs. Chips, the kitten's mother, stopped in the midst of giving another of her children a bath and took charge of the rescue. She made one flying leap that would have landed her smack on the dog's back. But the jedge was between them.

He thrust out one leg, neatly catching the cat on his shin and getting four long scratches thru his trouser leg. The kitten was brought down from the tree and returned to her mother.

The jedge put his hand on Punch's big head.

"Look, Punch," he said. "Here are the facts of life about the country. On farms there are no street cars to run you down, and you have to look out for only one or two automobiles at the most. But mother love is on the loose here, and the girls can get pretty tough. Now, before you get in bad again—let's go out and see the sheep with their little lambs and the cows with their calves."

After their trip to the barn lot, with Punch on the leash responding nobly to restricting No-No's, they came back to the front lawn and the leash was removed.

Suddenly Punch discovered that the grass was soft and cool. He slid forward on his stomach. He rolled over and wriggled along the lawn on his back, with all four legs in the air. He rolled sideways, again and again, and still again. Then he arose and walked gravely over to his new master! He sat down on his haunches before the jedge's chair, and man and dog looked into each other's eyes for a long moment.

Then the dog lifted one big red-brown paw and thrust it into the jedge's hand.

He strolled around to the south side of the farmhouse and spied a yellow kitten. Here was something familiar.

a military one shared by American, British, and Russian war machines, that the war isn't over by many long shots.

The trouble with the Balkan situation, said Gen. Reilly, is that everybody remembers that one of his ancestors was killed by somebody else's ancestor 1,000 years ago, and they're still very mad about it. Another thing, every Balkan country and Turkey knows the terrific power of the German army and air forces. They also know what happened in Norway, Finland, Poland, Holland, Belgium, Greece, France, and Czecho-Slovakia. The Balkans will rise if the allies land troops.

Gen. Reilly was Mrs. Hamilton Lewis' guest Tuesday at a small tea at the University club. And he certainly was amusing about the New Deal approach to foreign citizenry.

By the way, apropos of down under, we have a new secretary in our embassy at Rio de Janeiro who comes from Chicago. He is Walter L. McLallen Jr., who was formerly married to Ghita Watson, only daughter of Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, one of our town's prettiest and cleverest young matrons. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery has a staff of secretaries second to none in the world, besides the members of military, naval, and economic missions also stationed there. These attractive young men make it easy for Mrs. Caffery when she has a large tea dance in mind—there are dozens of pretty girls in Rio.

Mrs. Walter Wolf was one of several Chicago women who helped Mrs. George Barrett entertain the visiting wives of visiting attorneys general on Tuesday at the Arts club. The others were Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. James S. Kemper, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley.

A long table for 24 stretched the length of the smaller upstairs dining room and the visitors were enchanted at the striking view over the river and the gray, mountainous buildings of the loop. They also noted and admired the pale blue plaster draperies at the windows that never wear out or have to be sent to the cleaners. And all were delighted with the gay pink and red feather table flowers in the vivid cerulean containers. Hats that day were something. Mrs. Wolf had a yellow cygnet with a wispy veil, perched on her sleek hair in graceful coils and Mrs. Baur's celebrated herd of fur elephants stampeding on a red base was in evidence, while you could hardly see the tiny scraps meant to be hats behind Mrs. Kemper's and Mrs. Goodspeed's "pomps."

The signs and omens are excellent for duck dinners. There have been lots of bridge parties during the week because husbands had gone down state to Grand Island, and it was a good time to entertain.

James Offield has been at Grand Island for a month shaking off the effects of his long stay in the hospital. And a fortnight ago the club had the annual ladies' week-end party when members brought wives for the only time during the year. It's a nice old fashioned clubhouse at Grand Island, it's been there, they say nearly half a century. The lay of the land is long vistas across the flat Illinois scenery. It has been extremely cold this season and not so many ducks as usual.

We went to a gay luncheon last week at the Casino that left us in a depressed state of mind afterwards. Not that there was anything wrong with the party, for it was really perfect. It was the annual meeting and coronation, so to speak, of a new president for the Society of Midland Authors, and a table half a mile—more or less—long was stretched down the middle of the Casino ballroom. At the center was the retiring president, Arthur Meeker Jr., who after two years of arduous presidency was about to drop the burden of executive office upon the shoulders of Mary Hastings Bradley, on his left. On the other side sat Louis Bromfield, a real Midland author in his own right, who, that day, accepted the vice presidency of the organization. The luncheon table was otherwise replete with authors, critics, playwrights, and friends and across from Mr. Meeker, sat his mother who had come to join in the popular acclaim for Mrs. Bradley when she took over.

Clarke, dean of the De Paul university law school and member of the civil service commission of the city of Chicago, will take place on Thanksgiving morning in St. Mary's church in Cortland. Mr. Clarke, a graduate of De Paul university, is president of the Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name societies of Chicago. They will be at home on Thorndale avenue.

Besides being tall and splendid looking, and a wonderful writer, Louis Bromfield, who lives at Malabar, O., is a farmer. His father before him was a specialist in putting farms in order and breaking bad habits in good horses. He was a man, said Bromfield, who felt no interest in a prosperous, well running farm or in a normal, well behaved horse. The author further said he loves the middle west, glories in being a middle westerner, and could not be hired to abide in New York City.

Mrs. Bradley [lion huntress extraordinary of Chicago] was looking charming in a gray frock. Arthur introduced her with his own verse, "No lion could feel very badly, to be shot by Mrs. Bradley." Her first act as president was to invite Alice Gerstenberg to rise and tell us how it feels to get a play going on Broadway. Miss Gerstenberg's play "Victory Belles" is now in its fourth week at the Mansfield theater. The story of the launching of a play by a Chicago girl in New York was an epic in obstacles.

On Saturday night we saw the Community playhouse at 1219 La Salle street for the first time. This is an old church metamorphosed into a playhouse which already has a large following. On the walls are various decorative paintings loaned by the late Mrs. Frank G. Logan. Pews have been removed and seats that saw service in the Auditorium theater substituted. They were contributed by Mayor Edward J. Kelly. In the mezzanine is a library where coffee is served gratis between the acts. Bradley Griffin, a stepson of the Rev. Preston Bradley, is director of the Community playhouse, and the actors, who are many, are most of them clever performers and members of the Uptown Players.

The play that night was "Port of Chicago," an old plot of Alice Gerstenberg's, revamped by her and Miss Herma Clark of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The play is good fun, has plenty of ripe old Chicago history, and runs from Pere Marquette and Indian times up to the terrace of the Tavern club.

We were wide eyed over it and so was Mrs. Harold Pynchon. There was a big audience, by the way, and "Port of Chicago" is the popular attraction of the playhouse. We were thrilled by the red haired girl who, as Infanta Eulalia, set the guests back on their heels at Mrs. Potter Palmer's party.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 22, 1895.

Dear Julia: I have been attending a board meeting of the Chicago Home for the Friendless, a benevolence dear to my heart. I haven't been of as much help in its work as many of my friends have, but I am proud to be a member, especially now that there's the happy prospect of our having a new building.

Chicago was still very young when the home was founded by a small band of men and women who were socially minded, in the sense of feeling responsible for the unfortunate. The Rev. E. F. Dickinson, a city missionary in charge of what were then termed "Ragged Schools," realized the need of a shelter for women and children. He talked it over with dear Mrs. Norman B. Judd [that sweet friend of mine, whose husband nominated Lincoln for President.] Altho so busy with her home and entertaining—because of her husband's position in political life—she always responded to any request for help for the poor, and at once urged Mr. Dickinson to send out notices for a meeting to be held in the Second Presbyterian church [not the present building at Michigan avenue and 20th street, but the old one, called the "Spotted Church," at Wabash avenue and Washington street.] This meeting marked the beginning of the Home for the Friendless in 1858.

Mrs. Norman B. Judd.

For many a year Mr. Dickinson and Mrs. Judd were the moving spirits. At first the home was a west side institution, officered for the most part by west side ladies, Mrs. E. L. Warner, Mrs. T. M. Avery, Mrs. Caleb Morgan, and Mrs. Philo Carpenter—the building being an old hotel, which was rented for the purpose.

The first president of the home was Judge Mark Skinner, who was soon succeeded by Jonathan Burr, of blessed memory. In 1859 Mr. Burr donated lots at Wabash avenue and 20th street on condition that the board would build a home to cost not less than $10,000. This was soon accomplished and a wing was added the next year, to house 50. As the Civil war drew near its end, refugees came north, women and children seeking shelter. I remember hearing of a woman from Georgia, who got thru the Federal lines and arrived in Chicago to be near her husband, a prisoner at Camp Douglas. He died before she got here, and the home took care of her and her four children.

After Mr. Burr, Franklin D. Gray became president and others have taken up the task, from time to time. Now we have at the head of the home Mr. A. C. Bartlett, one of Chicago's finest business men. It is he who dreamed and planned a new building, in a new location, where the home could enlarge its usefulness. The board meeting today was largely taken up with discussion of the plans for this beautiful new building, to stand at Vincennes avenue and 51st street. Mrs. J. M. Flower, mother of Mrs. Dunlap Smith, is chairman of a committee to raise funds for the equipment and furnishing. The new building was made possible by Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Green Kelly, who donated the land, opposite Washington park, while Mr. Bartlett, Silas B. Cobb, and Thomas Murdoch [the latter a wealthy wholesale grocer] gave $50,000 each. Mr. T. B. Blackstone has promised to furnish the heating plant; George M. Pullman is giving the chapel, and Mrs. Flower has prepared a list of friends who, we feel sure, will help with the furnishing. We shall all need to help in this task—for a task it is to beg for funds—but I was ready to promise anything when Mr. Bartlett read a Scripture lesson before the business meeting and emphasized the words: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me." It is a work for our Lord, this caring for His little ones. And it has been a blessing to labor in company with such women as Mrs. Judd, Mrs. George H. Laflin, Mrs. E. B. Felsenthal, Mrs. Lyman Baird, Mrs. A. H. Hoge, Mrs. Clifford Williams, and all the others, Chicago's finest women. Mrs. Judd, the pioneer of this group, lives at 3522 Calumet avenue and says she is not too far from the new site to visit it often and watch the building rise in beauty. Mr. Charles S. Frost is the architect. Now, with much love, I am, your old friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

In 1932 the Home for the Friendless discontinued the institutional care of children and initiated a foster home program; the children being cared for in boarding homes under the supervision of the board. In 1938 the Vincennes avenue building was given up and the headquarters moved to 5016 Drexel boulevard. Harry H. Hadsall is president; Miss Ruth Sayre, superintendent. As the home is celebrating its 85th anniversary, Miss Sayre asks if readers of this column can supply the husband's name or maiden name of the following charter members: Martha A. Wilson, Margaretta Varian, Margaret M. Gilman, Lavina Morris, Emily Roy, and Maria Excern. Miss Sayre wishes to know about or hear from descendants of charter members. . . . On the University of Chicago campus are two buildings given by Mr. and Mrs. Hiram G. Kelly, while A. C. Bartlett gave the Bartlett gymnasium and Silas B. Cobb presented Cobb hall.

Tribune Readers' Night at "Port of Chicago."

Those who see this drama now being presented by the Uptown Players at 1219 North La Salle street, enjoy the Bureau county farmer, admirably acted by James Hargis Connelly, who signs the register of the Tremont House in 1858. The red apples used in this scene really come from Bureau county, ye editor having sent to Bryant's orchards, near the old home town of Princeton, Ill., for Jonathans. Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, the last performances of the play, have again been designated by the Uptown Players as "Tribune Readers' Nights." Each evening a "Victorian keepsake" will be given to the oldest person present.

Jewish Women Plan All-Day War Institute

Mrs. Max Biesenthal.
[Moffet Photo.]

Tomorrow promises to be a starred day on the Jewish women's calendar. The Conference of Jewish Women's organizations is rallying all presidents, delegates, and publicity and war service chairmen of its 100 member units for an all-day war service institute at 220 South State street; a Chicago delegation will be arriving in New York for the annual three day meeting of the Women's Supreme Council of B'nai B'rith, and in the evening the Pioneer Women's organization of Chicago will be giving a large installation tea in the ballroom of the Midland hotel.

The war service institute, scheduled as one of the year's most outstanding gatherings for the Conference of Jewish Women's organizations, will be opened at 10:30 o'clock by Mrs. Max Biesenthal, president. Among the speakers procured by Mrs. Milton C. Lippitz, institute chairman, will be Maj. Doris E. Epperson, who was graduated in the first WAC training class at Fort Des Moines, Ia., and who now is WAC staff director of the 6th service command, and William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, now on leave from the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Vivian Bennett of the public information division of the war finance committee of Illinois will appear at the morning session to discuss club priority problems, and Harold Ettlinger, former foreign war correspondent and newspaper editor, will speak in the afternoon.

Mrs. Maurice Turner.

Mrs. Maurice Turner of Chicago, president of the Women's Supreme Council of B'nai B'rith, will conduct the sessions of her organization, which will be held at the Barbizon-Plaza hotel in New York, and which also will be devoted to woman's war service responsibilities. How to educate B'nai B'rith's 60,000 women and girls for their part in such projects as WAC recruiting, youth welfare, and war loan drives, will be among the subjects to receive special consideration.

Official delegates from the 6th district, comprised of Illinois and eight other midwestern states, who will go with Mrs. Turner to the conference, will include Mrs. Arthur G. Laufman, delegate; Mrs. Fannie E. Levin, alternate; Mrs. Louis Perlman, national director of B'nai B'rith girls; Mrs. Albert Schneider, national chairman of laws; Mrs. Benjamin Samuels, national chairman of bonds and stamps; Mrs. Aron Osri, national field chairman, all of Chicago, and Mrs. Charles Solovich of Detroit, Mich., district president. Among others going from Chicago will be Mrs. B. C. Bolotin, and Mrs. Lawrence Jacobson.

Miss Maxa Nordau.

At the Pioneer Women's organization tea, which culminates a month's membership drive, Miss Maxa Nordau will tell the story of women's role in war time Palestine. Miss Nordau, who is touring the south and middle west on behalf of the organization, arrived in this country in 1941 from France. She brings first hand information regarding the Jewish homeland. Mrs. Eva Checkoway, one of the founders of the Chicago unit of the council, also will speak, and a musical program will be presented.

Reports of a recent national convention of Hadassah held in New York will be presented at a meeting of the Chicago chapter on Tuesday at the Morrison hotel.

ENGAGEMENT IS TOLD

Anderson of West 104th place. Mr. Hunter attended the University of Missouri and recently was graduated from the University of Chicago radio school. Miss Anderson is attending the Chicago Christian High school.

Dog Had Place in Prehistoric Arizona Life

TUCSON, ARIZ. Persons who came out here last year speak to new arrivals as tho they had discovered Arizona. And while that may be true, relatively, it certainly is not, absolutely.

William Hamilton Nelson has written that it is quite possible that there was a flourishing culture in this area before the architects of the Pyramids drew breath, and before men learned letters on the plains of Chaldea. Certain it is, at any rate, that somebody lived here ten thousand years ago, and that whoever he was, he was civilized enough to have a dog as a pet.

For Dr. Emil Haury, University of Arizona archeologist, has excavated the Ventana cave out on the Papago reservation, and there he discovered canine fossils in the same strata with pottery bowls and cups. Which, say the archeologists, proves the point, altho no one has advanced a compelling argument against the thesis that the dog was an undomesticated pilferer of somebody's dinner when came the deluge.

They are graven into the rocks, not unlike thousands of other similar messages on the Rosetta stone, in Pompeii, and among Indian ruins all over the west. But with this difference: Other messages are decipherable, they record history, fable, biography. The Picture Rocks are inscrutable. Savants from far and wide have sought to interpret them, to translate the picture message which superficially appears to be much like thousands of others. But the rocks still hold inviolate their story.

A couple of miles from the rocks lies Picture Rocks ranch, a small aggregation of adobe ranch buildings and corrals nestled into the side of the mountain. Zed Francis and his charming wife, Yvonne, run the ranch, as genuinly western a vacation spot as exists in these parts. They built the ranch from the ground up, Zed supervising the drilling of the wells, laying out of the corrals, and construction of the buildings.

Arriving at the ranch for a brief autumn vacation last week were Mr. and Mrs. William Kearney of Winnetka. From Chicago and Elgin, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kohlhagen are also sojourning at the ranch these days, spending their days in horseback excursions to the enigmatic rocks or to the abandoned Yuma mine beyond.

The approach to Picture Rocks by station wagon used to be along Silver Bell road, but with tires as thin as they are this year, the Francis ranch car makes the trip from Tucson via Cortaro and more pavement, altho the last six miles is on country road. Along that road one passes Wild Horse ranch, where the Howard Millers are friendly host and hostess. Among their Chicago guests are Mrs. Smith Christopher, who arrived for an early winter vacation last Friday. Other recent vacationers here include Mr. and Mrs. George Harley Nippert of Chicago, Miss Annette Van Bezey of Chicago, Mrs. Gerald Dennis of Evanston.

Among Chicagoland folk who came to love this country via the guest ranch route and have come to be more or less permanent residents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Reynolds of Evanston. They originally vacationed over at "76" near Bonita, and have of recent years been in Tucson proper. They find the climate good for the health of their son, Jimmy, who is in Sam Hughes school this winter while his parents are living in the Old Pueblo.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Hutchins Jr., of Wilmette, used to vacation at "76" with the Reynoldses. Now Lt. Comdr. Hutchins is executive officer of the naval officer indoctrination school at the University of Arizona and, with Mrs. Hutchins, lives on East First street in Tucson.

D.A.R. Officer to Be Guest of Sister Group

Mrs. Samuel James Campbell.

A gala day, inspired by friendly interest in a sister organization, is in prospect for the Thursday, Dec. 2, meeting of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark, founder-president of the conference, has invited Mrs. Samuel James Campbell of Mount Carroll, Ill., and Washington, D. C., treasurer general of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Illinois candidate for the presidency general of the national society, to be the conference's special guest that day. The gesture of hospitality is extended, in compliment to Mrs. Campbell, the regents of the 30 D. A. R. chapters in Chicago vicinity and the 4th division director, Mrs. Albert E. Woodruff of Oak Park.

The program planned for the meeting gives evidence of careful thought for the patriotic and historical interest of the D. A. R. guests. One of the principal speakers will be Mabel Louise Keech, an authority on heraldry, who will portray in words, "A Pageant of Early American Families."

Another speaker will be Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson. Mrs. Sisson, a former librarian general of the D. A. R., is known to patriotic organizations thruout the country for her work in investigating subversive movements. She will discuss "The Peace Plan of the Daughters of the American Revolution."

Frederic and Sylvia Christian, who appeared recently before the Chicago Geographical society in Orchestra hall, will give their travelog, "Border Countries of the Mediterranean," and in the lighter vein of entertainment, Franz J. Polgar, telepathist and hypnotist will demonstrate mind reading and other feats of his repertoire in wizardry, and Bartelle, the xylophonist, will perform with her singing canaries,

Gen. Henry Dearborn chapter of the D. A. R. is meeting Tuesday at the Cordon in the Fine Arts building and will have as its special guest and speaker Mrs. J. de Forest Richards, state regent. In the receiving line, forming promptly at 1:30 o'clock, will be Mrs. William Montgomery Kelly, chapter regent; Mrs. Howard Ames, vice regent; Mrs. George L. Cherry, 2d vice regent; Mrs. Walter Mielly, chaplain; Mrs. Roy Allen Graham, recording secretary; Mrs. William Foster West, corresponding secretary; Miss Louise Parker, treasurer; Miss Elma E. Needles, registrar, and Mrs. Herbert W. Smith, historian.

Mrs. Richards has made the D. A. R. blood plasma project for the Red Cross one of her chief interests as state regent, and it is upon this work that she will speak.

Another patriotic group meeting this week is the Fort Checaugou chapter of the Daughters of the American Colonists. With Mrs. Harry T. Tillotson presiding, the members will gather at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning in the Republic building for a costume recital by Emma C. Paulsen. Miss Paulsen will give a reading of the Florence E. Ryerson-Colvin Clements play, "Harriet," based on the life of Harriet Beecher Stowe. The program has been arranged by Mrs. Francis E. Thornton.

Mrs. James P. Harding.

The Fort Sheridan Volunteers, a civilian organization composed of hundreds of women on the north shore, are engaged in a Christmas project whereby every soldier stationed at the fort will receive a red, tarlatan stocking, filled with gifts, when the holiday comes around. Thousands of the stockings already have been prepared.

Gifts will include puzzles, games, small mirrors, comic books, harmonicas, whistles, picture holders, and pocketbook stories. Many of the stockings will find their way to a place beneath a giant Christmas tree in the service club, and will be handed out the night of the Volunteers' formal dance, Dec. 22.

Mrs. James P. Harding of Winnetka is general chairman of the project. Mrs. Ray Garrett has charge of the Evanston group; Mrs. Harry Kerr, of the Wilmette unit; Mrs. Harding, assisted by Mrs. Gilbert Scribner, of the Winnetka group; Mrs. Alan Kidd, of the Ravinia women; Mrs. Chase Smith, of the Highland Park organization, and Mrs. Milton Grauer heads the activity in Glencoe.

Palm Beach Gets Set for a Big Season

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA.

Palm Beach anticipated a brilliant season; hotels and apartments are reported booked solid, but somehow there always seems to be room for one more. Paradoxically, even when this resort is most crowded, it never appears that way. The patina of elegant serenity that has always characterized this island of palms, pines, and exotic flowers continues to exist in spite of crowds. The presence of the army adds gayety to early cocktail parties. Dashing young officers have certainly appeared hither and yon and Palm Beach, accustomed to more mature men, seems grateful. The fact that black-out orders have been eased has brightened this resort both literally and figuratively. Plans are already afoot for more of those enchanting outdoor Christmas trees, missing since the black-out.

The vanguard of the Chicago colony has already arrived. Mr. and Mrs. George M. Malcolm, formerly of Lake Forest, are at their lake front home. Later they are expecting their daughter, Mrs. Firmin Desloge III. of St. Louis. Their son, Ensign Peter Malcolm, has been at Pearl Harbor since June. Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum are expected any day at their villa on the ocean front. Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler arrived early this week, delighted to be back once more in Florida. Early in December she expects Mrs. Robert H. Ritchey of Chicago to be her guest for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson have been in Palm Beach since October, while Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, dean of the Chicago colony, was among the earliest arrivals. Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hayes have opened Villa Charmant. They were accompanied to Palm Beach by James J. Cavanagh.

There have been no big parties here, but the Bath and Tennis club has been the setting for numerous bridge sessions and three golf courses have already opened. The Old Guards Golfing society has opened its season.

The Society of the Four Arts has already scheduled five exhibitions for the coming season. Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Chicago will be chairman of the Garden club's shell exhibit in early March.

Palm Beach is dishing out to the newcomers a variety of weather. We have had one or two snappy spells when the mercury sank down to a shivery 60, but for the most part spring and summer temperatures have prevailed.

The Breakers remains a military hospital and so has passed from the social picture, for the duration at least. The ornate Biltmore is now the training station for the SPARS. Ensign Miriam Alburg, public relations officer, is a former Detroit newspaper woman. She came down for the opening and was so sold on the SPARS and on Palm Beach that she went back home, enlisted, and was sent here. The SPARS' birthday party will be celebrated with a coast to coast radio hookup tomorrow night, in which the local training station will participate. Next Saturday night another celebration will be held at the station.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hubbard Norton of Chicago have commuted all year between West Palm Beach and their Chicago home. As donors of the beautiful Norton Art Gallery and School of Art, these Chicagoans have added immeasurably to the year 'round charm of life in this community. The Glee club, composed of business men, is one of the Norton projects.

GLEN ELLYN GIRL ENGAGED

Miss Bonnie Lou Choyce's engagement to Lt. Howard L. Cosyns of the army is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence C. Choyce of Glen Ellyn. Miss Choyce is a senior at Christian college in Columbia, Mo. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cosyns of Lombard, is on duty overseas as a fighter pilot.

Professional Women Plan Annual Health Program

The Professional Women's Club of Chicago will present its annual health program tomorrow in the Chicago Bar association clubrooms under the chairmanship of Miss Lena Boyette. Col. Don G. Hilldrup, chief of the medical bureau of the 6th service command, will speak on "Malaria," and Dr. Martha J. Bernheim will discuss "Socialized Medicine." Dr. Bernheim, who is on the faculty both at Rush Medical college and the University of Chicago, received recognition by the French government for her medical research in Paris some years ago. Mrs. Evangeline Hursen Fahy will preside.

Phoenix Colony Active in Army Welfare Work

By Ruth Dickinson.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Since the beginning of time the mountains have stood indomitable, changeless and ageless. Some say they were formed when the ice of the glacier period receded. In fact, the markings of that period are still discernable on many of the mountains today.

The mountains have looked down on the early struggle of man to survive; on the cliff dwellers who built their homes high in their crevices; on the fierce wars of the Apaches; on the coming of the white man and his struggle to settle in the new country and make it a part of the United States; on the successful attempt to tame the waters of the Gila and Salt rivers, to irrigate the desert land around Phoenix and make it one of the world's foremost garden spots. And so today, the mountains look down on the training fields and look up at the planes soaring overhead.

Several Chicagoans are playing an important part in the army life and welfare of the Phoenix community. Mrs. Wirt Morton is still busy with her national camp and hospital unit of which she is chairman. Her summer was literally spent living in a suitcase between Phoenix and Yuma, the two hottest places on the continent, and a week at Carmel, where she attended the national conference of the American Red Cross.

She and Mr. Morton manage to get a week now and then on their new ranch in the Santa Inez valley where Mr. Morton is raising cattle and has 100 acres in cultivation. Folded Hills ranch it is called, a lovely name! Mrs. Morton also has been busy recently opening the blood bank in town. Cadet Newton Perry Jr., and Cadet Larry Noel, both from Luke field, spent the week-end with the Mortons. Carl Morton is now a captain at Fort Benning, Ga., while Kenneth has just finished his preliminary training at Ellington field, Tex., and is now going into advanced training.

Mrs. Horace Newhall of Highland Park is chairman of the house commitee of the service men's center and has a real job in the creation of a home atmosphere for the boys stationed in the Phoenix area. The center has a recreation room with ping pong and billiards, a writing room, a splendid library and an equally fine snack bar, judging from the hungry boys who throng there. Capt. James Newhall is stationed in Augusta, Ga.

Mrs. Taylor Strawn is general chairman of the Maricopa chapter of the camp and hospital unit, and it is her job to supervise the furnishings of the day and recreation rooms at the various fields. A fine job she is doing of it, too.

Dick Searles has managed to tear himself away from his sleek and fat cattle and Indian Bend ranch for a short trip back to Chicago. He left the early part of the week. Dick is proof that a city boy can make good in the country. He has taken the cattle business seriously and has done well. He's worked hard, and his ranch and cattle are sufficient evidence of his success.

The Robert Evanses entertained at dinner and cocktails at the Jokake inn on Monday evening in honor of Dr. and Mrs. J. Victor Donnet who have recently purchased the George Gillespie home. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Octigan, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cooper, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baldwin. The previous day the Baldwins had a group of their friends in for dinner to celebrate Mrs. Baldwin's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy will arrive Wednesday for a couple of weeks vacation at the Jokake inn.

Coast Artillery Auxiliary.

A luncheon and card and games party will be given by the Illinois auxiliary of the 202d coast artillery at noon Monday, Nov. 29, at the Home Arts guild, 205 North Michigan avenue.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

Orlando Opens Third War Time Winter Season

ORLANDO, Fla. [Special].—This inland Florida city opened its third war time tourist season this month. A. C. Slaughter, secretary manager of the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce, has warned all Orlando-bound tourists to make reservations well in advance and "be absolutely sure you have accommodations." Slaughter explained that while no Orlando hotel, apartment, house, or tourist court had been taken over by the army, the need for housing accommodations are heavier than in previous years.

Many of the city's varied forms of entertainment cannot be carried on as they were in pre-war years. Nevertheless the city and chamber of commerce are planning many events. Sunshine Park, one of Florida's largest and finest winter visitors' clubs, will open in a few weeks with its lawn bowling and shuffleboard courts. The national lawn bowling championship may be held in Sunshine Park again next spring. Not far from the city is Seminole driving park, the nation's largest winter training track for trotting horses.

The city auditorium, seating nearly 4,000, will be open as usual, where costume dances will be held as well as vaudeville and other entertainment. The city's two large country clubs, as well as those within the metropolitan area, are planning open tournaments. Greens fees are inexpensive and clubs are open to winter visitors.

Heavy rains during the summer combined with a tremendous fish restocking program will make Orlando and Orange county lakes, of which there are nearly 700, a veritable fisherman's paradise. Fishing camps thruout the county, most of them accessible by bus, reopened this month.

Excellent bus transportation is available to Florida's second largest lake, Apoka, only a few miles from Orlando, where the world's largest black bass has been caught. It is not unusual for visitors to catch bass weighing up to 15 pounds from Lake Apoka, which has gained a world renowned reputation for good fishing.

The term "The City Beautiful" was applied to Orlando by winter visitors and received the terms by virtue of its 31 lakes bordered thruout the winter with green lawns, tropical palm trees, blooming azaleas and dogwood, shrubs and giant oak trees.

Orlando also is the trade center of central Florida, an area embracing more than a half million people.

Travel Officials Map a Post-war Campaign

A plan to unite travel and allied interests in a national campaign to promote "victory vacation year" as a mean of bridging the economic gap between war and peace was adopted by the executive committee of the National Association of Travel Officials, meeting in the Hotel Sherman last week. A fact-finding research program was adopted as the first step leading to post-war restoration of travel business. The committee also adopted a proposal to seek establishment of a United States travel bureau which would sell people of other nations the idea of vacationing in this country.

New West Coast Florida Highway Picturesque One

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. [Special].—Motorists from the east and midwest will discover, with the lifting of transportation restrictions at the end of the war, a new traffic artery to St. Petersburg, traversing Florida's picturesque west coast.

Crossing the Suwannee river, from which the state's official anthem takes its name, the route of the new west coast highway traverses some of the most beautiful sections of Florida. From Tallahassee the new road follows the coastal plain, across winding streams, and thru country that for years was the happy hunting ground of the Florida aborigines.

Upon entering Pinellas county, in which St. Petersburg is located, picturesque vistas unfold, beginning with the colorful Greek sponge fishing colony at Tarpon Springs. From the banks of the Anclote river into St. Petersburg the road bisects one of the richest sections of the Florida citrus belt.

ST PETERSBURG Florida
Honorably Discharged

Last year the Army took over most of St. Petersburg's hotels and a number of its apartment houses for use in housing a special training center. Now that permanent camps have been completed, the Army has closed its station here and has returned most of the hotels and apartment houses to their owners for civilian use. All of these have been completely rehabilitated and made ready for you.

St. Petersburg enjoyed having the soldiers here and extended them its usual warm hospitality. Now we are equally pleased to offer our facilities to our former civilian guests and winter residents. For those who are not in war service, there is no finer place to live than in sunny St. Petersburg.

If you can come to St. Petersburg this winter, cooperate with the transportation systems by planning early and making reservations as far in advance as possible. Come early and stay for a long time.

WAC Recruit Drive Theme of Two Club Teas

Mrs. Dwight H. Green. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

With the current recruitment drive of the women's army corps closing on Pearl Harbor day, Dec. 7, two leading Chicago clubs are giving large teas this week to focus attention upon Gen. George C. Marshall's urgent call for women volunteers.

The Woman's City club of Chicago is entertaining the procurement staff of the WAC, Mrs. Dwight H. Green [Gov. Green heads the drive in this state], Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, chairman of the women's division of the state committee for the drive; Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of the mayor, and the heads of women's organizations at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow in its suite in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue.

At the same hour on Wednesday, the Chicago Woman's club will give a distinguished guest tea in its north lounge on the 4th floor of the Fine Arts building, to which Mrs. Green, Mrs. Mucklestone, WAC officers and women of the other military services have been invited.

Maj. Doris E. Epperson, senior officer of the WAC 6th service command, is to speak briefly at both meetings. She and Capt. Margaret Stewart, chief of WAC recruiting in Illinois, will be accompanied to the parties by their staffs.

Because the Chicago Woman's club is forgoing its customary Wednesday afternoon program to give its tea, special attention has been taken to grace the party with a festive touch. There is to be music for the occasion, a program of songs by Charlotte Symons, soprano with the Metropolitan Opera company.

Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin.

Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, president of the club, explains that while the tea is being given to emphasize WAC recruitment, other branches of the women's services will be represented, and it is hoped that, thru the meeting with the young WACs, WAVES, SPARS and the marine corps women's reserve, the club women will find new incentive for urging their daughters and other young women of their acquaintance to become volunteers.

Maj. Epperson, Capt. Stewart, Mrs. Green, and Mrs. Mucklestone are expected to attend, and Lt. [j. g.] Margaret Cecil of the WAVES, Lt. Katherine B. Persons of the SPARS, Lt. Mary Kennedy Daley of the marines, and their respective staffs also have been invited.

At the Woman's City club, Maj. Epperson, Capt. Stewart, Mrs. Green, and Mrs. Mucklestone will assist the president, Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry, in receiving the guests. Also in the line will be Mrs. Henry C. Dormitzer, Mrs. John Sharpless Fox. Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, Mrs. Bradley Sayre Carr, Mrs. George Quilici, Mrs. Edward L. Murfey, and Mrs. H. S. Paine. Mrs. William E. Duffell and Miss Martha C. Dameier will assist, both with largely augmented social and hostess committees.

In addition to those previously named, other women expected to attend as special guests are Mrs. Alter M. Rennie, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer of Bloomington, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters; Mrs. Theodore Gleichman of Moline, and Mrs. Frank Damm, president and Chicago affairs committee chairman, respectively, of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Agnes T. MacMeekin, worthy grand matron of the Eastern Star in Illinois; Mrs. Ralph Webber, president of Illinois department of the American Legion auxiliary.

Also Mrs. Henry F. Aurand, wife of the commandant of the 6th service command; Mrs. Bernice T. Van der Vries, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, and Mrs. Maud N. Peffers, all representatives in the state assembly; Mrs. Edmund H. Hoben, president of the American Association of University Women; Mrs. Albert W. Palmer, president of the women's department of the Chicago Church federation; Mrs. Leonard V. Foley, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations.

Representatives of war relief societies, of several Red Cross divisions, of the Catholic Woman's league and the Chicago headquarters staff of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers also have been invited.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

With women's ever widening interests reaching into virtually every field nowadays, it was not surprising to find them among the guiding hands in the recent national convention of the Friends of the Land, that group of farmers, bankers, industrialists, journalists, foresters, lawyers—ad infinitum—banded together to encourage wise usage of our country's land resources. When Louis Bromfield, the author and Ohio farmer, addressed the assemblage at a luncheon meeting at convention headquarters in the Palmer House, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, a member of the organization's Chicago committee, was at the speaker's table between Mr. Bromfield and Lester Norris of St. Charles, a convention sponsor. Her close fitting hat was cunningly fashioned of small burnt orange wings, the oval shape of each sleek overlapping feather cluster emphasized by its border of black. Two of the wings stuck perkily up from the top as if ready for flight. Her dress was black, the vee neck softened by a pearl choker, and an unusual gold mesh bracelet circled, cuff fashion, over the wrist of one of the tight fitting sleeves. Another committee member at the same table was Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen. A huge bow of black and powder blue velvet adorned her off-the-face hat which was adjusted becomingly above her forehead. Beneath a full length mink coat, which she later slipped from her shoulders, she wore a black dress trimmed with a tiny rolled collar of the same shade of blue in the headpiece. Eye catching corsages graced the shoulders of Mrs. Raymond Knotts, president of the Garden club of Illinois, and Mrs. Luis John Francke, chairman of the conservation committee of the Garden Club of America and vice president of the Friends of the Land. Mrs. Francke's blossoms were of bright cyclamen shade, and her small feathered headpiece was of harmonizing tones of royal blue and navy. Her dress of navy crepe had a fascinating large vee shaped inset in the bodice that gleamed with what appeared to be simulated pearls. Mrs. Knotts wore delicate green orchids with ornithogalum. Her hat and dress were black, the latter with inset black lace scallops around the hemline and just below the shoulders.

At one of the small tables with her husband was Mrs. Erle O. Blair, whose unusual record in Red Cross volunteer service is the pride of her friends. Trim and tailored in a black crepe dress and black felt hat, she carried a handsome over-the-shoulder bag of dull black leather, the straps threading thru the edges of it in drawstring fashion. Beside her was Mrs. O. A. Figge, chairman of the women's division of the war finance committee of Oak Park and River Forest, whose ensemble was a symphony of brown and beige tones. Her coat and hat were of clipped beaver, and at the collar of her shirtwaist styled kasha dress was a handsome pin of antique yellow gold, an heirloom handed down thru her family in Virginia. On her wrist was an exquisitely hand wrought French bracelet of the same dull gold with a small diamond set in three of its tiny links. In the same party was Mrs. Howard W. Hulett, whose husband, a lieutenant [j. g.], now is stationed in Hawaii. Mrs. Hulett wore the ever popular black as did Mrs. E. Wesley Frost of Fayetteville, Ark., president of the National Council of State Garden Clubs, who was seated at a near-by table with Mrs. Mark Cresap of Lake Forest, Mrs. Warren Shoemaker, now living at her country home in Woodstock, and Miss Edith Kohlsatt of Fontana, Wis., district representative of the Garden Club of America. Mrs. John V. Farwell's ensemble of black was relieved by touches of cardinal, her dark hat adorned with cardinal wings. Miss Elizabeth Howland of Barrington wore a tuxedo coat of beige, trimmed with beaver, and a brown pillbox hat tilted dashingly over one eye. Mrs. Henry W. Shedd of River Forest, who was assisted by Mrs. Mable Johnson Fuller of Riverside in arranging the harvest decorations at the speaker's table, wore a black woolen dress with black velvet cuffs and hem, and a black beanie styled hat with a soft gray wing over one ear.

Still imbued with the enthusiasm generated by the 13th biennial convention of the National Council of Jewish Juniors, which recently was held concurrently with the parent organization's 17th triennial meeting at the Drake hotel, the Chicago section of the junior council will give a membership party on Tuesday evening in the clubrooms at 185 North Wabash avenue. Miss Frances Lawrence, president, has named Miss Marjorie Aberman chairman for the affair.

Hatikvah, junior auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptive's Relief society of Denver, Colo., will observe its 11th anniversary with a program meeting at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday at the Standard club. Highlighting the afternoon's entertainment will be the presentation of Miss Jennie Podolsky, concert and opera star, in a musical.

Fathers Urged to Be Sincere Friends of Sons

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The instant, almost, that sons become difficult to understand and manage, some fathers are ready to throw up the job of parenthood.

Now I doubt if many men would feel like this about their work or business or profession. Yet some of these very men, who would be stopped by no obstacle in that regard, as soon as the subtle, precious human material that is their sons grows difficult to work with, become impatient, angry, resentful and threaten to throw up the sponge. Having one of the most vital, important, responsible jobs there can be in the world, raising a son, they more or less calmly announce that they're ready to give it up.

And not only that, they often make this threat when they haven't put any old-fashioned gumption into swinging this big job of being a father. Without real thought or effort they quit their responsibility toward this young son of theirs who is just beginning to mature or already coming fast into man's estate.

I don't believe men realize how ready most boys are to admire, to almost worship them. Give them half a chance, and you can be their hero.

But you don't need to be hero material to make a success of being a father. Better still is to be a warm, human friend, a father who can understand a boy's urges, ideals, longings, temptations, a man who isn't perfect himself, and, above all, one who doesn't pretend that he was a perfect little Rollo when he was a boy.

So, suppose your son is defiant. Suppose he does hate school. Suppose he smokes. Suppose he enjoys boys whom you consider are bad influences for him. Suppose he lies.

Scolding, cold displeasure, reform school threats are not the solution. These things he does are no good excuse for your ceasing to act like a father. Instead, this is the time for you to stick; he needs you now.

Just how much do you know about him as a person? And just how much of a person are you to your son?

He may be kiddish, coltish, irresponsible, and pretty silly at times; but he's much more than that. And he's no longer a child. Give him a chance to talk to you man to man, and begin it by talking that way to him first. Do things with him. Give him more freedom and trust. Talk over his problems and yours, too, with him. Stop sitting in judgment on him. Find out what he wants, what he likes, what he thinks little by little, as a friend, not as a prying oldster.

If you get to be this kind of a father, some of your problems with him will melt away automatically; the others you can cope with together. You'll get as much out of it as he will.

A fair-weather father is like a fair-weather friend—no friend at all. Fathers, like friends, are meant to stick, thru foul weather and fair.

Household Forum

by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some household help that lightens labor or conserves on materials? Is there some comfort you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Thomas G., Chicago: We've made a new rule at our house to turn off radios if we aren't really listening to them. Radios will last longer and electricity will be saved for war use. We stand them now at least an inch away from the wall so air can circulate around them and they can't overheat. And those on our bookcases also have been given some free space around them.

Mrs. Ted G., Pittsburgh, Pa.: Every so often I use a soft brush on my blankets and fluff them up. This keeps air circulating between fibers. This is especially good treatment for double blankets so wool fibers won't mat down and stick together. Also I learned last winter that I get more heat from blankets if I let them hang loosely over sides of bed instead of "tucking" myself in under a tent-like arrangement!

Mrs. Harold G., New York City: Here's a good way to add coal to your fireplace neatly and quietly. Place coal in a large paper bag and then drop bag on fire. Coal falls with no clatter over fire as bag slowly burns. This winter, if paper shouldn't be wasted, this is a good method to use if the baby is asleep or some one is sick and must not be disturbed by too much noise.

Mrs. Grace F., Chicago: Ever had trouble removing pecan stains from your kitchen towels? These are hard to get out. I have found if I boil towels in a very weak solution of lye for ten minutes the stain will disappear. If it doesn't, I repeat process. Then I rinse and boil again in a mild soap solution.

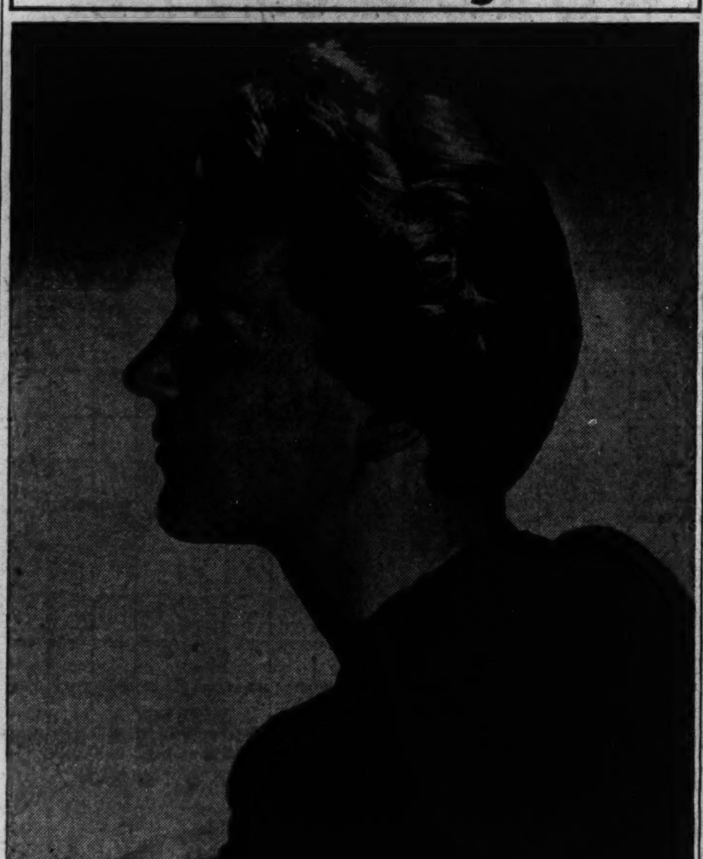
Thru the Looking Glass



Does this look a bit familiar? Inspired by the shingle of 1926, the hair-do is as new as tomorrow. It's the "demi-shingle," the creation of a forward-looking stylist at a Chicago salon. The hair is skilfully and carefully cut, allowing just enough length to swirl it across the back and crown of the head, with an arrangement of face framing, softening ringlets and curls to make it feminine and appealing. It's a wearable, utilitarian style with the snug, sleek look that is such high fashion this season. HOME OWNERS' QUERIES

Evanston, Ill.—[To the Home Owners' Editor.]—Can new wood be bleached to a blond finish? Is this hard to do? Mrs. Ed W.

Answer: New wood and most old woods can be bleached. We've listed names of some commercial bleaches as well as directions for the process. Formerly this was considered difficult to accomplish for the amateur, especially where the wood had been previously finished. Now with available commercial products on the market the task, in many instances at least, could not be called difficult.

Chicago.—[To the Home Owners' Editor.]—We have moved into quite an old house which seems pretty drafty and hard to heat. We have ordered storm windows and are discussing whether they should be weatherstripped or not. Harold G.

Answer: To be of the greatest protection a storm window should be closely fitted and weatherstripped.

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

A declarer who is ever alert to the possibility of a squeeze play and who has the skill to execute a squeeze if and when the opportunity arises, can make life very uncomfortable for the defenders. One slip on their part, and their fat may well be in the declarer's fire. For example:

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ 5 4 2
♥ K 10 6
♦ A 6 4
♣ A J 10 5

WEST
♠ 9 6 3
♥ 8 7 5 4 2
♣ 7 4 3 2

EAST
♦ K Q 10 8 7 5
♣ K Q 9 8

SOUTH
♠ A K Q J 10 7
♥ A Q J
♦ J 9 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 diam.	2 spades	Pass
2 no tr.	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 hearts	Pass	5 no trump	Pass
6 diam.	Pass	6 spades

South could scarcely be blamed for going to a slam, considering that his partner had opened the bidding [pretty lightly, as it happened]. But when South saw West's opening lead, the three of diamonds, and realized that with the deuce in his own hand, and East marked with diamond length because of his vulnerable overcall, the lead must have been a singleton, things did not look propitious. The unfortunate duplication of distribution in the North-South hands [three hearts and three diamonds in each] would permit neither the discard of a diamond nor the ruff of a diamond. The only chance for the 12th trick, therefore, was thru a squeeze play, and this could not be developed unless the timing was adjusted by passing the first trick.

South realized that a diamond return by East would defeat the contract on the spot, since West would ruff, but with no other chance for success, declarer determined to give East the chance to stub his toe.

Accordingly, a low diamond was played from dummy on the first trick, and when East won with the queen, declarer was careful to false card with the nine.

East did stub his toe, and with a vengeance! Convinced that the missing diamond deuce was in West's hand, and completely overlooking the fact that if this was so it could do no harm to lead back the diamond king [which in that case would smother declarer's jack], East made what he thought was the safe return of his singleton trump. Later, he defended this lead by plaintively pointing out that he had considered the possibility that declarer had started with three diamonds but had felt that he would not be able to discard a diamond, if that was the case, because East himself had perfect control of the club suit.

East's trump return gave declarer all the chance he needed. He ran off five trump tricks, then cashed the diamond ace and his three heart tricks, ending in his own hand. Now, with the stage perfectly set for the big finale, declarer led his last trump. This left declarer with the diamond jack and the six of clubs, dummy with the ace jack of clubs. East, having to reduce to two cards, now discovered how superficial and shortsighted his earlier analysis had been. If he kept only one club, dummy would take the last two tricks; if he discarded the diamond king, declarer would cash the diamond jack before collecting the club ace.

East's lot was not made any happier when his partner muttered, "It's bad enough to get squeezed when you can't help it. I don't see much point in squeezing yourself!"

Thanksgiving Dinner Should Be Simple One

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

This year there's no excuse for an elaborate Thanksgiving dinner. In other years, when food was plentiful, it was difficult for nutrition authorities to discourage the overloaded table and the consequent overloaded stomach.

Lack of butter is going to restrain us a good deal. We can't baste the turkey with butter or douse the turkey stuffing with this rich fat. We can't use butter in the homemade rolls, and we probably won't be wasting any of it on the vegetable. A moderate sized pat at each plate will be all any one could expect, and I'll wager that not one in a hundred would object to margarine in place of butter.

The pattern for the Thanksgiving meal this year is simple: roast turkey, chicken or meat, cranberry sauce or another relish, stuffing, potatoes, gravy, hot rolls, one vegetable, a green salad, a simple dessert and coffee.

Roast Turkey, Sage and Onion Stuffing [made without fat, or with a small amount of bacon drippings]
Giblet Gravy Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes Green Beans [no butter]
Plain Homemade Rolls
Chicory and Watercress Salad
Chilled Stewed Fresh Pears Flavored with Sherry Coffee

2.

Roast Turkey Celery and Giblet Stuffing
Baked White or Sweet Potatoes
Cranberry and Orange Relish
Corn Bread
Fresh Spinach, Raw Cauliflower, Carrot Strip and Tomato Salad
Chocolate Sundae Plain Cookies
Coffee

3.

Stuffed Baked Ham Slices Raisin and Orange Sauce
Baked Sweet Potatoes Broccoli [no butter]
Salad of Fresh Pear Halves on Watercress
Parkerhouse Rolls
Cranberry Chiffon Pie
Coffee

4.

Cranberry Pot Roast Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Cooked Kale Whole Wheat Rolls
Avocado and Grapefruit Salad on Chicory
Pumpkin Pie
Coffee Nuts

The foregoing menus aren't much different from regular Sunday dinner menus for this time of year, but they shouldn't be. We can make the table festive by using our best linens, china, glassware and silver, and prepare a lovely harvest time centerpiece by filling a bowl with fruits and nuts, or using a bouquet of some of the smaller varieties of chrysanthemums.

The rolls we make will be fat-saving ones, of course. Fortunately, fluffiness and tenderness in rolls is easily achieved with only a small amount of fat.

Plain Refrigerator Rolls.
[Three or four dozen.]

- 2 cups scalded milk
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ cup sugar
- ⅓ cup lard or other shortening
- 1 or 2 cakes compressed yeast or packages granular yeast
- About 6 cups sifted bread flour

Place milk, salt, sugar and shortening in large mixing bowl and cool to lukewarm. Add crumbled yeast and 3 cups flour. Beat thoroly. Beating may be done on an electric mixer. Gradually stir in remaining flour, just enough to make a soft dough which may be handled. Turn out onto a floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, adding flour as necessary. Place dough in greased bowl, brush with melted fat, cover and let rise in a warm place for 2 to 4 hours, or until doubled in bulk. Cut down dough, cover tightly and place in refrigerator until ready to use. About 1 hour before baking, shape as many rolls as you wish to use, brush with fat, let rise until light and bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes.

To get by without using butter on the vegetable, be certain you cook the vegetable properly, and season it carefully with salt and pepper. Serve it in its cooking water [use a small amount for cooking and there won't be too much left]. A fresh vegetable, carefully cooked, doesn't need butter. It's own true, natural flavor is enough.

MUST THE MARRIED WOMAN LIVE IN DOUBT?

The so-called "modern wife" often distrusts the half-knowledge gathered during her adolescence. But, instead of entering wifehood fully equipped with the intimate facts she needs, she resorts to over-strong solutions of acids for the douche which can actually burn, scar and even desensitize delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind a safe—yet amazingly powerful liquid for the douche, Zonite. So powerful is Zonite, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors, leaving no telltale odor of its own. Protects personal daintiness! Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. For modern hygienic protection you may never have known before, get Zonite at your druggist today.

Bright Wool Frocks Touch Up Fur Coats

By Rea Seeger.

Fur coat weather marks the shift of fashion from dull black frocks to vivid colored wool dresses as a foil for dark fur coats. Nothing dramatizes the sheen and beauty of fine furs like brilliant color and winter pastels. Furthermore, wool fabric textilists have accomplished magnificent results with dye formulas this season. Colors are riotously successful, from the definite tones of green, red, blue, yellow, purple, and all the many fascinating unusual tones, such as tangerine, chartreuse, orange, gold, russet, and metallic sheens of green and crimson. On the other hand, dress designers have worked color magic in costume dresses ready to slide under your fur coats.

Because the colors are so vividly dramatic, little is added in the way of extra details; the exquisite beauty of simplicity is enough. And the wool fabrics are worthy of special praise, for all of the dress materials are light as a breeze and warm as a tropic temperature despite the almost gossamer texture of the wool. Crepes as thin as satin and silk, chiffons as thin and as soft as anything ever woven have their counter-parts in the many beautiful woolens used for these contrasting colored dresses.

Two piece suit dresses are skilfully designed and fashioned to appear as a one piece unit or a dress. Skirts are extremely simple and straight in these suit dresses, with the fitted jacket going dress parade. Clever details, such as double ruching of the wool of the dress, flashing pockets made of sequins, peplum accent also worked in embroidery, fine beadwork, ribbon or wool, or combines of both, are shown.

These fascinating details make dress tops and jackets especially effective, dramatizing the lovely color of the wool and achieving the necessary decorative flash and glitter. However, both types of models are abundant: the decoratively trimmed numbers and those simply accented with dressmaker details. Most important are the silhouettes of Spartan simplicity. Sleeves are available in all lengths, but elbow lengths and bracelet or three-quarter lengths are the most popular. Necklines vary also, from the plunging vees to the curving high swathed effects achieved only with dexterous fingers of expert drapers.

Many colored wool dresses have intricate insets carefully shirred to make a symmetrical outline on a fitted bodice or over a curved hip line. Dressmaker bows of the dress wool add a distinctive bit of trim on many, the bows varying in size and outline according to the manner of use.

Sketched are four high colored wool models. All are available in a wide color range of brilliant as well as pastel subdued colors. They are included in a large collection of dresses designed expressly for winter coat contrast duty. All are featured in a smart Chicago store. For further information, call Superior 0200.

Two fashion moods are represented in the patterns sketched today. One of the models has simple lines brightened with applique at the V neckline. This design allows fabric and color to have the limelight, and it's the sort of dress which can fit into a busy day and then go dining and dancing after working hours.

The other uses buttons to accent tailored lines of both jumper and blouse. There are interesting pockets for the hipline, and the paneling assures figure smoothness.

Lady of the House

Another Thanksgiving.

As we approach this second war time Thanksgiving—the third and the fourth for some of the men in the service—we still may count our many blessings. Our homes are still secure; our churches and schools, libraries and art galleries still stand; we still have music everywhere; our tasks may be arduous but we do them with a will; we may look up to quiet skies and down upon unravaged, fertile earth. Our family circles are broken, yet held together by all the unseen bonds of home.

So, as we sit around our still bountiful tables, all of us will be giving prayerful thought to those other lands whose peoples have none of these blessings; where the smallest part of any one of them would be manna from heaven.

With these thoughts M. M. Morrison gives us—

Thanksgiving Day Prayer.

Dear Lord, upon this altar lay
Our thanks, on this Thanksgiving Day,
Abundant food with which to feed
And clothe and comfort those in need.
For Victory and for Peace we pray,
And, as we kneel, our thoughts may stray
To the Garden of Gethsemane;
There on the Cross Thou gavest Thy son
To die that we might live.
I offer mine—I, too, will give
And here upon this altar lay
My son, that all humanity
Might live again—be free again—
And altogether say Amen
On this Thanksgiving Day

And Martha Gwinn Kiser injects a new thought into our observance of—

Thanksgiving.

It's not enough to mumble "Thank you, God,"
For gifts that other folks have made to you—
All well enough to thank the Lord, of course,
But thanks have got to be specific, too!
So let us each one bravely go
And thank his neighbor or his friend
For gifts that he's received this year
At that neighbor's hand.
If you've been hungry, now are fed,
In spirit or in body,
Say "Thank you!" so that those may hear
Who've offered you their bounty.
The Lord don't mind, I tell you;
He'll be glad to share a few
Of those thank-yous due to others,
Or forgot by me and you.

Golden Apples of Hesperides.

How Hercules worked for them! They must have been oranges. Recently I desperately wanted one for breakfast; was even willing to do without the "few kind words" to go with it—and you know how nice kind words are at breakfast!

I searched up and down the town; finally my labors were rewarded with, not one, but several. I carried them home only to discover that, like Patsy's orange, they seemed to have been "squzz some" and, sadly unlike his, there was no "more in 'em." I wanted a nice, juicy, squirty one.

Not being able to get oranges out of my mind for the moment, I looked at pictures and read about them. It seems all the oranges grown on Mediterranean shores, the Caribbean, our gulf states and California, Central and South America, are descended from a patriarchal tree, the first planted on European soil, which lived to a gnarled and barren old age in one of the public gardens of Lisbon. The original tree came from China, the pips being brought with great care from that land by a Portuguese.

Bumps.

Who'll sell me bumps for kisses?
I buy by the pound or the ton.
A tiny wee kiss for a tiny wee bump,
A hug for a bigger one.

Bring me your bumps and your bruises,
I'll kiss every one away.
Hurry, my laddies and lassies,
I'm buying up bumps today.

Buying up bumps and bruises,
Tumbles, and tantrums, and tears;
Would I might buy them, my darlings,
Thruout all the coming years.

CAN VITAMINS CHANGE GRAY HAIR?

According to Good Housekeeping tests with Calcium Pantothenate on gray hair:

Age—did not seem to affect results. The earliest response occurred in a 60 year old; the latest in a 23 year old.

Color—began to appear near the roots of the hair. The color may not appear all over the head at the same time. Symmetrical areas, perhaps on the temples or the back of the head, may show traces of color first, after which the color will spread to other parts of the head.

Time—varied from 1 month to 6 months.

Results—88% of those tested had positive evidence of a return of some hair color.

● Now thousands use GRAYVITA, which contains 10 mgm. of Calcium Pantothenate (the tested amount) PLUS 450 U.S.P. units of B_1. Try GRAYVITA. 30 day supply, $1.50. 100 days, $4.00. Phone, write

Palette, Chisel Academy Has Stunning Show

By Eleanor Jewett.

One of the oldest and most interesting art organizations in Chicago is the Palette and Chisel academy, 1012 North Dearborn street. Years ago the Palette and Chisel had its headquarters in the loop and from the beginning its membership consisted of young, hard working artists who usually had to turn to commercial or industrial art jobs to keep the wolf from the door. For relaxation the men held monthly exhibits and every November an annual exhibition of small pictures was held. This exhibition came to a grand finale with an auction, and all the money raised went to the support of the club.

This November there is a service flag with a great many stars in the window of the Palette and Chisel, but the small picture exhibit goes on just the same. In fact, the show this fall is better than the many good ones of previous seasons. The painters who have not gone to war have put their best foot forward with a will and have contributed the finest little pictures they could paint. It is a brilliant exhibit that greets the visitor. Many of the paintings already wear tiny labels signifying some one has placed a bid on them and the expectant atmosphere of the gallery suggests that Friday evening, Dec. 3, will see many tense moments when the auction starts at 8 o'clock. It promises to be an exciting affair.

James Topping, J. Jeffrey Grant, Othmar Hoffler, and Leo Marzolo are among the noted painters who contribute generously to the success of this show. Karl C. Brandner is another distinguished artist whose contribution is outstanding. His "Heart of the Berkshires," a winter landscape of trees and hills, is beautifully handled.

"The Land of Clams," "The Good Earth," "Winter Morning," and "A Bit of Gloucester" are the paintings by J. Jeffrey Grant that rivet the attention. Leo A. Marzolo shows several delightful still life compositions with flowers, "Ami Quinard," enchanting in its beauty, and "Petunia Blues," lovely in coloring. Othmar Hoffler has two exquisite little studies of a ballet dancer, "Ballerina" and "The Dancer," each a delight, and a fine picture of ships off Brittany. James Topping offers the sparkling "Shore Line Birches," rippling with sun, and "Sunlight Clouds," a vast expanse of sky over a warm landscape. Oscar B. Erickson in "Vista of the Valley" paints a day of midsummer and in "October—Brown County" offers a fall landscape in russet and red.

Oskar Gross, Leo Weeks, Andrew Dobos, Max Herzog, E. L. Williams, Richard Brani, Roy Keister, and Nicolo Veronica are among the other artists represented. The exhibit is well worth seeing.

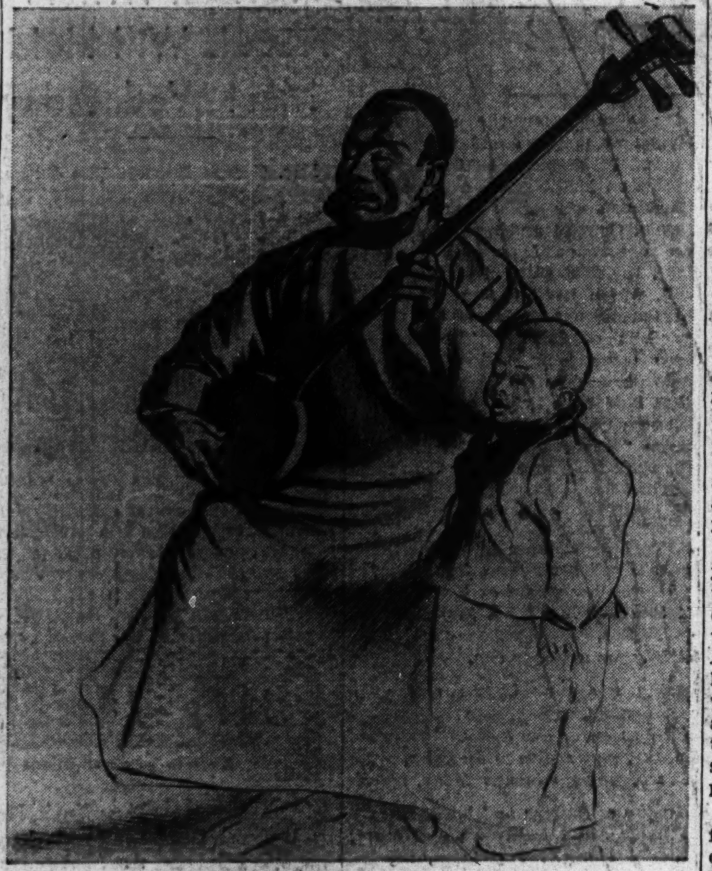
Myrtle Frankovitz opened last Sunday a delightful exhibit of recent work at the Little Gallery, Esquire theater, to continue to Nov. 27. Many of the water colors are of Illinois scenes and at least two, "Lincoln Park" and "Buckingham Fountain," are of Chicago. Mrs. Frankovitz painted last summer with Salcia Bahnc at the Art institute school and since then she has been working with Charles Longabaugh and George Buehr.

"SINGERS IN THE DARK"



Cyrus LeRoy Baldridge of New York contributes this bit of China to the current exhibit of etchings and miniature prints by members of the Chicago Society of Etchers in the Club Women's bureau, Mandel Brothers. The exhibit is one of the most delightful in town this month.

Woman's Aid Declares War on Delinquency

In the old story it was the want of a nail in a horseshoe that lost the battle. In terms of today, there is a battle going on in the field of juvenile delinquency, and the Chicago Woman's Aid, applying the old lesson in a practical maneuver, has brought a juke box to the combat, among other things. The aid's music machine is proving one of the most popular acquisitions at the Hyde Park Neighborhood club, 1364 East 56th street, where it is constantly surrounded by a crooning and swaying circle of teen aged youngsters.

A thoro study of the causes of juvenile delinquency last season convinced the women of the aid that only on the community basis could the problem be handled successfully. As the result of the study, the aid has aligned itself with other groups working in the interest of the boys and girls of the Hyde Park district thru the neighborhood house, and is setting up a series of classes and programs there.

The juke box furnished the music for the first highly successful dance on Halloween. Since then, dancing has been part of every Friday "fun night."

Professional dramatic and dancing teachers have been employed, and Monday evenings are for theatricals and Tuesdays for social dancing. A corps of aid volunteers, headed by Mrs. Samuel L. Goldberg and Mrs. William Zavis, teach knitting, sewing, and handicraft on other nights, and the girls have a charm school every Wednesday which is taught by a staff member of the Chicago association for family living.

The women of the aid have two meetings scheduled for the week in their rooms in the Medical and Dental Arts building. A noon breakfast Tuesday will bring Rabbi Jacob Weinstein of K. A. M. temple as guest speaker. Rabbi Weinstein is an active member of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews. His talk at the aid will be on "Combating Racial Prejudice." That afternoon Miss Ruth Kelp, medical social worker at Michael Reese hospital, will give a talk for the class studying social work agencies on "Case Work in a Medical Agency."

Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, formerly of the University of Chicago and now on the Williams college faculty, who is an annual visitor at the aid, will lecture on "World War and World Revolution," at a noon breakfast meeting Friday. Dr. Schuman recently has become associated with the foreign broadcast staff of the government intelligence service in Washington, D. C.

Federation Leadership Class to Hold Meeting

The leadership class of the 1st district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Miss Laura Thornton is chairman, will meet at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in federation headquarters at 30 West Washington street, for a discussion of post-war problems.

Women Voters to Aid Tuberculosis Program in County

A resolution calling for the appointment of a special league committee to work actively on the tuberculosis program in Chicago and Cook county was adopted by the Cook County League of Women Voters at a meeting last week. The action followed on the heels of a report on tuberculosis control in the metropolitan district by Mrs. Edward D. Nix of Winnetka, state chairman of the Illinois league's department of economic welfare and member of the league committee which surveyed the control problem in Cook county, who pointed out inadequacies of present local programs.

The league went on record as objecting to the further implementation of the Glackin act, wherein Illinois counties are permitted to pass a special tax for sanatorium care of tuberculosis after a referendum vote approving such a tax, on the grounds that it would fail to solve the serious need for more hospital beds for patients in the city and would not provide for a completely coördinated area program.

Germania Woman's Club Plans Luncheon Today

With Mrs. Harry E. Hoff presiding, the Germania Woman's club will gather at luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today in the clubhouse at 198 Germania place. There will be cards in the afternoon, and as a prelude to meeting book review hour is planned for 11 o'clock.
